LLOYD GEORGE, whose weekly articles all intelligent people should read, says labor in England is not as cocksure as it was. "Its jauntiness has disappeared" and with it its "intolerance." He adds that "the temperature of Socialist gatherings is very considerably reduced."

Lloyd George says "labor is beginning to realize that the world cannot be reconstructed by phrases," and that for the building of the "City of God upon a hill" you must have plans and specifications.

That is true, as many sorrowing reformers can testify. But, on the other hand, to "build the City of God upon a hill," you must first determine that you will build that city. An enthusiast must fight FOR THE IDEA, long before the plans and specifications are made in detail, and before the foundation is laid.

BLAKE, before he died in a miserable dark room, laughed at as "half maniac," wrote:

"Give me my bow of burning gold
Give me my arrows of desire.
Give me my bear, oh, stars, unfold
Give me my chariot of fire.
I will not rest from mortal fight
Or let my sword rust in my hand
'Till I have built Jerusalem,
In England's green and pleasant land."

They laugh at Blake no longer. He never built his "Jerusalem in England's green and pleasant land," but he made men think.

NEWTON had almost finished mathematical calculations that were to prove the accuracy of his formula of gravitation; his emotion was so great that he was unable to continue. An assistant finished the calculations for him.

Henry Ford probably could sympathize with Newton last week, when his first complete new car—body, engine, wheels, paint and all—came off the line, with Ford and his son Edsel looking on. The car was taken to Henry Ford's museum and put beside the fifteenth million Ford of the old type.

TO turn your back on fifteen million children that have earned for you fifteen hundred million dollars, and start an entirely new family takes courage. Edison who says that young men do the real work because they have "greater energy and will to work" will probably make an exception of his friend Henry Ford.

THE new car, absolutely different from the old Ford model, makes fifty miles an hour easily, according to a description of the New York Times, sixty miles if desired. Ford has increased his production capacity so that he can turn out 11,000 of the new cars every day, more than three million a year. The maximum of the old car was 8,000 a day.

Sixty thousand cars are needed as samples for the Ford agencies alone, and 375,000 have already been ordered and a down payment made before the cars are ready.

FORTY Florida newspapers combined to publish, every two weeks, a special supplement, called "The Farm and Groves Section." It will supply people in and out of the state with full information about Florida's agricultural resources and the way to develop them.

Mr. Frank R. Hammett, of Jacksonville, will have charge of this useful work.

WEALTH and fertility unlimited are in Florida's soil.

The "tourist" will always be one of the great Florida crops, but Florida in a few years will look back with wonder to the day when the tourist was the "principal" crop of the state, and its chief financial reliance.

Industries will be established and factories built throughout Florida as they are building now in California.

No one can estimate the future of that great state, only TEMPORARILY set back by real estate booming and foolishness.

"OLD TOM," of Pontypool, England's oldest working miner, says "I am 77 years old. Man and boy, I have been at it 70 years. I started as door tender at 12 cents a day, and now I am a blast firer at $22.50 a week."

The old miner is proud to have worked up, in 70 years, from 12 cents a day to a little more than

FARRELL PICKED FOR GARY'S JOB

By B. C. FORBES.

(Excerpts from an advance copy of the November issue of Forbes' Magazine.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—The new chief executive of the United States Steel Corporation, in succession to the late Judge Gary, will be James A. Farrell.

For the chairmanship of the finance committee the directors may not select any of the present members of the committee, but may choose a prominent banker and have him devote his whole time to handle the gigantic finances incidental to this enterprise, doing almost $2,000,000,000 worth of business a year.

The directors would like to be able to induce J. P. Morgan, for years a leading member of the finance committee, to take the chairmanship, but the head of America's greatest international banking house would scarcely have time for the onerous duties. George F. Baker IV is lightening rather than increasing his burdens, and George F. Baker, Jr., although well qualified, has too many responsibilities, present and prospective, to think of shouldering more.

Judge Gary was both chairman of the corporation and chairman of the finance committee. The other members of the committee are George F. Baker, Mr. Farrell, William J. Filbert (comptroller), Judge Nathan L. Miller (general counsel), J. P. Morgan, Percival Roberts, Jr., and Myron C. Taylor.

Mr. Farrell is 64. He has been president and the operating head of the corporation for 17 years. How his selection as president came about is here told for the first time.

Mr. Farrell, then president of the United States Steel Products Company, a subsidiary, had made an extraordinary successful record as a developer of foreign business. One

Forbes Predicts New Policy By Farrell

B. C. Forbes, writer of a daily financial column in the Sun-Telegraph, guest of the Chamber of Commerce here last Thursday when he took the steel industry to task as an industrial laggard, said at that time:

"But I happen to know who the next head of the Steel Corporation will be, and I am confident that the steel industry's future will leave very little room for criticism of its progressiveness. I know that the trend hereafter will be in the right direction."

$350,000 FRAUD LAID TO PATCH

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 25.—William Moore Patch, formerly a Pittsburgh theater manager, is at liberty under $25,000 bail pending trial on charges of defrauding his partner of about $350,000. Patch was arrested here September 29 on a warrant sworn out by Thomas McKean, author and member of a prominent Philadelphia family, who is said to have been associated with him in various ventures.

Patch, after being taken into custody, was arraigned before Magistrate Violet Fahnestock and held in $40,000 bail, which he could not produce, and he was remanded to the Moyamensing Prison.

WAIVE HEARING

He was released from prison on October 3 and waived further hearing before Magistrate Fahnestock.

The warrant for Patch's arrest charged forgery; making false and fraudulent statements with intent to defraud; obtaining signatures under false pretense, and obtaining money and securities under false pretense.

McKean is said to have lost $350,000

Kline Signs Council Raise

The ordinance increasing councilmanic salaries from $6,500 to $8,000, which was passed unanimously yesterday, was signed today by Mayor Charles H. Kline.

If the amount needed for the increase is set up in the budget, four councilmen who will be re-elected next month will be able to draw the higher salary beginning January 1. Five others must wait until the end of their present terms or resign and be re-elected by their colleagues at the increased rate.

Councilmen Winters, Anderson, Garland and Alderdice will be able to take advantage of the raise the first of next year. The five "unfortunates" are Councilmen Little, English, Herron, Malone and McArdle.

Killed In Fog Here

The blanket of fog which enveloped the Pittsburgh district this morning brought death to one man, injuries which may prove fatal to another man and a woman, and kept all traffic running at "caution" speed more than five hours.

The fog settled over the city in the early morning hours and between 5 and 6 formed a dense, murky shroud through which street lights shone hazily, automobile headlights glared ineffectively and traffic signals were obliterated.

It was at this time that two men, speeding through Millvale in a stolen taxicab, struck and killed Albert Blum, 47, of Meade way, Millvale, as he was on his way to work in Grant

TELLS OF TRIP ON TANKER

LISBON, Portugal, Oct. 25.—Ruth Elder, American trans-Atlantic flier, arrived here on the steamer Lima at 4 p. m. today with her co-pilot, George Haldeman.

Ruth is now suffering from a sprained ankle sustained while walking the decks for exercise.

Miss Elder turned her ankle on deck, thought nothing of it, and then, attempting to dance, suffered intense pain.

She will consult the American minister here as to the quickest route to Paris.

BY WIRELESS FROM THE S. S. LIMA, Oct. 24.—Capt. Goos insisted that we drink a cup of strong, hot tea before going to bed. We enjoyed it thoroughly, especially George, who was shivering with cold after his impromptu salt-water bath.

Later he told me that he hadn't felt the cold water and didn't realize he was wet until we were safely aboard the Barendrecht. Only then did he discover that his clothes were drenched.

We almost fell asleep at the table after having had our tea. The reaction from the long hours of wakefulness, from the strain of battling the storm, was beginning to set in.

The next day the captain laughingly told us that I had said faintly, "I'm so sleepy." George, he said, had replied, "I'll bet you are."

Capt. Goos took George to his cabin to give him some dry clothing. When they reappeared I had the first

CAROL PLOT MOBILIZES RUMANIA

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Oct. 25.—(AP.)—Just as the country was settling down after the death of King Ferdinand and the regency appeared functioning smoothly, Rumania today was thrown into turmoil by announcement of the discovery of a plot to re-establish the exiled Prince Carol upon the throne of his father and in place of his son, six-year-old King Michael.

To frustrate any further activities among Carol's adherents, the government has proclaimed martial law throughout the country.

Complete order prevails, but underneath the calm is a feeling of undis-

KING VANISHES, FACES OUSTER ON RETURN

William L. King, director of the Citizens' League of Pittsburgh and Allegheny County, has vanished again. Unless he returns soon, explains satisfactorily and resumes his duties as a law enforcer he will have to look elsewhere for employment, it was admitted today by the Rev. Dr. J. Alvin Orr, president of the executive board.

Dr. Orr said he had heard of Mr. King in Des Moines, Ia., where he had gone on a business trip, but at that time it was indicated that he soon would be back at his desk. The crusader left Pittsburgh late in September to go to Erie to appear before the federal grand jury. He testified against "Jakey" Klein, alleged gambler and leader of the Pittsburgh underworld, who was indicted on a charge of attempting to bribe a government witness.

GRANTED TWO-WEEKS LEAVE

King had secured permission from the board to take a two-weeks leave after he had appeared before the grand jury and he went directly west from Erie. Since that time a telegram of a few words has been the only communication received by the members of the executive board here from the executive director. This telegram stated that he intended to go further west and would need additional time.

Dr. Orr admitted that the members of the league were very anxious regarding the whereabouts of their director and yesterday orders were given out to get in touch with King in any manner possible. Davis E. Cruea, Pittsburgh superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, was asked to help locate Mr. King by the members of the Citizens' League board. Mr. Cruea was a co-worker of King when the latter was working in the West before coming to Pittsburgh and Mr. Cruea is familiar with King's friends in the West.

Dr. Orr denied rumors that the Citizens' League is in any immediate danger of disbanding or discontinuing the work of law enforcement.

"Rumors that some of our investigators have been 'reached' by persons indicted through the work of the league have reached me," Dr. Orr said, "but as far as we have investigated, there is nothing more than just the rumors. There has been talk that investigators have said that their evidence is not strong enough to bring convictions and that some of the evidence was faked. We have investigated, and as far as we can learn the evidence is good enough to make a solid case," President Orr said.

IDENTIFY 2 AS BANDITS CHASED WITH CHAIR

Two youths were identified today as the holdup men whom Dr. W. Alvin drove from his brother's drug store at 5503 Walnut street with a chair recently after they had attempted to cow those in the store with two revolver shots. Identification of the youths, police say, may solve a number of drug store holdups in this district recently.

The prisoners said they are William Ranger, 22, and Herbert Noland, 20, of Akron, O. They were identified first by bertillon records as members of a gang of Akron thieves after they had been arrested for insulting a woman here.

In addition to the Alvins, J. B. Cullen who owns a drug store at Center avenue and Neville street, and Louis Bluestone, clerk in a drug store at 526 Shady avenue, identified the pair as the persons who had held up their stores recently.

DEFENSE WINS POINT IN FALL-SINCLAIR TRIAL

By GEORGE E. DURNO, (International News Service Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—The defense took a prosecution witness today in the Fall-Sinclair oil conspiracy trial, and materially strengthened one of its chief contentions through an adroit cross-examination.

A. W. Ambrose, former chief petroleum technologist of the Interior Department, who only yesterday had told court and jury that former Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall was the dominant figure in leasing Teapot Dome naval oil reserve to Harry F. Sinclair, was turned over to George P. Hoover, Sinclair attorney, for examination.

From Ambrose, Hoover drew the statement that he, as an expert, had advised Fall there was grave danger of drainage in Teapot Dome as a result of the operation of wells on 6,400 acres of adjoining land in the Salt Creek field.

The defense contends Fall leased the reserve to Sinclair because of the drainage fear and not because of a quarter million dollar bribe, as charged by the government.

FARRELL TO GET JOB

day the late J. P Morgan invited him to his home for lunch. He talked with Farrell for two hours. But never once did the famous banker disclose the motive behind the invitation. Two weeks later Mr. Morgan again summoned Farrell. This time the greeting was:

"You are to be the next president of the Steel Corporation."

The intervening years have abundantly proved the wisdom of Mr. Morgan's choice.

To the public Judge Gary was the Steel Corporation and the Steel Corporation was Judge Gary. But throughout the steel industry James A. Farrell for years has been accorded unstinted credit for the smooth, capable, profitable operation of the vast enterprise, with its world-wide ramifications and its big fleet of ships. Mr. Farrell's name heretofore has not been a household word throughout the land, because he scrupulously refrained from entering the limelight.

Judge Gary always was the sole spokesman for the corporation. He was ideally fitted for the role just as Farrell was ideally fitted to direct the actual operation of the many-sided organization and to handle its 275,000 workers.

Jim Farrell's career is an inspiration to the willing but discouraging to those who hope to strike an easy route to the top. His climb from laborer to the presidency of America's first billion dollar—now a two-and-a half billion dollar—corporation was not accomplished without intense industriousness by night as well as by day, self-education from books and an ample curriculum in the university of hard knocks.

Munching his lunch with other laborers inside the mill gates and during his other intimate association with workmen in his early days, young Farrell had abundant opportunity to study human nature in the raw.

Before he was old enough to vote he was foreman in charge of all the men in the Pittsburgh Oliver Wire Company.

Systematic study at home and avid study of every phase of the iron and steel industry that came under his eye won him his objective; his company appointed him salesman, with the whole of the United States as his territory. Another three years found him salesmanager, with office headquarters in New York of the important Pittsburgh Wire Company of Braddock, Pa., at 30 he was general manager of the whole organization.

The veteran John D. Rockefeller's favorite maxim is:

"Try to turn every disaster into an opportunity."

The panic of 1893 prostrated the steel industry, the first year Farrell became general manager. The outlook for his company, as for other companies, was black. Buyers couldn't place orders until the storm should pass.

Farrell refused to be licked. His international vision enabled him to see opportunities not within the mental range of other steel men. By exerting super-human effort he sold one-half of the plant's output abroad before December 31. This unique feat won him fame throughout the steel industry.

Then came the era of consolidation. When John W. Gates and others founded the American Steel and Wire Company in 1899, Farrell's mill was taken over. Farrell was made foreign sales agent of the consolidation. The United States Steel Corporation was organized two years later, with Farrell's company as one of its principal subsidiaries, and Farrell was recognized as the one man best fitted to develop the foreign end of the billion-dollar creation.

Of course, the foreign business grew. It grew so much that in 1903 the United States Steel Products Company was incorporated to coordinate the overseas activities of all the subsidiaries. It was put under Farrell's charge. What happened?

Foreign sales of $31,000,000 in 1904 were increased to $90,000,000 by 1912, to $200,000,000 in the war year of 1916, and still run fully $3,000,000 weekly.

From the foregoing the stockholders of the United States Steel Corporation should feel that their interests will be faithfully looked after with James A. Farrell at the helm.

avenue, Millvale. After the accident the occupants of the cab fled. They are said to have taken the machine from M. J. Stack, of 4416 Center avenue, driver, a few minutes before in Thirty-eighth street.

After the accident the occupants of the cab fled, but a few hours later Cornelius Murphy of 409 Fortieth street was arrested. He told police the machine had been driven by Martin Murray of 3807 Foster street, who was arrested later.

James B. Majestic, of 4701 Hatfield street, and Mrs. Verne Wilson, 34, of 1332 Fayette street, were injured, perhaps fatally, about the same time when a Western avenue street car plowed into their machine at Manhattan street and Pennsylvania avenue, North Side. They were taken to the Presbyterian Hospital, where physicians said Mrs. Wilson had suffered a fractured skull and Majestic probable internal injuries.

All morning trains entering this district were ordered on reduced speed and street cars operated on a slow schedule.

The body of a man run down by a cab late Saturday night after he had fallen in front of the machine in Virgin alley, and who died in the Allegheny General Hospital, was identified as Walter Eisbenbeis, 47, of 831 Stismon street, by a brother, Louis R. Eisbenbeis. Edward P. Sherbon, cab driver, is being held pending an inquest.

guised anxiety and uncertainty. The cabinet has held several momentous meetings this morning in the bedroom of Premier Bratiano, who is indisposed.

To add a dramatic touch to the situation today was little King Michael's sixth birthday and the event was celebrated at a solemn service in the Patriarchal Cathedral in the presence of the foreign ministers and the diplomatic corps, while the entire country seethed with interest in the movement in behalf of the young king's father.

News of the discovery of the plot came with the arrest of M. Manoilescu, under secretary of finance in the later Averescue cabinet, on charges of plotting to re-establish Carol upon the throne which he renounced almost two years ago.

PEASANTS OPPOSE BRATIANO

Manoilescu, in whose possession the police stated were found many compromising letters to and from Carol, who is now living in a suburb of Paris, will be tried by a military courtmartial.

At a meeting of the National Peasants Party held at Ploesti yesterday, President Michalache, who is a member of Parliament, declared open warfare upon the Bratiano regime, and the Rumanian leader, who so often has been described as a "dictator," is believed to be facing one of the greatest crises in his long political career.

On Thursday, Premier Bratiano will demand from all the political groups in Parliament a declaration of their attitude toward the present situation.

H. H. real laugh in many hours. Capt. Goos is a large, broad-shouldered man. You can imagine the picture George made in his clothes.

The trousers hung in huge folds and the vest resembled an empty clothes bag.

The captain apologized profusely for not being able to supply me with woman's apparel, but I was quite dry and comfortable, thanks to my rubber life suit.

The steward prepared a good warm bath for me and after having laved myself, I tumbled into bed.

For the next seven hours I was dead to the world. Only when I climbed into bed did I fully realize how utterly exhausted I was. I closed my eyes and was immediately asleep in the leaden oblivion of exhaustion.

Seven hours later I awoke and joined the captain and George. I found the latter looking much refreshed and rested after his long sleep.

After we had had a nice chat with the captain we were served with an excellent meal consisting of soup, roast beef and potatoes. We had eaten no food during the flight except beef broth and coffee. This meal certainly tasted good to us.

The steward had arranged the table very, very daintily. A vase of artificial flowers was placed in the middle of the table.

The captain explained that the steward was very proud of his achievement. I was the first woman ever to have been aboard the Barendrecht and the steward wanted to make me feel at home.

After dinner George and I started making notes of the flight. The log had been lost at sea, but we had no difficulty in remembering every little incident. Even little details like the time were fresh in our minds.

From those little notes the story has been written. I have been trying to give it to you as accurately as possible.

As we wrote we did not seem to be on board the Barendrecht, but back on board the American Girl living over again the experiences through which we had gone together. They will forever burn in my memory. Even now it is hard to realize that my beautiful plane is really gone and that we could not continue in it to our destination, as we had so feverently hoped we would.

AWAKEN FROM DREAM

It seems as if we have awakened from a wonderful dream. It is heart-breaking to know that we were only 600 miles from Finister, Spain, and could not go further.

If we could only have gone on to Finister and had our oil leaks repaired we could have gone on sailing into Paris and I should have been the happiest girl alive.

Yet when I realize that the same fate which claimed so many other fliers might have been ours also I am thankful and happy to be alive today. I have tried to reconcile myself with that thought. We can always get another plane (though never one that can take the place of my American Girl) but we have only one life.

It is agony to realize that [illegible] should be stopped here when [illegible] hope burned in me that I would be the first woman to cross the Atlantic by air.

After finishing our notes, George and I realized suddenly that seven hours was not enough sleep after having been awake for 35 hours, and with very little sleep the night before I left New York. So again we retired to our rooms for the night.

I slept but fitfully. I could not help dreaming and tossing in my slumber. Little incidents and pictures of the flight kept recurring to me.

WANTED TO CRY

I awoke several times and lay like one stunned. To think that our air voyage was really ended. I think if I could have cried I would have felt better. But my grief was too deep for crying. I was like someone who had lost something precious. I could not sleep that night, for I was far too deeply disappointed.

When I awoke the next morning it was late, so I hurriedly dressed so that I might join George and Capt. Goos, who were waiting in the dining salon.

We had our breakfast and then walked out on deck for some fresh air.

The sea was much calmer and the sun was shining down.

It was a wonderful day and a glorious one for flying. It seemed impossible for it to be so bright and clear when only a few hours before it had been dreadfully black and stormy. But the beauty of bad things and the tragedy of good ones is that they cannot last forever, so we were destined to have good sailing weather to Horta.

We spent most of our day in writing.

Gee, but a good bed looks inviting sometimes. Often the temptation to crawl in was too much. I think I must have spent most of my time aboard the Barendrecht in bed. It seemed that I never could get enough sleep. It had been so long since I had felt free to lie in bed that I took advantage of every opportunity—and then was not satisfied.

For six months, during the day and for most of the night we had been working, making preparations for our flight. During that time when I rested I felt that I was cheating. But now there was no cheating, for there was nothing to do but sleep, and sleep, and sleep. Never had I enjoyed sleeping as much as I did aboard the good old Barendrecht.

FARE WELL ON SHIP

Capt. Goos was ever so thoughtful and considerate of us. He did everything in his power to make us comfortable. The steward prepared dainty little dishes for us. The crew seemed most anxious to do something—anything, just to make us feel we were welcome.

Our hearts went out to those kind men. We learned what real people the Dutch are.

We could never repay the captain who changed his course to take us to Horta, those who risked their lives for us in that little lifeboat and the steward who worked faithfully until late at night to present us with some little surprise. They are a great people and we shall never forget them.

If we could all be so utterly unselfish as those men were what a wonderful place this old world would be.

Each night before dinner the chief engineer and the first mate would join Capt. Goos in a customary glass of red wine. It was great to sit and listen to them tell of life at sea.

We were disappointed when the captain told us that they talked of their worst experiences. But from the look of their faces—stern and lined—we were sure that locked up within them were some very thrilling stories.

After having gone through one terrific storm at sea ourselves we could appreciate their quietness. One would much prefer to keep those dreadful experiences to himself. There was pain in repetition and remembering.

We landed at Horta two days after being rescued on the fifteenth of October.

Several small launches, bringing people from shore came out to meet us. Among them were Fernando da Coata, civil governor of Horta; Mr. George I. Mackey, the Western Union manager, and many others. There were innumerable photographers and reporters.

We posed for several pictures in a downpour of rain and after bidding the captain and the crew of the Barendrecht good bye were taken ashore and escorted to the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. Mackey.

PATCH IS ACCUSED

in investments made with and notes signed for Patch.

His accusations against his erstwhile partner came as a surprise to friends of both, inasmuch as they had been closely associated for six years in numerous ventures until Patch had come to be known as McKean's "right hand man."

CONFIDENTIAL AIDE

McKean frequently referred inquirers to Patch when matters of the former's private affairs were at issue.

Patch conducted the insurance brokerage firm of Patch & Co. in this city. McKean was interested in this venture. Patch also maintained an insurance office in New York.

His interests here were divided between his insurance business and "Patches," a national weekly publication which he founded and which, in its last issue recently, announced that it would be "suspended temporarily."

The editorial and business offices of the magazine and the insurance offices all were housed in an expensive suite in a central bank building here.

The suite also included a private office for McKean, but he rarely visited it.

It was stated after Patch's arrest that McKean had entrusted large sums of money to Patch for investment. McKean, it was declared, trusted Patch's business judgment and on the latter's advice placed his money in many different businesses. He had not invested in "Patches," however, it was said.

HAD NEW YORK HOME

Patch, who is 38 years old, maintained two residences. While in this city he lived at the Penn Athletic Club, of which he is a member. In New York he maintained a Park avenue apartment.

His interest in Philadelphia, in addition to the insurance brokerage firm, include virtual control of an automobile sales agency. He also is president of a Detroit concern manufacturing a safety razor sharpening device. This business is said to have been marvelously successful and is reputed to be earning him more than $6,000 a week.

McKean has written several novels and a play, the theme of which is "fashionable life" in Philadelphia. He was one of three heirs to his father's fortune of $10,000,000.

TEN MORE ELECTION OFFICIALS CALLED

Ten more election board members in the recent primaries were summoned before Alderman A. M. Maloney for a preliminary hearing late today on charges of fraud and conspiracy.

The boards of the Fourth and Twentieth districts of the Twenty-first Ward were those scheduled to appear. Those from the Fourth District are Elizabeth Hamon, Leo Miller, Eleanor B. Vogel, James Martin and H. H. Dumont. Those from the Twentieth District are Benjamin Foster, William Trautetter, Margaret Ring, Charles Fuller and John Blair.

With the Allegheny County Elections' Association settled in permanent headquarters in the House building, its officials today began on their "long, steady pull toward our real objectives" by stirring the slumbering fires of primary election prosecutions while the relentless mill of the Ward Bonsall recounting committee continued its work of grinding out additional evidences of false counts and fraud.

One more ballot box, that of the First district, Nineteenth Ward, was to be brought in for recount today, a petition for its impounding having been presented in court yesterday. Additional petitions for other boxes also were scheduled to be presented during the day. Yesterday saw the recount of the Second district, Fourth Ward, finished, although the committee's report on this showed no great evidence of fraud.

The Elections' Association, in a statement issued after its permanent headquarters had been decided upon yesterday, declared that prosecution of primary frauds already discovered would be taken up immediately. The statement was lavish in praise for Assistant District Attorney Andrew T. Park for his prosecution of the Golden election fraud case last week which resulted in two convictions.

WIFE FILES NEW SUIT AGAINST KRESGE

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—The marital dispute between Sebastian S. Kresge, millionaire chain store head, and his wife, Mrs. Doris M. Kresge, the former Doris Mercer of Pittsburgh, became further involved today as the result of a new action for divorce filed here by Mrs. Kresge.

The divorce action followed a suit for separation which Mrs. Kresge filed some time ago. Kresge had previously sued his wife for a divorce in Michigan, but recently agreed to withhold proceedings in that case pending a final determination as to the jurisdiction of the New York courts over his matrimonial litigation.

The new divorce action was disclosed when a notice was filed by Olcutt, Ernst & Ernst, attorneys for Mrs. Kresge, that the case was to be placed on the calendar for November 7. Notice was given by Max D. Steuer, counsel for Kresge, that the case would be defended and that dismissal of the action would be sought.

The attorneys declined to disclose the details in the divorce action or the charges made by Mrs. Kresge.

No complaint in the action has yet been filed. Attorneys for Mrs. Kresge, however, said it was served recently on the defendant.

OPEN EXHIBIT OF HOMESTEAD'S INDUSTRIES

Homestead District Week, an industrial exposition sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs, got under way last night at a great community gathering in Stahl's Garden.

Industrial and business leaders of the district told of Homestead's contribution to industry and what is expected of the borough in future years. Community singing, band concerts and the presentation of silver cups to the Library swimming team and two champion baseball teams concluded the first day's activities.

Harry A. Kraeling, president of the Standard Steel Propeller Company, manufacturer of the propeller on Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's trans-Atlantic plane, told of the growth of Homestead's newest industry and prophesied a prosperous future for the borough. In addition to Kraeling speakers included Harry F. Wahr, president of the Mesta Machine Company; Reid Kennedy, president of the Monongahela Trust Company; Welter F. Schuchman, president of the Homestead Valve Manufacturing Company, and John S. Oursler, superintendent of the Homestead Steel Works.

Practically every business house in the borough has a window display, illustrating some phase of Homestead's industries. Bettis Field, McKeesport, is represented with an exhibition of aerial photographs, an air-cooled Nome motor, the first ever shown in this district, and a number of airplane models.

A propeller similar to the one used by Lindbergh is on display in the showroom of Nuss Brothers garage and numerous other business houses are exhibiting other products of the Homestead district.

A banquet will be held in the Elks Temple tomorrow night and an attractive program of entertainment has been arranged. Thomas Dunn, president of the Consolidated Ice Company and a vice president of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, will speak and souvenirs, provided by business men of the borough will be distributed.

The Halloween parade and celebra- n Friday night will be the crown- demonstration of the week. borate floats depicting the growth istory of the borough are being made ready for one of the biggest processions the town has ever witnessed and splendid prizes have been provided for individuals in costume as well as the floats. This big affair, omitted last year in order to make the Armistice Day celebration a bigger success, is being staged by the Halloween association of the borough in co-operation with the Chamber of Commerce.

An epigram contest, an essay contest and a window display contest are being held throughout the week. The epigram contest is open to all, cash prizes having been provided for those discovering the epigram of five sentences and 49 words, displayed in as many store windows during the week. The epigram deals with the responsibility of each resident to the district and is a statement of its present position and a prophecy for the future.

The merchants are competing in the window display contest. Prizes will be awarded by a committee of judges for the best displays. Public school pupils are competing in the essay contest, their subjects being window displays during the exposition.

Bomb Wrecks Home Of Prosecutor

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 25.—The home of Assistant District Attorney Charles J. Mondo was wrecked by a bomb early today. Mondo was out of the city. Other members of the family were hurled out of their beds by the impact of the blast, which was heard for blocks.

The entire front of the house was blown in and windows in dwellings several blocks away were broken by the force of the explosion. The inmates of the house, while badly shaken up and bruised, were not injured seriously.

Two theories are being investigated by the police. The first is that the bombing was an act of political enemies, and the second that it was done by friends of persons who recently have been prosecuted by Mondo.

SEE THE SHOW AT GAYETY

Over 500 newsboys who sell the Sun-Telegraph made a pilgrimage to the Gayety Theater last night and, as guests of the newspaper they serve, saw the new musical comedy "Jiggs, Maggie and Dinty."

The three leading characters with Charles Bragg (left) manager of the theater, met the boys who watch them every night in the Sun-Tele cartoon.

"Maggie" is played by Beatrice Harlow, "Dinty" by James Connors and "Jiggs" by Peter Curley. An additional 500 boys will see the show tonight and a similar number Wednesday night.

QUAKE JARS ALASKA; NO DEATHS

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 25.—(AP.)—Alaska congratulated itself today on surviving an earthquake of unusual intensity without the loss of life and with but little damage.

The southeastern part of the territory was given a vigorous shaking about 7 o'clock yesterday morning in a seismic disturbance apparently centering in the ocean bottom several hundred miles off the mainland.

The temblor, which disrupted cable communication, broke windows and dishes and frightened residents of several towns, had diminished in force by the time it struck the mainland.

Had an earthquake of such violence occurred in a region more densely populated than Alaska, seismologists pointed out, the loss of life undoubtedly would have been heavy. The tremor was of sufficient force to temporarily put out of commission seismographs in many parts of the United States.

A prediction by Dr. Thomas A. Jaggar, director of the Mount Kilauea Volcano Laboratory on the Island of Hawaii, that a tidal wave would occur in Hawaiian waters a few hours after the Alaska quake, had not materialized early today.

News of the quake, however, had its effect on the Japanese fishermen of Hilo. Dispatches from there said the fishermen, on hearing of the temblor, rushed into the outer harbor, spread their nets and brought up whole boatloads of strange deep sea fish. They expressed the belief that undersea heat incidental to the disturbance had caused the fish to seek higher and cooler water.

POSTMAN SUES FOR DIVORCE

Henry R. Bollman, postman in Glenshaw, charged his wife with extreme cruelty to himself and his children by a former marriage and with being "the dirtiest housekeeper I ever knew" in divorce proceedings filed before Judge Ambrose B. Reid. She made him do all the housework, he said, and pack her lunch while she dressed to go to her duties as school teacher. He sought unsuccessfully to put on the stand a girl who, he alleged, his wife had permanently scarred by punishment in the schoolroom.

Poor Mrs. Grayson, to save wear and tear on bidding her friends goodbye so much, won't be on the ship on its next two starts.

For the first time in the history of the American Legion, a woman has been elected a permanent commander. Mrs. Julia Wheelock, formerly of New York City, has been chosen head of the department of Italy, consisting of the Rome and Naples posts, totaling about 2,000 Legionnaires. Mrs. Wheelock, socially prominent, and active in Legion affairs in Italy ever since her residence in Rome, served as a yeoman in the navy, holding an honorable discharge. Photo shows Mrs. Wheelock, who succeeds Maj. Robert C. Richardson, Jr., military attache to the American embassy in Rome, as veterans' head.

Frayne, chief of the intelligence unit, prohibition department, that the still had been removed October 16 from the Mifflin township police station. Because of the theft of the still the township commissioners suspended A. W. Batchen, chief of the police department. Gehlert implicated Policeman Q. O. Finley in the removal of the still, according to the prohibition officers.

Insurance Against Engine Repair

The first thing to do before making any extensive repairs or adjustments is to have the ignition checked and the spark plug looked over.

Many times expensive repair bills are incurred and it is afterwards found that all that was needed was a new set of spark plugs. This because spark plugs in time deteriorate and need to be renewed.

Lindbergh, Chamberlin, Byrd and other great flyers staked their lives on AC Spark Plugs in their epoch-making flights. You, too, can have the same spark plugs. See your dealer for the right type and size for your engine.

Bite yourself an Alphabet

Pretzeleers bite their own degrees

You don't have to go to college to get a degree. Just pretzel. You can get an A. B. in three bites—two for the A, one for the B. A Ph. D. requires several more bites and one more pretzel. Like this:

People who spend four years crunching on Greek verbs can get more crunch out of pretzels because they're crunchier. They're crisp as a college yell and brittle as good intentions to study hard......And pretzel graduates are always worth their salt because pretzels are so nice and salty.

Pretzeleers always eat O-So-Guds when drinking ginger ale. Pretzels teach soup or salad or dessert to taste better.... Eat them before going to bed or give them to the youngsters in between meals.

Pretzels are always au fait—if you know what that means. You will, if you insist on O-So-Gud Pretzels made by the Uneeda Bakers... Oh yes! They're easy to digest, too.

O-SO-GUD PRETZELS

Bite right and you can spell anything with the big O-So-Guds. They're full of twists, turns and holes.

HOUNDS TO TRAIL PASTOR'S WIFE

WOMAN MISSING 5 DAYS SOUGHT IN DEEPWOOD

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—Bloodhounds, used in trailing escaped prisoners from the district workhouse at Occoquan, Va., may be put on the trail of Mrs. Anna Ramsey Forbush of Canadaigua, N. Y., who disappeared last Wednesday night, it was announced today.

Request was made of M. M. Barnard, superintendent of the institution, for the use of the hounds.

Meantime, an intensified search for the missing woman, under the direction of her husband, the Rev. Descomb Forbush, continued today.

A woman believed to be Mrs. Forbush was seen going into the deep woods of Rock Creek Park yesterday afternoon, and so sure is her husband that it was his wife that he had a searching party set out for the park early today to hunt for her.

The town of Canadaigua is rushing reinforcements to the search.

Mrs. Forbush, victim of a "solitude complex" that drives her to seek peace in lonely woods, has been missing five nights.

Doughboys Duped By Binoculars; Plain Glass

By Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—More than 800 Legionnaires returned from France yesterday on the Cunard liner Carona. Most of them were peeved because they had bought binoculars in Paris and found that the supposed magnifying glass was just plain glass. The binoculars were quoted at $25, but the boys got them for $10 "because they were Americans."

EX-UNION MATES FIGHT SHIELDS

In spite of the fact that George B. Shields, Independent party candidate for County Commissioner, is a former member of the organization, Painters' Local Union No. 6, last night unanimously indorsed County Commissioners Joseph G. Armstrong and E. V. Babcock.

A statement issued by Joseph Zowler, president; John Riley and David Cawley, business agents; Harvey Maggs, treasurer, and James Tooney, secretary, said in part:

"After studying the past performances of Charles C. McGovern and George B. Shields, we don't know of any achievements by which they have benefited the taxpayers. Mr. Shields was formerly a member of the Painters' Union and we failed to find in our relations with him that he had any executive ability to warrant him to aspire, in our opinion, to any such important position."

"I thought it was junk," Patrolman George A. Scarpino testified when arraigned before Magistrate George H. England, Central Police Court this morning accused of robbing the fire swept radio store of Ludwig Hummel Company, 927 Liberty avenue. HOMESTEAD COUNCILMEN OFF TO PRISON CELLS

2 BOOTLEGGERS IN GANG GOING TO ATLANTA

Three of five Homestead councilmen and two bootleggers, convicted in the Homestead whisky conspiracy case, today started for the Federal prison at Atlanta, Ga., to begin their sentences. The three councilmen—Edwin Klein, president; John Richards and James L. Oates—are to serve one year. The bootleggers—Joseph Frank and Sam Stein—are under sentence of 15 months. Two other councilmen have taken appeals.

Four other prisoners are in the party. They are Jesse King, former state policeman, sentenced 18 months for accepting a bribe and impersonating a federal officer; Peter J. Hanlon, of Monessen, former deputy collector of internal revenue, sentenced one year for embezzling income tax funds; Stanley Dobkowski, Erie, bootlegger, 21 months, and H. Y. Bedford, Negro, robbing a postoffice, three years.

The party was in charge of United States Marshal James C. McGregor.

VOLUNTEERS OF AMERICA COUNCIL TO MEET HERE

Several hundred officers of the Volunteers of America from all parts of Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio, Western New York, New Jersey, Maryland, Delaware and the District of Columbia will arrive in Pittsburgh tomorrow for the annual council of the Central Regiment of the organization. A reception and dinner will be tendered them in the Volunteer building, 724 East Diamond street. Business sessions will be held Thursday and Friday. The council will close with a public rally Sunday night. The council precede a celebration of the tenth anniversary of the coming of Maj. and Mrs. Frank H. Wise to Pittsburgh.

SAYS COUNTY IS GOOD AS EVER UNDER G. O. P.

There has never been a time when someone was not crying "The county is going to the demnition bow-wows," declared former Auditor General A. W. Powell, speaking today at the noon meeting in the Republican headquarters, Hotel Henry.

"In spite of that cry," he continued, "the county has grown and progressed and its growth and that of the state of Pennsylvania are inseparably bound up with Republican policies and Republican administration of public affairs. Candidates nominated and elected by the Republican party have always held to its constructive policies. Its permanency when compared with ephemeral political movements has bred a responsibility which has inspired its leaders to attain new ideals in constructive policy."

Declaring that he was active in the progressive movement that broadened the primary law of 1906, Gen. Powell said the law was supported with "the distinct understanding that once a primary was held those who participated in it would abide by the result and bow to the will of the majority."

"The Constant Nymph," As Play Extracts Laughter and Tears From Sordid Musical Bohemia

GEORGE SEIBEL

WHEN Margaret Kennedy wrote "The Constant Nymph," the best first novel of recent years, it was inevitable that a drama would come out of it. There were all the elements—Sanger's Circus to provide uproarious comedy and Tessa's love story to supply tender romance and a tense triangular problem. The play, presented in the Nixon Theater last night, meets all the specifications. It has a larger cast than the average producer is addicted to, and it has a series of stage settings that also make heavy demands upon scene-shifters, but what of that? The play's the thing—and here we have a play.

But it is not a play in the ordinary acceptation of the word. It is more like life than any artificial arrangement of plot, with clash and climax and catastrophe. Here are a dozen characters delineated with many subtle touches, and out of these characters flows their own tragic destiny. Here is an atmosphere where morals and manners alike are lost in the abandon of something called art. In this fog, in this tide, the little human bubbles drift and toss about to find happiness, and when they find that, it too is a bubble that bursts.

Lewis Dodd is played with great sincerity by Claude Rains, who smokes his pipe as if it belonged to him and displays his temperament as if he belonged to it. Miss Beatrix Thomson gave hoydenish vim to the part of Tessa, shading off into a deep wistfulness and ending in a note of wild hysteria. Miss Betty Pratt, as the aristocratic Florence Churchill, made the third corner of the triangle with appropriate frigidity and pride. As for the other characters, suffice it to say that all were characterized with wonderful naturalness.

Few plays present such formidable difficulties in the ensemble or team work required; here these difficulties are solved to perfect satisfaction. The rehearsal in the first act and the party in the second act test the ability of the most adept stage manager. There is no fault to be found with them.

Especially good work was done by Gloria May Kelly as the brat Susan, by Elwyn Harvey as Linda, by Lois Brown as Paulina, by Louis Sorin as Jacob Birnbaum, by William Hallman as Roberto, and by Sidney Paxton as Charles Churchill. They all looked and played just as if they had stepped out of the novel—indeed, it is rarely that a dramatization sticks so closely to the book.

Whether this is responsible for the coldness of the audience would make an interesting inquiry. For that audience was most unresponsive. Did they see so many people of queer habits and ways that interest was diffused and sympathies could not focus upon any point? Or were these people presented with so much truth to life that applause was withheld because they did not seem to be acting? It is a question in crowd psychology. Certainly the audience was interested and amused, but it did not show any appreciation in the orthodox way of audiences. That is a pity, for much hard work has gone into this production. Besides, it is so faithful to Miss Kennedy's fine work of fiction that such fidelity deserves better recognition.

Talented Women -:- Who Appear -:- Week's Bill

Laura Hope Crews, appearing in "The Silver Cord," Sidney Howard's dramatic comedy attraction in the Pitt.

"SILVER CORD" REAL PLAY

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS.

"The Silver Cord," Sidney Howard's play—a real play—which the Theater Guild presented in New York for a season, was shown in the Pitt last night and proved to be a means of again demonstrating the brilliance of Laura Hope Crews as a comedian. More—it gave the talented Miss Crews dramatic opportunities of which she made the most—"most" meaning emotionalism and repression so deftly blended that the actress was forgotten in the revelation of character. Can more be said for art?

The title of the play symbolizes mother love—the bond that unites the maternal heart with its own blood. In the case of Mrs. Phelps, the role played by Miss Crews it is a selfish love, a love that is so intense and so consuming in its fires that it destroys all sense of balance. Mrs. Phelps is so self centered in her affections for her sons that she is unwilling to share their love with any other women. She pretends to be the most unselfish mother in the world. She lies and deceives, all the while smiling and asserting the purity of her motives and her great concern for the welfare of others. She even lies to her two sons, Robert, the younger, and David, the elder, telling each, when alone with one, that he is her favorite, the other being "like his father."

Her schemes and lies to retain her hold upon them have a tragic effect upon the lives of the three as well as the young women loved by the sons. They separate the younger son from Hester, to whom he was betrothed, and all but disunite David and Christina, the young wife he had proudly brought home to meet the "greatest mother in the world." Only the discernment of Christina, who saw where the trouble lay, saves their lives from being wrecked as was the happiness of Robert and Hester. The climax comes when she leaves the house and David, torn between filial duty and love for his wife, follows. The silver cord has a broken strand but a frayed one remains and the mother lavishes upon Robert a frenzied and hungry affection as the curtain descends.

There was little for the men to do in "The Silver Cord," the three women of the cast taking all the honors. Miss Crews shaded her portrait of Mrs. Phelps with exemplary skill. Persuasive one moment, plaintive the next, intermittently proclaiming the virtues of old fashioned motherhood, she was the picture of such motherhood outwardly, but a scheming and sinister plotter underneath. Pamela Simpson, who played the part of Hester, aroused the audience to long-continued applause for her simulation of emotional hysteria after she had been jilted by Robert, the less admirable son of the designing mother. Vera Allen was convincing in her characterization of the outspoken Christina, whose scientific schooling brought forth a biologic explanation for the streak in the make-up of Mrs. Phelps an explanation which shocked the latter and startled the audience. Melvin Douglas and Jack Livesey, respectively, played David and Robert. They did very well in the parts that are far from being "fat."

WATSON GIRLS IN ALDINE

These talented laugh-getters, Fanny and Kitty Watson, are keeping things humming this week in Loew's Aldine. Fanny—she's the big girl—and her sister establish a record for the number of laughs they crowd into a brief 15 minutes. Another feature of the bill is the Batchelor-Jamieson Revue, an act of dance and song. The Paul Brachard Troupe "is there" when it comes to physical endurance. Frank Braidwood, billed as "the cowboy baritone," entertains with his "uke" and a series of songs. Another bright spot on the bill is the Five Harmaniacs. They also are all dressed up like cowboys and seemingly stop at nothing when it comes to instrumental music—a stove pipe and a saw squeaking out harmonious notes under their adept direction. A pleasing, Cinderella-like story, concerning a little New York tenement girl, who is adopted by a trio of foster fathers—an Italian, a Scotchman and a Jew—is presented in "Sally in Our Alley," the photoplay attraction. Shirley Mason and Richard Arlen head the cast. Short screen features are on the bill.

Comedy, "Jiggs," Offered in Gayety

"Jiggs and Maggie and Dinty," which caused much laughter in the Gayety yesterday, details the comedy experiences of Jiggs Mahoney, his wife, Maggie; his pal, Dinty Moore; daughter, Kitty, and numerous others in America and Spain. Jiggs, supposedly left in America to campaign for council election while his family goes abroad, turns up aboard ship as a stowaway and is put to work. In Spain he gets into other comedy troubles. Peter Curley makes up as a physical counterpart of Jiggs and Beatrice Harlowe is equally realistic as Maggie. The Dinty Moore of Jimmy Connors is more dapper and not quite as dumb as the original. During the action there are singing and dancing by individuals, assisted by a chorus of 18 girls. Juliette Belmont pleased with a violin specialty. There was much applause for some old-time songs, including "The Band Played On," "Throw Him Down McCloskey" and "Maggie Murphy's Home." Principals included Miss Belmont, Kathleen Butler, Paul Rush, Tom Barrett, Tom Riley and William Thompson, most of whom appeared in specialties.

DAVIS PRESENTS MARIONETTES

Everyone was delighted with the ingenious and startling effects introduced by Julius Schichtl in his "Modern Marionettes" in the Davis Theater yesterday. These puppets perform their dances, combats, aerial voyages and other stunts in marvelous fashion and actually seem more agile and flexible than human beings. Another novel element in the bill was "Wopology," presented by Hunter and Percival, in which Italian dialect and rope comedy a la Rogers are amusingly combined. George Lloyd gets fun and melody out of the Riviera Sextet, the home waltz by the husband and wife being particularly laughable. Johnnie Berkes is a mirth-provoking clown of the sad variety, and Ewing Eaton a dancer of real grace and dash. Healy and Cross pleased the audience with duets echoing old-style serenaders, and the Davies Trio gave an exhibition of daredevil motorcycling inside of a paling course. On the screen "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary," with May Robson, Phyllis Haver and Harrison Ford in the principal roles, provided laughter and thrills in plenty. There was also great enthusiasm over the Pitt-Tech football pictures, which show some of the crucial plays.

BILL OF VARIETY IN HARRIS

An entertaining vaudeville bill, that includes a personal appearance of "Miss Pittsburgh," the smiling girl from Carnegie, is being offered in the Harris this week. The local beauty queen displays some new fashion modes and gives a brief talk. She was given enthusiastic receptions at yesterday's performances. "Sally's Alley," a merry musical skit, is the headline attraction. Milt Dill falters through a humorous line of chatter and does fancy feats with the lariat. He is assisted by his sister, and she also knows the ropes. The Blue Grass Four sing themselves into applause. Jackson and Ellis frolic, sing and make faces. Nick Hufford mixes melodies and words into a melange of nonsense that gets the laughs. Jackie Collier and Sister display some novel dance steps. On the screen Tom Mix and Tony go through their usual heroics in a picture, "Tumbling River." Short film features and an organlogue are on the bill.

MARION DAVIES IS WINNER

Marion Davies scores as a comedienne in "The Fair Co-ed," this week's photoplay feature in the Penn. There also is much interest in the appearance of Gertrude Ederle, first woman to swim the English Channel, who presents a swimming act in a glass tank, assisted by the Baker Sisters, diving specialists. "The Fair Co-ed" is a comedy that is almost a farce for laughing qualities, with just enough romance to make it interesting and a bang-up basketball game between two teams of girls. Miss Davies is a student who deserts her team when she is censured after making a perfect long basket shot when she should have passed it to another player—whom she disliked. As she is a good player she becomes unpopular when her team loses an important game. Realizing she had been too headstrong, she admits her fault and goes in for the final game. That game really is as exciting as a regular contest and there were cheers in the audience as Marion won with a good toss in the last minute of the game. There is a realistic college atmosphere in all scenes and much clean and amusing comedy. Miss Ederle demonstrated the swimming strokes of which she is the master. Part of her act is motion pictures of her battle with the channel. Other features of the bill are an Our Gang comedy, "Harvard vs. Yale," an overture accompanied with a film on the life of Beethoven and singing by Virginia Futrelle, also M. G. M. news.

New Burlesque Presented in Academy

A new edition of "Step Lively, Girls," is this week's burlesque in the Academy. Harry Bentley is the principal comic and Elsie Burgere is prominent in vocal and dance specialties. Irene Finley and Julia Arcand scored in character songs. Of course, there is a chorus of young women who enliven the performance. The travesties include "Broadway After Dark," "Automobile Flirts" and "The Dangerous Age." In principal roles are Bud Purcell, Matt Fenner and George Levy. Turkish dances are introduced by a young woman billed as "Rio." Cleora, Nola Edwards and Dolly and girls appear in dancing diversions. The scenic effects are elaborate.

Dancer Featured On Sheridan Stage

Mlle. Andre topped the bill in the vaudeville in the Sheridan Square yesterday and danced her way into favor. "Revue De Paris" is the title of the act and the Parisienne Orchestra and Jaimie Del Val assisted the star. George Jessel was the screen star in "Sailor Izzy Murphy," a farce which has to do with the adventures of a peppy young perfumery salesman. Polly and Oz, in "Sense Songs," had something novel to offer. Dayton and Rancy, in "Kalamboor," meaning a jumble of words, were a comedy feature. McCarthy and Sternard's songs and chatter amused. The Keeler Sisters in a pleasing act, John Edward Mitchell in a new song school organlogue, comedy on the screen and "Football Sense," something new in slow motion photography, completed the bill.

POLA NEGRI PHOTOPLAY IS FEATURED IN OLYMPIC

A new Vitaphone program, headlined by George Jessel, and Pola Negri's new starring picture, "A Woman on Trial," are featured this week in the Olympic. Though the picture is based on that much used—and abused—theme of the woman murderess on trial for her life, the emotional power of Miss Negri's acting makes it a screen play of some worth. The story, laid in Paris, concerns a girl, who, in love with a poor artist, marries a millionaire in an effort to help her artist-sweetheart financially. Later, a frame-up, in an effort to take the woman's child from her, leads to murder. After a sensational trial everyone apparently is happy again. The Vitaphone program, in addition to Jessel, offers an overture by the Vitaphone Symphony Orchestra and a skit by the comedians, Wildey and Sheehan.

YOUR PITTSBURGH

How Well Do You Know It?

The growth of Pittsburgh since the Civil War is probably more closely linked up with the Carnegie Steel Company than with any one specific industry within the great Pittsburgh District. With about twenty individual manufacturing plants and blast furnace groups within the city, and in various localities in Eastern Ohio and Western Pennsylvania, this company has linked up this manufacturing area of the middle west into what is looked upon as the Pittsburgh District, with an annual tonnage that exceeds that of any five shipping points in the world.

The nucleus of this big enterprise was founded by Andrew Carnegie immediately following the Civil War. In 1901 the Carnegie Steel Corporation became merged with the United States Steel Corporation and is today the largest subsidiary of that corporation.

Approximately 50,000 persons are employed—the average monthly payroll exceeding six and a quarter millions of dollars. The annual production is approximately 10,000,000 tons of ingots, from which about seven and a half million tons of finished and semi-finished products are produced.

This is one of a series devoted to some one particular Greater Pittsburgh institution contributing to the growth of this great district.

AUTO CRASH VICTIMS SEEK $100,000

The American Reduction Company was made the defendant in four suits for damages totaling $100,000 in actions filed in Common Pleas Court. The plaintiffs are Gen. Edwards, Joseph Seward, John H. Jefferson and Julius A. Wilkerson, all employed as janitors at the Carnegie Library, Schenley Park.

The plaintiffs allege that while riding in an automobile owned by Seward on last August 25, the machine was struck by a truck of the Reduction company, at Bayard and Craig streets, causing Seward's automobile to be overturned twice and the occupants thrown to the street. Each one of the defendants suffered severe injuries.

REFUSE GUILTY PLEAS IN DEATH OF FATHER

By Universal Service.

WOODSTOCK, Ill., Oct. 25.—William Schumacher, 28-year-old farmer, who confessed to having shot and killed his father to "give peace to his mother," was not allowed to enter his plea of guilty today until he has thought it over.

Next Saturday, Judge Edward D. Shurtleff ruled, the son may plead either guilty or not guilty, but in the interim he must discuss the matter with his relatives and the attorney. The latter—Vincent S. Lumley—was appointed by the judge.

According to Sheriff Cyrus Sanford of McHenry county, young Schumacher did not commit the crime unaided.

"I believe we'll find an accessory before the fact and I'm convinced we'll find one after the fact," he said. "As it stands now it's far from being cleared up."

In his confession the youth had described his father as a "hard man, a wife-beater and a heavy drinker." The son said he had himself been beaten often by him when he was a boy.

Because of the hatred the son said his father felt for him, and principally because of the hard lot of his mother, he decided to put an end to it all when he fired the shotgun in the barn last Thursday night that took the life of the farmer.

ARE YOU a "TOXIC"

Those Dizzy Spells

They're something to take seriously—those dizzy spells and floating specks. They usually indicate a serious poisoned condition of the system which may end in kidney or heart trouble and high blood pressure. It all starts with our abnormal living habits, which put too great a strain upon the vital organs, especially the liver. The liver becoming "limp" or sluggish fails to cleanse the blood of toxic poisons formed in food waste. Then a toxic condition of the system which results in serious diseases of the blood, heart and blood vessels.

It is agreed that occasionally the liver needs a little help. Nothing better for this, as medical men have found, than a little ox gall. Ox gall is a remarkable natural stimulant for the human liver, renewing and restoring it so that it can properly perform its function of purifying the blood and keeping the system clean and wholesome. But you want to be certain of getting the genuine ox gall. This is assured by asking for Dioxol tablets, each of which represents 8 drops of pure ox gall in dainty and tasteless form. Dioxol tablets come in a plainly marked package and cost less than 2c each—at good druggists.

URGE COL. LOGHRY FOR RADIO BOARD

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—Col. Loghry, United States radio engineer for the Ninth Corps Area, has been recommended to President Coolidge by Senator Shortridge for the vacancy on the Federal Radio Commission created by the death of Col. Edward H. Dillon.

RADIO IS BETTER WITH BATTERY POWER

Smooth as cream

THERE is no thick and thin, no rich and lean in the current provided by dry batteries. Right down to the last minute and the last milliampere, it is pure DC, Direct Current, that flows through your radio tubes noiselessly, steadily. No turbid rushing, gurgling, humming. No peak and valley vigor. Battery power is independent power, and radio reception reflects its perfection, its freedom from disturbances from outside.

For the cream of the cream in radio batteries buy the Eveready Layerbilt "B" Battery No. 486, made by a patented exclusive process. Built in layers that occupy all available space inside the case, giving you more active materials than any other battery of equal size, and therefore providing more electricity. Actually the most economical battery you can buy. It really does last longer.

Better Than Whiskey for Colds and Flu

To cut short a cold, cough or the flu and prevent complications, nothing gives such quick and delightful relief as Aspironal the new, scientific "Liquid Cold Remedy" that clears the head; relieves congestion in the nose and throat; checks the excessive flow of mucus; banishes dull headaches and that chilly, achy feeling.

NO INCREASE IN NEXT YEAR'S SCHOOL TAX IS LIKELY

1928 ESTIMATES $712,254 OVER '27

No increase in the school millage for Pittsburgh for this year was in sight today following the conclusion of the first meeting of the Board of Public Education for consideration of the 1928 budget. The school millage was fixed at 11½ in 1922 and has not been increased since.

It will take careful paring this year, however, at budget meetings scheduled for Thursday and several nights a week for the next few weeks, to prevent an increase, but N. R. Criss, chairman of the committee on finance and administration, declared it could be done.

The estimates for 1928 as presented last night total $14,146,241.38, compared with $13,433,987.37 in 1927. This $712,254.01 increase is accounted for largely by provisions for 101 additional teachers at a cost of $216,855, two new principals for the Herron Hill High School and the Regent Square elementary school now under construction; increased janitor cost because of new schools and general salary readjustments.

SEEKS TO HALT EXCAVATION

Annie E. Kent, 432 Collins avenue, filed an affidavit in Common Pleas Court asking for a preliminary injunction to restrain Milton Sadowsky and Joseph Youngo from doing excavating work on the Collins street property. The affiant alleges that she has occupied the Collins street house on a yearly lease for a period of nine years. The premises leased include a strip of land 12 feet wide between the house and Hoeveler street. She alleges that the defendants have started excavating operations with a steam shovel on the strip of land preparatory to erecting a foundation for a new building. She claims this is in violation of her lease and has asked the court for the restraining order. Judge A. B. Reid took the papers and fixed October 28 for a hearing.

Representatives of the South Hills and Chartiers Valley Tunnels and Ferry Street Bridge Association will describe how the proposed tubes to Saw Mill Run boulevard would serve Overbrook, Castle Shannon and neighboring sections as an optional route taking their traffic into the heart of downtown Pittsburgh.

"MY MARYLAND" HIT IN ALVIN

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH.

In the gala atmosphere of a fashionable benefit performance—that of the Pennsylvania College for Women—the widely heralded operetta, "My Maryland," to the tune of martial music and tramping men in blue and gray marched its way into the hearts of first-nighters in the Alvin last night. It is a beautiful production and there is art in the manner of its presentation.

The music of the vehicle is by Sigmund Romberg and the book and lyrics by Dorothy Donnelly. Because of their other successes, "The Student Prince" and "Blossom Time," naturally much was expected from their latest adventure in operettas. Well, if applause means anything, last night's capacity audience found its expectations fully realized.

While saying nice things about "My Maryland," it mightn't be amiss to repeat some of the flattering adjectives that came from theatergoers as they passed through the Alvin lobby after the last curtain: "Marvelous," "lovely," "magnificent," "delightful" and "such gorgeous melody—" whatever that may mean.

The operetta has for its background one of the most appealing periods in American history—that of the Old South. It has for its dramatic atmosphere the most stirring part of that period—Civil War days. And it has for the pivot around which the action of the plot swings, the heroic episode of Barbara Frietchie.

But there is no "yon gray head" to the Barbara "My Maryland" presents. Instead, she is a pretty Southern belle, whose love for a Northern soldier leads her to flaunt Old Glory before Stonewall Jackson and his moving columns of gray.

And could there be a more charming Barbara than Lottice Howell, who originated the role, gives us? We doubt it. Miss Howell has a clear, captivating voice; a keen sense of emotional acting, and a personality of charm.

But it is a satisfactory company all the way—from the principals to the men of the chorus and the women of the ensemble. Betty Byron is cute and alluring as Sue, friend of Barbara's. She is responsible for many of the bright comedy touches the operetta offers. Vocally and histrionically George Rymer, as Capt. Trumbull, the Northern lover, gives a finished performance. Others in the cast, too numerous to deal with separately, who carry their portrayals with enthusiasm and talent, are Walter Tenney, Jean La Marr, Peter Lang, Ralph Derst, Alexander Clark, Clara Palmer, Sally Stembler and Helen Doyle.

The operetta is presented in three acts—each of which, through its music and action, builds to a little climax of its own. The first act ends when a company of Yankees march from Frederick to meet the approaching Confederate Army, singing "Your Land and My Land," the big musical hit of the piece. The applause that greeted this last night was loud and long.

Another musical success of the piece is "The Same Old Silver Moon." One of the dramatic and vocal highlights of the operetta comes in the third act when Barbara pleads for her Northern lover with her father. Miss Howell's singing of "Mother" would melt a sterner heart than Massa Frietchie's.

Throughout the production the singing of the large male chorus is one of the features. And it's a real male chorus—a chorus of men who appear he-men; of men who sing with strong, vibrant voices.

The professional showmen have heralded "My Maryland" as "the greatest operetta." That is letting enthusiasm run wild. But it is a fine thing—this operetta. It's one of the noblest gestures the stage has made in some time.

Pay for Fun, But Won't Pay for Fire Truck

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Oct. 25.—Residents of Perryopolis are willing to pay for entertainment, but when it comes to buying fire protection that is another thing.

For some time the volunteer fire company has been demanding a new fire truck. The hat was passed around, also subscription blanks. When the required amount was not forthcoming a card party was arranged and the fund was boosted to the extent of $100. Thirty tables were in use.

Talmadge Film In Grand Is Comedy

Constance Talmadge's starring vehicle, "Breakfast at Sunrise," opened for a week's run in the Grand yesterday. The story is laid principally in the Hotel Splendide in Paris. It concerns the adventures of two persons disappointed in love who marry to spite their sweethearts. One comedy situation follows another as the two find countless rocks of discord lining their marital path. The role of the girl is convincingly played by Constance Talmadge, whose humor is spontaneous. Don Alvarado, leading man, was effective and good looking. Bryant Washburn, Marie Dressler, Alice White and Pauletta Duval are in the cast. On the stage, Jose and Pepita, Spanish dancers, Jascha Gurewich, saxophone recitalist, and Alexander Akimoff, Russian baritone, presented a pleasing program. Music is by the Grand Orchestra, a screen comedy, Charley Chase in "Bigger and Better Blondes" and the latest world's news complete the bill.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Indian Summer to Make Perfect Setting for Margery Townsend's Marriage to H. C. Fownes, II.

IF INDIAN SUMMER does not prove too fleeting, Margery Townsend could have no more perfect setting for her wedding than that provided by rich-hued autumn with its lavish splashes of red and dull gold on the hillsides.

Margery, you remember, will wed Henry C. Fownes II, son of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Fownes, Jr., of North Highland avenue, on Tuesday, November 15. The wedding will be small, and it will be held in the home of Margery's mother, Mrs. Charles C. Townsend, in Wilkins avenue.

She will have just one attendant, Louise Fownes, sister of the prospective bridegroom, and Robert G. Morrison, Jr., will be best man. Reading the wedding service will be the Rev. Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr, of the Shadyside Presbyterian Church. Following the wedding, to be held at 5:30 o'clock that afternoon, will be a small home reception. Where she will live after the wedding trip, Margery is not yet ready to announce. Although she does not wish any trace of ostentation to enter into her wedding preparations, there will be, of course, some entertainments. The rehearsal dinner will be given by Louise Fownes.

Speaking of autumn brides, there's popular Roberta, daughter of the George Pearson Rhodes, of Wilkins avenue, who will wed Reginald G. Quaile, son of the Rev. and Mrs. George E. Quaile, of Salisbury, Conn., the same date as the Townsend-Fownes wedding, November 15. Roberta and her mother are in New York choosing her wedding gown, I hear. They are expected back Wednesday.

Although fall weddings and debutante plans do seem to monopolize society's attention this autumn, there are to be other events as well. A strictly non-debutante affair will be an interesting tea Mrs. William McKelvy, of Fifth avenue, is planning to give in her home the afternoon of November 9. The affair is in honor of her great-niece, Christine Latimer McKelvy, daughter of the William E. McKelvys, of Westminster place. Friends of both Mrs. McKelvy and Christine will be among the guests.

Mrs. William Terrell Johnson, of Forbes street, returned Friday night from Hot Springs, Va. And now she will be occupied with such things as lists and orders for decorators and caterers, because on November 7, as you know, she will introduce her daughter, Mary Louise, to society at a tea in her home.

Accompanying Mrs. Johnson to Hot Springs were Mrs. Walter F. Schleiter and Mrs. John W. Lawrence.

Two debutantes will be honor guests at an interesting dinner to be given by Mrs. John McCalmont Wilson, of Castleman street. They are Juliet, daughter of the John Hartwell Hillmans, Jr., and Anne Scott, daughter of the J. King Scotts, of Devon road.

A Halloween party was given last night in the home of Miss Mary Helen McComb in Philadelphia avenue, Dormont. Assisting the hostess were Miss Olive Snyder, Miss Katherine McKenna, Miss Louise Sibel and Miss Dorothy Eisenberg.

Before an embankment of palms and ferns, intermingled with autumn flowers arranged in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Philip D. Clifton, in Thornburg, the marriage of their daughter, Miss Jean Burdette Clifton, and William Graves Boggs, son of Dr. Joseph C. Boggs, of Pittsburgh, will be solemnized tonight at 7:30 o'clock by the Rev. Homer A. Flint. The bride, who will be given in marriage by her father, will be gowned in white satin, with yoke and sleeves of lace and a deep flounce around the skirt. Her satin train is edged with lace and caught with pearls, while her lace veil will be held with orange blossoms. She will carry gardenias and lilies of the valley. Mrs. R. R. von Maur, of Davenport, Ia., as matron of honor, and Miss Alice Clifton, of Buffalo, maid of honor, will appear in peach chiffon embrodered with gold and silver, with a deep gold and silver fringe. Their flowers will be chrysanthemums in the fall shades. John P. Carrigan, of Sarasota, Fla., is to be best man and the ushers will include Joseph C. Boggs, Jr., brother of the bridegroom, of Amarillo, Tex.; Robert Munroe III, Edgar Vant and John Rae. A dinner and reception will follow the ceremony, with covers laid for 16 at the bridal table. Mr. and Mrs. Boggs will make their home in California avenue, North Side.

Mrs. Ida McFarlane of Craig street, McKeesport, announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Nettie Glover McFarlane, and John G. King of Dravosburg, which was solemnized last Wednesday night at 6:30 o'clock in the First Presbyterian Church of McKeesport by the Rev. D. C. Whitmarsh. A dinner for 20 followed the ceremony in the bride's home. Mr. and Mrs. King are motoring in Canada and after November 1 will be at home in Craig street, McKeesport.

Barrett, of Pittsburgh, and Mrs. J. B. Sibbet, of Youngstown, O. Mrs. Fairgrieve entertained at bridge Saturday night with five tables in play.

November 22 is the date chosen for the wedding of Miss Mary Dorothea Maloney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Maloney of Beechwood boulevard, and George Franklin McSorley, son of Mr. and Mrs. John McSorley of Wightman street. The ceremony will be performed at 11 o'clock in St. Paul's Cathedral.

Sulzner, accompanied by Mrs. Schaney Crerie, furnished contralto solos and the papers were read by Mrs. C. W. Whitsell, Mrs. B. F. Hunter and Mrs. L. Salome Schucker. Mrs. Whitsell's was a biography of Florence Nightingale and a tribute to her mercy, while in Mrs. Hunter's was detailed the life of Jenny Lind and her far-from-pleasant visit to Pittsburgh in 1851, when she sang in old Masonic Hall before a boisterous audience. Frances Willard, "gentle reformer and practical philanthropist," was the subject of Mrs. Schucker's discussion, in which she recalled that Miss Willard had at one time taught in the old Pittsburgh Female College Association and that "she was lively and full of fun, alert, free and eager minded."

Al Makes Easy Money; Must Return It

By Universal Service.

ALBANY, Oct. 25.—"Just when I thought I had made a little easy money I find that I must return it," says Gov. Smith.

The Governor received a 50-cent fee for acting as a witness in the disbarment proceedings brought by the Albany County Bar Association against Lyman H. Bevans.

Sunday he dropped the coin in the poor box of his church.

Yesterday he was notified that a governor cannot be subpenaed in such cases and he must return the money.

"Now I am trying to dig up 50 cents to give back," he said.

Bird House Club Penn Theater Guests Sat.

Boys and girls of the Sun-Tele Bird House Club, armed with their membership cards, will gather at the new Loew's and United Artists Penn Theater, next Saturday morning, for the inaugural of their 1927-28 birdhouse season.

The necessity of the membership cards is emphasized, for they alone will secure entrance into the Penn Theater for the show.

The motion picture, Buster Keaton's new play, "College," is a rip-roaring comedy of college days. It will begin promptly at 8:45 Saturday morning. The best seats will be available to those who get there first.

The Sun-Tele show at the Penn, arranged in co-operation with L. L. Lanning, manager of the theater, will be the first event on the Bird House program. Other events will follow later.

But remember the membership card. It alone will secure admission.

"ASK ME ANOTHER"
FASHION QUESTIONS
by Sarah Van Rensselaer

My dear Miss Van Rensselaer:

Could you possibly inform me when skirts will return to a decent length and when underthings will be more than shapeless wisps of silk?

Boston, Mass. Miss P. M.

Skirts are a decent length now—it has been proved that the present day skirt is highly moral compared with the long, swishy affair of former decades. Why not wear the Slipper Heel* hosiery which slenderizes the ankle—then, you might enjoy the mode more?

Underthings are not shapeless—Kayser employ expert designers who create the new styles on highly scientific lines to make the figure straight-lined. Perhaps you've been wearing an incorrect style. Try the Kayser bandeau stepin and you'll never want the styles to change.

S. V. R.

Acquire the feminine touch so essential to the new "femininity" mode with Chamoisette* gloves. Of course, you know Chamoisette* looks like kid, wears longer, costs half and washes and dries in a jiffy.

Kayser

Be chic and yet be wise—by wearing Italian* Silk Marvelfit* Bloomers. Chic because they are the very foundation for the smart costume, in colors to match, and designed to cling to the figure. Practical because the Marvelfit* feature gives longer wear and allows for freedom of movement.

Kayser

"SLIPPER HEEL"

In the present day mode the knee and ankle share equally in fashion honors. It is as important to have the sheer textured silk of the hose reach well above the knee as it is to have the ankle appear smartly slender and trim. Slipper Heel* Hosiery, exclusively Kayser, achieves both results.

His cross-country hiking activities have brought "Friday," an alert fox terrier, probably greater prominence than any other member of caninedom. With his master, P. L. (Happy) Doucette of Sydney, Cape Breton, Friday is on a 6,200-mile trek from Halifax, N. S., to Los Angeles, where Doucette will enter the $50,000 cross-country hike that will be staged in February by C. C. Pyle.

STATISTICS ON COAL RATES COMPILED

Two bulletins, presenting a mass of statistics on freight rates and rate differentials for soft coal shipments, have been issued by the Pennsylvania Industrial Survey on the eve of the renewal of the fight in Washington for better rates for this district.

The survey holds that "there is no more fundamental economic problem facing Central and Western Pennsylvania than the one concerning soft coal," and it warns that continuance of alleged discriminatory rates will strangle the Pennsylvania fields.

The Industrial Survey, according to a statement in its pamphlets, prepared by Charles Reitell of the University of Pittsburgh, is "organized to ascertain facts about industrial and living conditions in the bituminous coal regions of the state." It is financed by public subscription.

INDEPENDENTS HELD "BLUFF"

Questioning whether the Independent Party is "anything more than an effort to build some fences on which to support the candidacy of a certain Republican for the United States Senate next year," County Commissioner James Houlahen, Democrat, addressed a mass meeting last night in the Central Athletic Association, Oakland.

"In my time I have seen numerous so-called independent parties spring up for a particular election, only to wither and die in a few months," said Houlahen. "The Democratic party, on the other hand, is here to stay and always offers candidates worthy of support for public office. Why should not the independent voters of the county align themselves with the Democratic party when dissatisfied with the manner in which the Republican party is conducting the affairs of government?"

W. M. PAGE DIES SUDDENLY IN P. A. A.

Funeral services for W. Marshall Page, 40, who died early today in Pittsburgh Athletic Association, have not been arranged pending the arrival of his wife from the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Henderson, in Alexandria, Pa.

Mr. Page died suddenly. He was vice president of Copperweld Steel Company, with which he had been associated since the close of the World War. He served as major in the Engineer Corps and the Chemical Warfare division. Mr. Page was prominent in engineering associations and had been vice president of the Copperweld Steel Company for two years. He leaves his wife.

FIND FARMHAND DEAD, ROBBED

IRWIN, Pa., Oct. 25.—Stripped of his valuables and left to die by the roadside is believed the fate of Melvin Sloan, 65, farmhand, whose body was found yesterday near the home of Alvin Blair for whom he worked.

The aged man's watch, valued at $100, $20 cash and a gold-piece charm were missing when his body was found. Automobile tracks nearby led Deputy Coroner C. C. Rodgers to believe that someone, after rifling Sloan's clothing, had abandoned him.

HIGH TEST—LOW TEST

What Does It All Mean?

When you ask for "High Test" Gasoline, what do you expect to get?

THIS question has been asked of hundreds of motorists and the answers received would indicate that in asking for "high test" gasoline most people expect to get high quality—high in those qualities which make for all-'round better motor performance. But today the label "high test" does not necessarily mean high quality. And here is the joker!

"High Test" means only High Gravity—but the gravity of Gasoline has no bearing on those qualities essential to a superior motor fuel!

Gasoline of high gravity and which will start easily in winter can be made by mixing casing-head gasoline with a heavy liquid more like kerosene. These concoctions are often sold as "high test gas."

But such "high test" fuels are sadly lacking in the really important qualities of a motor fuel of high quality.

You want gasoline which will start easily in any weather, and which also will give quick pick-up, giant power, economical mileage—which will burn cleanly without leaving carbon or unburned liquid to dilute your crank-case oil. In brief, you want a gasoline of high quality.

The Pure Oil Company was a pioneer in refining gasolines of high quality. It does not market "high test" or "low test" gasolines. It refines and sells only high quality products. And the leadership of DETONOX—the gasoline of supreme performance—has never been challenged successfully.

DETONOX is High Quality—Better 7 Ways

{ Of course DETONOX starts instantly in any weather
—and there are six other points of superiority, too }

LOCAL FANS GET "REST"

TRIUMPH IN FIRST -:- CADDIE CHAMPIONSHIP

FAILS IN COMEBACK TRY

JOHNNY DUNDEE

Veteran former featherweight and junior-lightweight champion, who was unable to make the grade last night in a comeback bout against Tony Canzoneri in Madison Square Garden and was given a severe drubbing in 15 slow rounds. It probably will mark the windup of Dundee's long ring career, which has extended through more than 400 bouts.

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

FEW colleges in the country have made steadier or more gratifying progress in the development and use of the forward pass than the University of Pittsburgh.

Some opponents appear to think that the passing game is but a recent addition to the Panther attack and that it is still only in the early stages of development. As a matter of fact, however, forward-passing became a part of Pitt's play as soon as Pop Warner began to coach here in 1915, as successor to Joe Duff.

POP had used it with success while coaching the Carlisle Indians in earlier years.

Veteran local fans will recall this when they think of the games the Indians played here from year to year after the forward pass was made permissible under the rules for the first time in 1906.

Warner made his ends and backs who were eligible to receive the pass wear white headgear, so that the passer would know where to aim his throws in the moving mass of players after the snapper-back had passed the ball.

Coming to Pitt in 1915, Warner, who overlooked about as many bets in football as Tex Rickard does in modern boxing, lost no time in drilling his men in the use of the forward pass.

If your memory is good you will readily recollect that Pat Herron, famous end of the Panthers in those days, made a long run for a touchdown against W. & J. in 1915 after catching a pass.

PITT threw several other passes in that game, though the running attack that season and in 1916 was, perhaps, the best the Panthers ever had.

And how about the passing combination of five years ago, Johnny Anderson and Hoot Flanagan, who in one season fooled every team that Pitt played?

In that year the Panthers scored almost every touchdown they made in major games either on a pass or as a direct outcome of their passing attack, usually between Anderson and Flanagan or involving Jakie Bohren.

Bohren and Flanagan did the same thing another year.

Canzoneri Batters Dundee

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Johnny Dundee, former featherweight and junior lightweight champion, was used as a punching bag last night by Tony Canzoneri.

Dundee, who has been fighting for 18 years, but who had not been in action for a year, failed to come back, but he was game to the end of the fifteenth round, when Tony was awarded the decision.

Johnny absorbed enough punishment to fell a half-dozen fighters for the count of 10, but it was his ability to feint and hold when in trouble that kept him going the entire route.

The first two rounds of the fight, which was held at the Madison Square Garden, went to Tony by a wide margin. Johnny had a slight edge in the third, but got into trouble in the fourth, when he ran into a couple of stiff left hooks.

The fifth, sixth and seventh rounds were all Canzoneri. Johnny tried his old trick of bouncing off the ropes and running into his opponent, but Tony was too quick for him on every occasion. The few blows that Johnny landed failed to feaze Tony.

In the eighth and ninth stanzas, Dundee took what was probably the worst licking of his career and how he was able to weather the storm, with blood streaming all over his face, was a mystery.

The tenth and eleventh rounds were slow and uninteresting. Tony, however, came to life during the twelfth and continued to hit Johnny with everything but the ringposts until the final bell.

Duke Sees 'Boar,' Shoots, Kills Coachman

BERLIN, Oct. 25.—(INS.)—Charged with "homicide through negligence," in accidentally shooting and killing the family coachman, the Duke of Ratibor will be forced to stand trial, it was learned today.

The coachman was killed during one of the Duke's hunting trips last winter. Ratibor asserts the victim was wearing fur boots and was mistaken for a wild boar.

The prosecution maintains the Duke, as an experienced huntsman, was careless in firing at an indefinite object.

ARRESTS FOLLOW FIGHT JAM

By HARRY KECK,
Sun-Telegraph Sports Editor.

REFEREE EDDIE KENNEDY and Jim Jennings, manager of Teddy Esterbrook, middleweight boxer of Niles, O., today both faced the prospect of dire discipline for their impromptu scuffle on the stairs leading to the dressing room following Esterbrook's losing bout with Young Saylor in the eight-round semi-final at Motor Square Garden last night.

Both men were arrested after the disorder, which sent the largest crowd of the local indoor fistic season into an uproar, and following the show they were taken to the Frankstown Avenue Police Station, where they were booked on charges of disorderly conduct and released upon the posting of the usual forfeits. They failed to appear for a hearing this morning and thus lost their cash deposits.

The case now rests with the State Athletic Commission. Havey J. Boyle, Western Pennsylvania member of the board, said this afternoon he would not reveal his decision until after he had discussed the matter with the other members of the commission at the next regular meeting in Philadelphia. He admitted, however, that the case was a serious one and that action might be taken against both the referee and the manager.

MANAGER STARTS FIGHT

According to eyewitnesses of the scuffle, Manager Jennings loudly protested the decision against his man after the judges had disagreed and then took a punch at Kennedy as the latter was on his way to the dressing quarters. Kennedy punched back and brought Jennings down and was on top of him when the police intervened. It was the second mixup in which Kennedy had figured in two weeks in the Motor Square arena. He took a punch at James (Red) Mason, manager of Cuddy DeMarco, when the latter criticized his decision against DeMarco in a bout with Billy Wallace, but was not penalized for that affray, although Mason was indefinitely suspended.

As a result of the embroglio last night, the commission ruled that henceforth referees will not be permitted to use the same dressing quarters as fighters and managers and seconds.

RIVALS BOX DRAW

Only the fact that Tommy Crowley of the South Side and Phil Goldstein of the Hill, meeting in their long-heralded return bout in the main event, put on a battle that for action was equal to their first clash last Christmas afternoon, except that it lacked the knockdowns that marked that tussle, erased the memory of the impromptu setto between the referee and manager from the minds of the fans. At the conclusion of eight bristling rounds the judges were unable to agree on the victor and the referee, Joe Keally, called the scrap a draw, paving the way for a second return engagement between the two keen local rivals. Judge Jock Simco gave his decision to Crowley and Judge Frank (Bull) Brown voted the battle a draw. Referee Keally's draw decision elicited cheers from the enthusiastic spectators.

Crowley won his first battle with Goldstein for the local featherweight championship by a narrow margin

GROH TO PILOT CHARLOTTE

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Oct. 25.—(AP.)—Heinie Groh, Pittsburgh third baseman, today signed a one-year contract to manage the Charlotte team of the South Atlantic Association, Felix Heyman, owner, of the club, announced. The size of Groh's salary was not made public, but Heyman said it was the largest ever paid a manager in the Sally League. Groh succeeds Ray Kennedy, released last week.

In the absence of other club officials, Sam Watters, secretary of the Pirates, stated this afternoon that no release had been given Heinie Groh, but it was surmised that the veteran infielder had been given permission by Owner Dreyfuss to dicker for a berth in the minor leagues.

FRIEDMAN NOT SIGNED TO COACH AT BELOIT

CLEVELAND, Oct. 25.—(UP.)—Max Rosenblum, manager of Benny Friedman, former University of Michigan star, refused to comment today on the rumor that Friedman had been approached to Coach Beloit College, other than to say many offers had been received.

Friedman, Rosenblum said, will not consider any coaching offers while he is playing professional football. The former Michigan all-American player will finish out the season with Cleveland, Rosenblum asserted.

It is reported that he is suffering from a shock sustained, when he was kicked during a scrimmage, in the game.

HENRY CAVES

Caves of the Oakmont Country Club captured the first W. P. G. A. caddie title with his 85. He is only 17.

SCHENLEY PARK'S TITLE TEAM

CAVES, SCHENLEY PARK COP CADDIE CROWNS

By VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER.

HISTORY in golf for the world was made yesterday. The first district caddie championship ever to be held, staged at the Longue Vue Club, was a distinct success; 20 clubs from throughout Western Pennsylvania were represented in the field of 80 bag-carriers who vied individually for the championship and co-operatively as teams for the Thomas Latta Jamison Memorial Trophy.

Henry Caves of the Oakmont Country Club captured the first title of what is to be an annual event under the auspices of the Western Pennsylvania Golf Association. Caves scored an 85 to cop the crown, playing over Longue Vue's links for the first time. William Mercer of Shannopin ranked second, being only a stroke behind Caves, while Tony Szwedko of Fox Chapel was third with 87. Julius Onoretta, Schenley Park, Ed Fencil, Oakmont, and William Domaska, Beaver Valley, were deadlocked at 88, and were the only other boys to figure in the individual prizes.

SCHENLEY WINS

Andy Petrolia's Schenley Park quartet captured the club championship with a total score of 368. The team included Fred Onoretta, Michael Skowran, Ray DePetra and Julius Onoretta. Harry Kelly's Pittsburgh Field Club combination, including Frank Szwedko, Johnny Pasikowski, Jack McGhan and Stanley August, was runner-up with a 375 total. The Schenley team received gold medals and the Field Club caddies silver medals. The Jamison trophy did not arrive from the manufacturer in time for the presentation, but will be officially given Schenley Park for a year's keeping as soon as it does.

It was donated for the purpose by Thomas S. Jamison, president of the Western Pennsylvania Golf Association, in memory of his nephew Thomas Latta Jamison, who died in an automobile accident a year or so ago.

Fox Chapel Golf Club was third with 383, Chartiers Heights fourth with 384 and Washington County Golf and Country Club, fifth, 386.

BOYS BANQUETED

Following the tournament, prominent officials of the Western Pennsylvania Golf Association and of several clubs, virtually all of them executives of high rank, cast aside all formality and acted as "waiters" in giving the boys a real banquet. Among those who endeavored to see that the boys were well fed, and who later made brief speeches, were Edward E. McCoy, of Longue Vue, father of caddie welfare in this district, who was chairman in charge; John Nicholson, Chester H. Lehman, vice president of the W. P. G. A., and president of the Westmoreland Country Club; George A. Ormiston, secretary of the W. P. G. A.; J. A. MacCloskey, chairman of the Pittsburgh Service Bureau; Harry Wilhelm, of Edgewood, W. P. G. A. director; Thomas S. Jamison, W. P. G. A. president; J. J. Jackson, president of the Edgewood Country Club; W. E. Best, of St. Clair, caddie welfare committeeman; Jason E. Stone, John W. A. L. TO CHOOSE PRESIDENT NOV. 2

DETROIT, Oct. 25.—(AP.)—Frank J. Navin, vice president and acting head of the American Baseball League, today called a special meeting of the league directors to be held in Chicago at 11 a. m., November 2, to elect a successor to Ban Johnson, who resigned last week.

Busch, Runner, Due in City Tomorrow

William H. Busch, Pittsburgh and Boston long-distance walker, runner and swimmer, who is on his way to Boston from Los Angeles in an effort to break Edward Payson Weston's long-standing record, is due in Pittsburgh tomorrow or Thursday, according to his manager, Timothy Kenney, of Boston, who flivvered into Pittsburgh today ahead of the athlete. Kenney left Busch just west of Zanesville, O., yesterday. Busch was expected to reach Wheeling today and leave after a short rest for this city, where his father and mother and sisters live. His father is an engraver for the Sun-Telegraph.

Busch is keeping well up with his schedule despite many difficulties encountered along the road, and he expects to complete his long jaunt within 65 days. Today marks his fifty-fifth day. Weston's record was 77 days 8 hours. He has lost some 20 pounds during the grind and is badly sunburned and has suffered considerably from blistered feet.

WHAT? ANOTHER ONE!

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—(AP.)—The Italian liner Conte Rosso brought a new champion to American shores today. He was John Raicevich, wrestler from Trieste, who claims that for the past 20 years he has held the Greco-Roman championship. He will go to San Francisco for several matches.

GENE MAY QUIT IN 5 YEARS

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—(AP.)—The New York Evening World says today Gene Tunney will retire from the ring within five years, but still as the heavyweight champion of the world. Until that time the titleholder is quoted as declaring he will devote all his time to the "perfection of physical and fistic equipment, shunning all stage or similar work of a title-commercializing nature."

Gene expects to retire to the work he has planned for the future, a millionaire several times over from his glove endeavors. The paper says he expects to be in even better trim than for his recent title defense against Jack Dempsey in Chicago when next called upon to defend the heavyweight crown.

FILMS FAVOR JACK

Tunney intimated that pictures of the Dempsey fight had been "so arranged and cut as to make the former champion appear to the best possible advantage." The titleholder said he could have risen at the count of four from the knockdown in the much-discussed seventh round of that battle, despite allegations that a "long count" saved the title for him.

"I have learned two lessons from my first year as champion," Tunney said. "One is that stage work and that sort of thing is best left alone. Another is that you must never go into the ring with your passions aroused.

"Anger over unsportsmanlike tactics resorted to by Dempsey in his open letter attack and the fact that a dear friend of mine stood to gain $50,000 on my winning by a knockout caused me to deviate somewhat from my usual cold attack, which is necessary " one is to have the requisite perfect command of one's self. But even though my anger resulted in flashes of carelessness, I could have gotten up after I had been dropped by Dempsey even if the referee had counted so quickly that nine would only have been the equivalent of four."

PARTIAL TO DEMPSEY

Declaring it "immaterial what they say or write about my contests" Tunney said he had "worked too hard to get where I am to be wrought up about anything very much." He said he "knew perfectly well that Tex Rickard was partial to Dempsey" in their second meeting.

"But then Tex has a mistaken idea as to the former champion's value as

Dundee, Hudkins Accept Blake As Referee

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 25.—(AP.)—Joe Dundee, welterweight champion, and Ace Hudkins of Nebraska, have ended their squabble with the state athletic commission over selection of a referee for their title bout Saturday next, by agreeing on George Blake, who piloted Fidel LaBarba to the flyweight title.

The advance seat sale passed the $50,000 mark yesterday, with $100,000 estimated as the amount necessary to show profit.

Weber Tops M. A. Loop Batsmen

ACCORDING to official averages just released by the Middle Atlantic League, Weber of the Wheeling Stogies won the batting championship for the season of 1927.

Weber appeared in 119 games, one less than the total played by the Stogies, and compiled an average of .349. He got 155 hits for a total of 231 bases. Included among his base hits were 33 doubles, 11 triples and seven home runs. He was credited with 11 sacrifice hits, drew 37 walks and fanned 27 times.

The list compiled by the official statistician of the Middle Atlantic League shows Morrissey of the Scottdale club leading the procession with an average of .408, but the Scottdale star appeared in only 26 games.

Gillenwater, star hurler of the Wheeling club, carried off the honors as the leading pitcher in the Daily circuit, the Stogie moundsman winning 13 and losing three. Chief Bender, former American League veteran, finished in second place winning seven and losing three for Johnstown, Middle Atlantic League champion.

In fielding, Roth of Johnstown led the first basemen with an average of .994; Rich, Charleroi, the second basemen, with .988; Weik, Johnstown, the shortstops, with .967; Lucas, Charleroi, the outfielders, with 1.000; Hammond, Wheeling, the pitchers, with 1.000, and Herman, Johnstown-Charleroi, the catchers, with .986.

Clarksburg led the league in club batting, with an average of .283, while Cumberland led in club fielding, with .968.

Kearns To Turn Mickey Walker Into Heavy

CHICAGO, Oct. 25.—(AP.)—Jack Kearns, who has pestered Jack Dempsey, his former pal, through the courts for years, claiming his managerial percentage, now talks of seeking revenge in the ring.

Kearns' plan is to groom Mickey Walker, middleweight champion, for the heavier ranks as weight adds itself to Mickey's figure. Walker, Kearns said, is about ready for the light heavyweights now, and will be able to mix with the biggest boys before long. When that time comes, Kearns hopes Dempsey may be one of those in Walker's path.

Walker meets Mike McTigue here November 1.

JOE STECHER RETAINS WRESTLING LAURELS

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—(INS.)—Joe Stecher today still holds the title of heavyweight wrestling champion of the world in New York state. Recognized in this state as the title holder, Stecher retained his crown in his bout with Farmer Browning, of Wichita, Kansas, last night after 52 minutes of wrestling, in what was to have been a finish bout.

The match failed to continue after Stecher had pinned Browning to the mat with a body scissors after 52 minutes.

PITT ONLY SATURDAY HOST

By JESS CARVER.

THE coming week-end in the college football world is going to be a fairly interesting one, though Pittsburgh itself will have but a single contest to attend, the Pitt-Allegheny affair out in the Stadium. Both Tech and the Dukes will be out of town, the former in Morgantown for a game with the slumping Mountaineers and the latter engaging Westminster in a Tri-State Conference battle in New Wilmington.

There is a fair chance of all three local teams winning this week. Pitt is certain to. Tech may be able to repeat the 1926 triumph over the Rodgermen. The Dukes, if they show the improvement that was indicated in the closing minutes of the Thiel game here last week, ought to beat the United Presbyterians.

All Pitt has to do this week is keep in condition for the W. & J. struggle of November 6. This contest is going to be one of the biggest engagements in Eastern or even in national football for 1927. Both are certain to enter the game undefeated, for while Pitt is playing the let-down with Allegheny, W. & J. will have Thiel at Little Washington.

MAY FIGHT FOR TITLE

It may develop that Pitt and W. & J. will find themselves fighting for the Eastern championship two weeks from now. At present there is only one other eleven in the East worthy of mention in the same breath with the local machines. That team is Chick Meehan's New York University Violets. But the Violets, who are not the team they were last year, will have to beat

HOCKEY BOSS ON HAND

Odie Cleghorn, manager of the Pirate Hockey Club, arrived in town yesterday from his home in Montreal and immediately began mapping out a strenuous training program that will keep his athletes busy until the opening game of the National League season at Duquesne Garden Friday night, November 15, when the Detroit Cougars will form the opposition for the local lads.

The Pirate skipper would not deny or affirm reports that he was working on a deal involving several Pirates. He intimated, however, that a few new faces likely would be seen in the lineup this winter.

"I may have something to announce within the next few days," Cleghorn declared. "There are a couple of players in the league I would like to have on our club, but whether or not I can induce them away from their respective employers is a horse with another color. However, prospects for adding a few new men to the club are brighter than they were a few weeks ago."

THROUGH the SPORT LENS

by HAVEY BOYLE

THE easiest part of the Panther schedule is behind. Another soft spot looms with Allegheny this Saturday, but after this game the Panthers must buckle down to a series of events that are bound to be trying.

HAVEY BOYLE

Wash - Jeff, one of the best teams in the land, must be taken on, and then along comes Nebraska, to be followed by a good Penn State eleven, which has surprised everyone with the splendid work shown against Penn and Syracuse.

Nebraska, while having lost a 6 to 7 game to Missouri, must gain considerable respect from Pittsburghers for two very good reasons. The first reason is that several years ago Nebraska came here to play Pitt in a game which no one here took very seriously. The boys who foolishly wager their money on football were offering something like 2 to 1 and better on the Panthers at the time coached by the great Warner, and inspired by the fleet-footed Davies.

ALL of us went to Forbes Field that afternoon prepared to turn up our noses at the Nebraskans, but this attitude of scorn was changed into one of admiration as soon as the Nebraska boys hit the field. They came out looking like the tallest and strongest football aggregation imaginable. They dashed onto the field yelling like Indians. It proved to be a strenuous game, with Pitt hopes fading and finally dying, as a big gent named Swanson, made a great run for a touchdown to trounce the Pittites.

ANOTHER good reason why Pittsburghers will be a little leary of Nebraska is the fact that in 11 games with Notre Dame Nebraska has won five, lost five and tied one. Nebraska and Notre Dame haven't met since 1925 in which year Nebraska won by the score of 17 to 0. Anytime that Notre Dame seemed to be sailing along pretty smoothly it seemed to be Nebraska which owned the necessary genius to stop the Fighting Irish.

ROOTERS are hoping that when Andy Kerr brings his Wash-Jeff eleven to the Stadium to meet Pitt two weeks hence both Andy and Jock Sutherland will tell their boys to go in and cut loose. Last year, a scoreless tie resulted and for a game between eminent rivals it lacked the necessary spice as both clubs played safety first football, waiting for a break that never came.

With two of the greatest backs in the country opposing each other, Welch and Amos, and each serving his final year on a club with championship possibilities the opportunity for great football drama has seldom been better. But if the boys kick on the third down, not only when deep in their own territory, but all the time, and if punts are always to be allowed to roll until dead, then some of us boys who spend good carfare to get to the game are going to put up a howl.

MR. OOSTERBANN, the celebrated captain of Michigan, is a versatile and cagey man. Against Ohio State the Buckeyes were set to prevent Oosterbann from performing his specialty—receiving forward passes—so just to be different Oosterbann began throwing them to a comrade, Gilbert, with the result that Ohio State took a bad trimming.

Southerners Upset East

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Every American has two nationalities—and usually if he is a sport lover, three.

"The Star Spangled Banner," "Dixie" and "Dear Old Georgia Tech" have the same hat removing effect in one part of the country while in the vicinity of Princeton, either the national anthem, "Yankee Doodle" or the "Pride of Old Nassau" is a sure bet to bare the heads of the citizenry. Since the rebel guns boomed on Sumpter to emphasize the division of the North and the South by the Mason and Dixon line and Horace Greely called attention to the fact that there was an East and a West by advising young men from the former to migrate to the latter, pride of section has flamed almost as fiercely as pride of country.

And with the football season at the midway post football followers are already loudly demanding supremacy for their various sections.

Intersectional competition, the best test of sectional superiority would seem to give Midwestern grid fans the best claim. In three of the outstanding intersectional tilts Purdue held Midwestern colors high by defeating Harvard 19-0, Notre Dame championed Midwestern prestige successfully by drubbing Ingram's Navy team, at Baltimore 19-6, while Alonzo Stagg's Maroons beaten by another Midwestern aggregation, Oklahoma, downed Penn, 13-7.

a gate attraction. He couldn't draw $200,000 in New York against a contender like Bill Brennan, and how near to a million did he draw with Miske? Maybe Tunney had something to do with the fact that my two matches with Dempsey drew far beyond $3,000,000.

"And still Rickard has the pictures play up Dempsey as best he can. Do the pictures, as now exhibited, show the world that every blow landed in the seventh round, after I got up off the floor, were struck by me?"

Tunney said he expected to defend his title within a year against the best obtainable contender. He said there would be "no three years between matches while I am champion."

"Maybe, after my ring farewell in 1932, I will get married—but I don't think it will be even as soon as that. At 34 I have decided that I will be too old to fight—and too old to get married—if you like."

Vue; Dr. Gregg, of South Hills; Samuel M. Parks, Sr., and Roy Adams, of Highland, and C. L. Pierce, Jr., of Longue Vue.

An idea of some of the fine golf that was played may be had from the fact that the field had a best ball of 62 for the 18 holes—28 out and a 34 back.

The best individual scores for the 18-hole route follow:

Henry Caves, Oakmont, 85; William Mercer, Shannopin, 86; Tony Sawelko, Fox Chapel, 87; Julius Oneretta, Schenley Park, 88; Ed Fencil, Oakmont, 88; William Demaska, Beaver Valley, 88; Mile Evans, Shannopin, 89; Michael Skowran, Schenley, 89; Walter Ponykois, Washington, 89; Anthony Bally, Fox Chapel, 90; Nick Evanish, Edgewood, 91; Joseph Connor, Westmoreland, 91; Jack Mcilhan, Pittsburgh Field Club, 91; John Pasikowski, Pittsburgh Field Club, 92; Ralph Young, Westmoreland, 93; Charles McGlaughlin, Chartiers Heights, 94; Joseph Scally, Montour Heights, 94; Edward Boyle, South Hills, 94.

The team scoring was as follows: Schenley Park, 368; Pittsburgh Field Club, 376; Fox Chapel, 383; Chartiers Heights, 384; Washington, 386; Westmoreland, 387; Shannopin, 392; South Hills, 396; Highland, 398; Montour Heights, 399; Beaver Valley, 401; Altoona, 402; Longue Vue, 403; Edgewood, 410; St. Clair, 420; Thornsburg, 427; Allegheny, 429; Pittsburgh Country Club, 450, and Oakmont, Greensburg, no cards.

SPORT COMMENT

Anderson was one of the surest-handed receivers of passes that Pittsburgh gamegoers ever saw, and Flanagan could either throw or catch them.

The Blue and Gold beat W. & J., Penn and Penn State on passing at that time and plenty of others.

IN the "good old days" Andy Hastings used to toss passes to Jimmy DeHart, Chalky Williamson and Jimmy Morrow as often as ten times in a game. Pitt licked Syracuse, 35 to 0, in 1921 with the passing system, in which Tommy Davies, Tom Holleran and Johnny Anderson were involved, demoralizing the Orange defense early in the game.

Davies also threw two passes to Holleran in the Penn game that season that resulted in touchdowns.

Year before last a forward pass, Welch to Kifer, completely fooled Carnegie Tech and gave the Panthers their first touchdown in their 12-to-0 victory over the Skibos after the Tartan had defeated Pitt two seasons in succession.

DURING the same season, Andy Gustafson caught two or three passes per game, thrown by Welch, Brown or Harding.

And if it is believed in any corner of the football map that Jock Sutherland does not use the passing game, or is only now taking it up, the critics might recall the Lafayette teams prior to 1924, when Jock came to Pitt, on which Berry, O'Connell and others were among the most famous pass-catchers in the East. Pitt, Penn and many others have occasion to remember those long heaves.

DURING the final visit of the Cubs to Forbes Field in the 1927 baseball season, a basketball fanning bee was held at the Pirate park one afternoon before game time with Johnny Freund of Pittsburgh and Manager Joe McCarthy and Catcher Gabby Hartnett of the Cubs participating.

Both of the Chicago men are "well up" in basketball. Some years ago when the old Central League of this district and the Eastern League were the leading organizations in the sport, McCarthy was manager and promoter of one of the best clubs in the Eastern circuit and had on his team, among other great stars, Billy Kummer and Dutch Wohlfarth, well-known local players.

Comparing the past and the present of the floor sport, McCarthy cast his vote in favor of the old days, expressing the opinion that the professional style of game was and still is by far the better.

IN TROUBLE AGAIN

HARRISBURG, Oct. 25.—(AP.)—The Pennsylvania blue laws of 1794 bobbed up again today when Arthur R. Thompson, Middletown, manager of the Middletown Athletic Association football team, was haled before Alderman John Hallman to answer to a charge of violating the ancient statute. The charge was the result of a game played Sunday.

COLLEGE

an embattled Colgate team Saturday, and it is just possible that the New Yorkers, who have yet to face a real test, may find themselves taking the count.

Colgate is a great in and out team. After losing, 6-0, to V. P. I., they came back with a bang and beat Columbia. Last week Wabash surprised 'em and won, 7-0, and if they repeat the comeback trick of the week previous, it will be too bad for New York U.

Regardless of whether they meet for the Eastern title or not, Pitt and W. & J. will be fighting for the Big Four and the district championship. They are easily the outstanding elevens of the section, far and away above West Virginia, Lafayette or any of the smaller schools, Grove City, Thiel, Allegheny, Duquesne or Geneva, in class.

Pitt officials are preparing to erect 5,000 extra seats for this game, if the advance ticket sale warrants such action. Extra ticket booths are to be built in front of the stadium to take care of the last minute purchasers.

Dear old Penn State, with victories on consecutive Saturday's over Old Penn and Syracuse, will have to be up on its toes this week if they expect to get by Lafayette. The Maroon eleven is not as powerful this season as in past ones, and the tie at the hands of West Virginia and the licking from W. & J. will have McCracken and Gourley tearing their hair. When those babies tear their hair, its tough on the players.

With the Sandlot Gridders

By TOM BIRKS.

Manager Joe Tobin of the Burns club has sure unearthed a find in Bell (Baby) Doll. The boy from Ohio sure can do everything that a good quarterback should do. His running in the first half on the game Sunday looked like Jim Thorpe, in fact Doll falls away from the tackler just like the Indian wizard did.

But in that game Sunday, Stein took the eye of the fans with some wonderful line plunging, and despite some heavy tackling on the part of the Mingo line, Stein was not stopped.

It seems that the defeat of the Amicus at Springdale on Sunday will put a crimp into the classic between Burns and Springdale. There was a chance that the rival pilots would have a chance to argue regarding the venue, but now it seems as if Tobin will argue with someone else regarding the Thanksgiving day classic.

Sonny O'Neill kept up his good work as one of the leading scorers in the independent ranks by crossing the McBride line twice on Sunday. The McBrides were hardly strong enough to hold that Hazelwood aggregation who will make a big stand in that elimination race.

The Port Vue aggregation is putting on the iron man stunt these days, playing two games in succession. It was reported that Port Vue had called off the Sunday game following that sensational win over the Christy Park Gridders. But evidently the Tube city officials figured something soft and the game was staged.

But Christy Park copped another game on Sunday when its local rivals the Apprentices from Duquesne bit the dust at Christy Park with the Adams boys out of the lineup. The Duquesne boys seem to be having a tough time getting started this season.

North Side C. M. C. again won its battle by a lone touchdown. For same reason the driving power of the Caye, Leahy, and Dolan, combination does not seem to be working as last season. But Belack is keeping that line working all right.

The East Liberty A. C. is making a great showing for that East End championship that is awarded annually in mythical style. The boys from the Washington Boulevard met a heavy club in the Allison Park Gridders and a torrid session ended without a score. Manager Knapp however says watch the East Enders.

SHOTS and PASSES

—by Julius Levin

GEORGE RAMSAY, star center of the Pittsburgh Morrys, last year winner of the Central Professional League championship, while undecided over his plans for the coming season, nevertheless is in excellent shape for the floor campaign.

Ramsay has received several offers to play with clubs in this vicinity, but as yet has not decided which one to accept.

Reports prevalent in local floor circles indicate Ramsay will play center with the McKeesport Cyclers in the Allegheny County League.

THE Young Men's Hebrew Association basketball team, which made a fine record during its first year in amateur circles last winter, is looking forward to 1927-28 with optimism.

Several new stars have joined the ranks of the Bellefield passers and indications point to a quintet much stronger than last year.

Art Scher, athletic director of the Y. M. H. A., still believes that a league including the leading amateur institutions in this vicinity would have a tendency to add interest to the activities of the amateurs.

Mike Loebs, last year coach at Heinz House, but now serving in a similar capacity at Thiel College, has offered to bring his collegians to Pittsburgh for a game at the Y. M. H. A.

DO not be surprised if you see Buck Gefsky, one of the finest guards ever turned out in this section, back in professional basketball this winter.

The former Coffey Club and Ameritta star has been keeping in excellent shape and is seriously considering making a comeback.

Buck still is capable of playing first-class basketball and would prove a valuable addition to any professional club operating hereabouts.

The Enoch Rauh Club of the Allegheny County League is reported eager to obtain his services.

THE newly-organized Central League will hold a meeting in Spalding's tonight to arrange plans for the coming season.

This circuit is composed of first-class amateur teams and is likely to stir up considerable interest throughout Western Pennsylvania this winter.

Final details pertaining to the league campaign will be mapped out at tonight's session.

MAROONS GET REST AFTER W. & J. LACING

EASTON, Pa., Oct. 25.—Bruised and battered from the defeat at the hands of strong W. & J. on Saturday, the Lafayette squad was given a holiday yesterday by Coach McCracken. A week of strenuous preparation for the game with strong Penn State will be started today.

PITT, N. Y., SYRACUSE TOUGH TRIO

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 25.—(AP.)—Forgetting the Missouri Valley campaign for the present, Nebraska's Cornhuskers have set about preparing for their intersectional clashes, the first of which will be played here Saturday, October 29, with Syracuse University. The other games are with Pittsburgh University, November 12, and New York University here Thanksgiving Day.

In its three Valley clashes, the Huskers' vaunted grid machine failed to function as smoothly as was expected. The 6 to 0 victory over Iowa State College in the opening game was not impressive, then came the 7 to 6 loss to the University of Missouri, Nebraska's annual jinx. Although the Nebraskans overwhelmed Grinnell, 58 to 0, in a field day affair, the team did not perform in a finished fashion. Consequently the coaching staff has opened an intensive training season during the two weeks' period prior to the Syracuse tilt.

However, the three opening games demonstrated that Nebraska still has an efficient forward wall—a line that was pierced for only four first downs in the jousts with Iowa State, Missouri and Grinnell. In Holm, McMullen, Randels and Richards, the Huskers have four linemen who are equal to the famed linemen of the past.

Glenn Presnell, Blue Howell and Bud McBride also have proved themselves to be capable ball luggers. Presnell led the Missouri Valley scorers after last Saturday's game with 30 points, and McBride was second with 19. Presnell reeled of four touchdowns in about 15 minutes against Grinnell, and he also scored Nebraska's lone counter against Iowa State.

by staging a great rally after being floored and on the verge of a knockout in the second round, and, last night, Goldstein rallied and put on a Garrison finish to even up the honors. Fighting as they have in these settos, there is no doubt that the two little fellows can go on forever boxing each other here. It has been a long time since any two district boxers have so pleased the fans with their work against each other.

It is seldom that a draw decision is justified, but last night's fight was one of those rare occasions when no one could find fault with the verdict of a dead heat. As I checked the rounds, the first was even, with Crowley doing the forcing and Goldstein the sharper hitting. The second went to Goldstein and the next three to Crowley, who, by this time, appeared to be a certain winner. In the sixth round, Goldstein rallied, and, with the use of left smashes to the body and right uppercuts and crosses to the head as Crowley rushed, handily won the edge. Crowley came back and won the seventh round by keeping going while Goldstein flashed only at the start and finish.

It was up to Goldstein to do some heroic work to save himself from defeat as the eighth round opened and he responded nobly. He outboxed and outfought Crowley from bell to bell. Tommy never stopped trying but was rocked and socked with all manner of blows from both fists as Goldstein fought to come from behind. Phil won the round by a wide margin and just about evened up the fight. He won three rounds against four for Crowley, with one even. However, two of his rounds were won by larger margins than any Crowley earned, and, if it had not been for the fact that Tommy set the pace in most of the rounds and never stopped forcing the fight, Phil might have been given a shade. But Tommy's "fighting" fight could not go unrewarded. The fact that Tommy's forcing was not overlooked was reflected in the officials' decisions. Tommy got the only vote for either boxer.

GOLDSTEIN FLASHES

Crowley had to work against Phil's blinding speed afoot in the first two rounds and the last session, with the result that he missed many punches and appeared wild. However, as soon as Phil slowed down, in the third round, Tommy had no trouble locating him and was master of the situation until Goldstein was able to speed up again. Goldstein's right eye was cut in the third round and bled slightly during the remainder of the bout.

Phil weighed 128 pounds and Crowley 129 at 2 p. m. They had agreed to scale not heavier than 131.

Saylor, who was slated to meet Jack Zivic in the next show at Motor Square Garden if he won impressively over Esterbrook last night, had tough going, but really merited the award. He won six of the eight rounds. He did all the forcing in the first four rounds, with Esterbrook fouling him with a low left in the second round, and then followed with a right to the jaw that shook Saylor and forced him to hang on just before the bell. Esterbrook was doing a lot of defensive boxing and tying up Saylor's versatile left hand at close quarters and at the same time forgetting to shoot his always cocked right fist. In the fifth round, Esterbrook flashed for the first time, aside from that spurt in the second session. He dropped Saylor to his knees for no count with a right to the jaw and then hammered the body with both fists until Saylor appeared to be in a bad way. The Charleroi mixer, who never has lost a bout, did a lot of holding and running away until the bell sounded. Each had a cut left eye as the round ended.

Saylor was the aggressor through the next two rounds and carried them, and then Esterbrook made a furious finish in the last round, during which he drove Saylor about the ring under a slugging attack that drew blood from the latter's nose and forced him to seek clinches. In the light of Esterbrook's good work in the fifth and eighth rounds, many of the fans joined Esterbrook's manager in decrying the decision, but it was eminently fair, since these were the only rounds Esterbrook won, while Saylor was busy forcing the issue all of the remainder of the route.

Esterbrook, tall and rangy and blonde, kept Saylor from fighting his usually effective left-handed battle by tying up that southpaw maulic at close quarters all the time, but he couldn't prevent Saylor from scoring with it at long range. Judge Sunco voted for Saylor, Judge Brown for Esterbrook and Referee Kennedy for Saylor. Saylor weighed 150 pounds and Esterbrook 152.

SUSNELL EXTENDS LA GREY

Next to the main bout, the second event was the best on the card. It saw young Nick Susnell, the fighting bricklayer of Rochester, Pa., give Joey La Grey a tough battle throughout eight rounds. La Grey, with a considerable edge in experience and famed as a knockout puncher, early had Nick in trouble with his curious hooks and swings, not to mention heavy pounding of the short ribs and kidneys in the clinches. He was warned by Referee Keally for the kidney blows, but not until the end of the fourth round, when most of the damage had been done. Nick stood up under terrific punishment and got his second wind and was fighting better toward the finish than at the start. He outfought La Grey and outpunched him to win the sixth round, but all the others went to La Grey by variable margins. Both weighed 144½ pounds.

Tug Phillips of Fayette City, 141½ pounds, outfought Walter Dickerson of California, Pa., 144, in the opening eight-rounder. Tug was trying for a knockout with short hooks throughout the bout and won every round, but he might have looked better if he had boxed more. Dickerson proved game and a good "catcher."

There will be no show at Motor Square next Monday night because of Hallowe'en.

PALACE CLUB HOLDOUTS THREATENED WITH FINES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—(AP.)—Five holdouts, among them widely known stars at the game, have been served with an ultimatum by George Marshall, manager of the Washington entry in the American Professional Basketball League, to notify him of their intentions by next Tuesday or suffer a fine of $100 each and indefinite suspension. The league is scheduled to open its season November 20.

Two of the players, "Stretch" Meehan, center, of Newark, N. J., and Harry Riconda, guard, of Corona, L. I., are said to have refused their salary offers. The others regarded by Marshall as more or less indifferent as to when their contracts are sent in, are Russell Saunders, forward, of Trenton, N. J.; John Conaty, forward, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Elmer Ripley, guard, of Staten Island who coaches the basketball team of Georgetown University here.

"NOTES of the BOXERS

HARRY DUDLEY, of Oakland, Cal., claimant of the Negro welterweight championship, who now is a resident of the Hill district, will make his first appearance in the ring in this section at McKeesport Thursday night of next week. Promoter Jim McGirr had obtained an option on his services for three bouts from Manager Billy Lewis and is now trying to line up a high-class opponent for him for his first engagement. Jackie Murray, Negro welterweight of Philadelphia, a stablemate of Dudley, will meet Tug Phillips in the 10-round semi-final.

Cuddy DeMarco and his manager, James (Red) Mason, leave this evening for Milwaukee, where Cuddy meets Harry Kahn, Milwaukee southpaw, in a 10-round battle Friday night.

Nick Susnell, who gave Joey LaGrey such a hard fight at Motor Square Garden last night, probably will fight Tug Phillips on the next Motor Square card.

Pete Zivic, who knocked out Tony Carney at Worcester, Mass., last Friday night, will box Clarence Rosen or Archie Bell on the Pete Latzo-Maxie Rosenbloom card at Detroit, November 9. Next Monday night he meets Andy Martin in the 10-round semi-final to the Sammy Fuller-Chick Suggs bout at Boston.

Homer Robertson, former local Negro middleweight, who now makes his home in Boston, defeated Italian Joe Gans in a 10-round bout at Lynn, Mass., last night. Anthony Nanci, local featherweight, won over Petey Roberts in six rounds at Wheeling, with Steve O'Malley of Bellaire winning over Tony Datoli in the semi-final.

Dick Conlon, Altoona lightweight, announces his retirement from the ring upon orders from his physician, who told him to take a six months' layoff. Dick figured he might as well quit for all time.

Tom Heeney and Johnny Risko box at Detroit tomorrow night.

Jimmy Slattery, alleged light-heavyweight champion, boxes Murray Gitlitz in a 10-round bout at Buffalo, November 2.

Harry Taylor and Teddy Welch box at Johnstown Friday night. Welch and Young Rudy meet again in the same spot November 7.

Tommy O'Brien, former lightweight star, will attempt a "comeback" as a welterweight against Manuel Vasquez at Culver City, Cal., tomorrow night.

The easiest starting cold-weather motor oil ever produced

A medium-bodied oil with highest lubricating qualities yet easier starting than any oil you have ever used . . . .

A medium oil for winter? Yes! There's no need now to put up with the shortcomings of light, thin oil. For here is the oil that refining engineers have long striven to produce. . . . An oil specially made for easy starting at low temperatures, without the necessity of reducing its lubricating and piston-sealing "body."

The new Atlantic Winter Medium is a paraffine base oil. Paraffine base oils are admittedly high in lubricating qualities. Ordinarily they have only one disadvantage . . . they thicken in winter.

Atlantic has found a way to remove the waxy substances in such oil and make it even easier starting than light, thin oil. Yet the "medium" body is always there—even after the motor warms up.

Since Atlantic Winter Medium functions with equal efficiency in warm and cold weather, you can put it into your crankcase even before winter actually sets in. Do it now—so you won't forget.

Thoroughly tested and proved

Atlantic Winter Medium Motor Oil has been doubly tested before being offered to you. Throughout last winter's severest cold, actual tests with cars in service were checked and compared for easy starting with motor block tests in the research laboratories at zero temperature. The easy starting, cold resisting and high lubricating qualities of Atlantic Winter Medium have been proved beyond every doubt.

Whereas A Girl Risks Her All To Get A Rich Society Husband

by Gilbert Rogers

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

MARGIE MARSH comes to New York with a thousand dollars and a wonderful education; she learns stenography, keeps house with four other girls and after three years of struggle decides to get marrid. But first she has to pick out the man. She thinks of Rob Saunders. Then she meets Dan Shevlin, supposed to have plenty of money and who has the air of a man of the world. She leads Rob on and he asks her to dinner. Rob believes every wife should do her own work. Margie has no further use for him. Her roommates discuss buying a beauty shop for $2,000. Margie thinks she sees a way to financial independence if she can raise the money. Shevlin takes her to lunch and asks why she doesn't marry a rich man. He offers to stake her and Margie in a reckless spirit signs a note saying she loves him dearly and will never regret the six months she has spent with him. He sends her to see a Mrs. Brooke, who is to introduce her to the smart set in her quest for a wealthy husband. Margie is uncertain whether to go on with the game.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

MARGIE started, stared, gazed unbelievably. The intensity of that voice, the hurt and jealousy that had leaped to fire in those eyes. Why—why Mrs. Brooke was desperately, hoplessly, madly in love with Dan Shevlin, hence suspicious of everyone, fearful of everyone.

"Why," Margie stammered, "why, Mrs. Brooke, I—Mr. Shevlin and I—we hardly know each other. He doesn't like me—he really doesn't like me. And I—why I can't even speak because it's so—so impossible."

A long silence, a long searching gaze, then all at once the tension vanished, the hostility, the fear, died out. And there was only a woman facing her with a trembling smile, unutterably relieved, talking, talking in a voice that was not too steady.

"I—I couldn't help it. If you—well, if you were in my place, you might understand. Oh, my dear, you're so pretty, and so young. Why shouldn't you have a chance. I mean—to marry well. I'd love to help you. I really would. You're not afraid, are you?"

A swift moment of kindness, of understanding warmth, and Margie's hesitations were uprooted, tossed away forever. Their hands met. She laughed happily, excitedly.

"Well, if you don't think it's just—well, just mad, I'd—I'd like to Mrs. Brooke."

CHAPTER VII.

"DON'T ask me a thing. Not a single thing. For I won't, I couldn't, I can't, I shan't tell you!"

Margie danced around the apartment. Her eyes were very bright, and a rattle of gay nonsense was in her voice and heart.

Soberly Ruth Irving studied her. Florence Clark frowned hard. The two Graham sisters pleaded, demanded.

"Oh, I don't believe you have any secret at all. Clever of you to pretend. As if you could keep one, if you had it."

But Margie only smiled into Betty Graham's eyes. "Can't get it out of me that way. Oh, how I wish I could tell you. How I wish I could tell you. How I wish I really could tell you!"

"Why can't you?"

"Because it's horrible—because I've taken up piracy—I'm doing something I couldn't tell a soul. I don't dare tell myself, for fear of screaming. It couldn't happen—and yet it's going to!"

Florence Clark's eyes swept across the cleared bureau, the huddle of gathered things waiting for the suitcase, needing neatness and assortment.

"But you're not really going, Margie?" she asked.

What was it that clouded Margie's face—something like a breath of sadness for all the partings that fill any life, something like a memory for good times shared, an unforgettable comradeship which might never come again. The quarrels—why, they had only been the punctuation marks in a story of friendship—and now this was breaking up, the last chapter had been written.

"Why, Margie, you're crying! Won't you tell us?"

"I'm crying because you're all such frightful people, because I hate you all!" Her lips moved in a little smile, and her arms were around Florence's shoulders in a sudden gesture of affection. "Darlings! Listen to me! I may fail—in which case my body will be buried by the shores of the Caspian ocean. If I succeed, I'll be back in two months. I expect to be quite hideous by then, so I shall have to take the most expensive beauty treatments you have. I'll buy out the place, discharge you all, have Florence discharged, too, and set you up on big incomes for the rest of your lives with nothing to do except manicure your nails, read novels, and have love affairs. Wait and see!"

Then she whirled away, feeling quite miserable instead of gay. "But I will help them!" she promised. "I won't forget them! When I'm rich—oh!" And that made her laugh. "Of course this isn't really happiness to me. I shall wake up soon and tell them about my dream."

But in no dream could the silk of sheer stockings have been so tangible, exquisite delicacy of lingerie so convencingly real. Clothes—such beautiful clothes—so many clothes—clothes for her!

Mrs. Brooke had taken her shopping. A little town car with a chauffeur in front, and a small tonneau black as patent leather, upholstered in pearl gray. And great shops where enormous men hurried out from under awnings to open the door of the car as if they were privileged beyond human happiness to serve a princess of the blood royal.

No longer just quick, envious glances at the polished windows where all those treasures lay, but hours of inspection, where quiet and respectful managers took orders. And Mrs. Brooke demanding this and that, turning away from something with a little murmur of objection, and buying more and more.

"Mr. Shevlin's account. Charge to Mr. Shevlin. Mr. Shevlin's bill."

"Oh, Mrs. Brooke, stop, you really mustn't. I could never marry anyone in a million years—who could pay for all we've gotten. Why, there isn't that much money in the world." Margie's whisper was low, and her eyes wide.

"Stop calling me Mrs. Brooke. I'm not your grandmother. I'm really not more than a thousand years older than you." But Mrs. Brooke was smiling. "Carlotta to you—I hope you'll never call me anything worse. Oh, dear!" A sigh came from her, a sigh of something deep and impenetrable, so that for a moment there flashed across her face one of those many moods that followed and alternated without warning, without any plain reason.

She was studying Maragie, making little comments. "Your type now—that blue-black hair. No, that black-black hair. Hm! Green, I think. Oh, that hat is perfect, perfect! If you only knew how jealous I am of you. Margie, I take it back. I am your grandmother."

Another store, another one. A riding habit—boots of English cut, shoes, white shoes, suede shoes, two pairs of oxfords, evening slippers. A morning frock, cut in a quaint way—"the sort of thing, Madame, not everyone can wear"—of golden linen. Then tea-gowns, flimy things, a negligee of rose silk, mules to match.

"And, oh dear, I'm so tired—what a nuisance shopping is! Except that it's been fun to watch your face, my dear."

Going home together through the velvety dusk. Through the window, Margie could see other girls, returning from work, returning from desks. Why was she here? This was so unfair. Then all at once she remembered. You had to pay for everything—everything. She hadn't begun yet. It wasn't all going to be so simple. She would have to marry an old man with a wig and sunken cheeks and a voice that was cracked—brr! No, she wouldn't, she'd marry his son, of whom everyone said how could such a handsome man have such a hideous father

That night at Mrs. Brooke's apartment, after dining by candlelight with the grave butler serving at the sideboard, she was too tired to sit up, even too tired to sleep. She lay looking into the darkness, thinking of the things that had been bought, with little shivers of delight and fear. . . .

The next day, the next, the next—and more shopping. Margie no longer protested. It would be

WILSON'S STARTLING DEMAND FOR MILLIONS

Life and Letters of War President

Princeton's New President Serves Notice That the Only Way to Get Rid Of Him Is to Give Liberally

The surprising election of Wilson to the presidency of Princeton University was told about in yesterday's installment of "The Life and Letters of Woodrow Wilson" in the Sun-Telegraph. The choice of a layman broke a precedent. But the choice was popular. Wilson's inauguration was a noticeable event. His address made a profound impression. He laid down a policy of university service to the country.

By RAY STANNARD BAKER

Visions for New Princeton

MEN recognize genius in no other field as instinctively, as conclusively, as in the field of leadership. They are eager to crown it with power and responsibility, eager themselves to follow. Wilson was not only elected president of Princeton University by the unanimous vote of the Board of Trustees, but at the first meeting that followed, October 21, 1902—four days before his inauguration—sweeping powers were placed in his hands. It is significant that Grover Cleveland himself, a shrewd judge of men, made the motion which authorized the new president to "create such vacancies in the teaching force as he may deem for the best interests of the university." And in the following spring Wilson was made responsible for the entire reorganization of the faculty. During the first five years of his presidency no executive ever had more thorough-going and devoted support than Woodrow Wilson. The trustees even asked the assistance of their new president, in a later year, in reorganizing their own board, and they welcomed his suggestions for new appointees.

Such "responsible leadership" accorded wholly with Wilson's fundamental ideas of administration. Education was "minor statesmanship:" the college a little state. Give your prime minister wide powers; do not restrict his government with feeble checks and balances; do not hamper him with committees. The remedy for failure was simple. "If you do not like your prime minister, change him."

Wilson himself, though without previous experience as an administrator, seems never for a moment to have had a doubt as to what to do or how to do it. His program lay crystal clear in his mind; he never hesitated for an instant in his plans for carrying it out. And it is a beautiful thing, as one studies the voluminous letters, documents, reports and written articles of that time, to see a noble institution with its ancient traditions, its wealth of what Wilson called "untamed power," take fire at the kindling of one great spirit.

He Asks for Millions!

His audacity was as irresistible as it was infectious. His first report must have taken away the breath of some, at least, of the conservative older members of the board. After showing that the entire productive resources of the university were less than $4,000,000, the slow accretions of a century, he calmly outlined a program that would require three times as much more, in short, over $12,000,000. It was in the time before university "drives" had accustomed the public mind to thinking in terms of such vast sums for educational purposes, a time moreover, when the country was not in a wholly cheerful financial condition—and this new president was asking for $12,000,000! Yet he had the best of reasons. Princeton had been slipping behind; it must be brought vigorously forward.

Princeton must challenge the supremacy of Harvard and Yale.

He asks, therefore, as a pressing immediate necessity, for $6,000,000. Of this $2,250,000 is for the new preceptorial system he seeks to create—"fifty tutors at $45,000 each"—a million dollars is for a school of science, and various buildings and increases in staff will amount to $2,750,000 more.

Beyond these immediate needs he asks for $6,650,000 with which to "create a real university." His figures included:

Graduate School	$3,000,000
School of Jurisprudence	2,400,000
Electrical Engineering School	750,000
Museum of Natural History	500,000
Total	$6,650,000

A remarkable report indeed. A report calculated to startle men into action. Hard-headed men shake their heads and doubt, but there is a leader who believes utterly in the validity of his vision. He carries his fight at once and with eager jauntiness into the very camp of the conservatives—in New York. On December 9 he makes his great address at the Princeton dinner in the Waldorf-Astoria.

When he tells them that the preceptorial system alone "will need two millions and a quarter," the reporter of the speech remarks drily in parenthesis:

"Whistles from the audience."

And well may they whistle! But the new president comes back with the kind of response beloved of strong men:

Will Need More

"I hope you will get your whistling over, because you will have to get used to this, and you may thank your stars I did not say four millions and a quarter, because we are going to get it. (Applause). I suspect there are gentlemen in this room who are going to give me two millions and a quarter to get rid of me. They will be able to get rid of me in no other way that I know of.

"And then, gentlemen, in order to do these other things which I have dreamed of, we shall need a great deal more than two millions and a quarter. I have not guessed at any figure that I have uttered. I have calculated upon a basis that I think in business would be recognized as a sound basis, every cent that I have estimated that Princeton will need, and the total is twelve millions and a half." (Applause).

Such a leader may indeed frighten timid souls, but he attracts the strong. One of the ablest men in the faculty, Andrew F. West, destined to become one of Wilson's bitter opponents, wrote to him:

"To want great things is the first step toward getting them."

A spirit of new faith and of high endeavor took hold of the entire institution.

"I cannot tell you with what a feeling of relief I look forward to the years to come. I feel as if my fighting days were over—not I hope my working days—but that I can now pursue the glorious arts of peace and do my duty without irritation of mind," wrote W. F. Magie to Wilson on August 12, 1902.

Many of the teachers rewrote their lectures to bring them up to the measure of the new spirit, and the faculty began to come together to discuss the vital problems of the university as never before. There were many able men on the staff, but they had "lacked the consciousness of the university idea." New committees were constituted and a new dean, Henry B. Fine, a firm supporter of Wilson's program, was presently appointed. He was to become the backbone of Wilson's administration.

From the day the college opened in 1902 the student body knew that the university had "entered upon a new era." Something stimulating, something interesting pervaded the very air of the place.

New Ideas of Success

"I am not going to propose that we compel the undergraduates to work all the time, but I am going to propose that we make the undergraduates want to work all the time," said Wilson in an after-dinner speech.

Wilson loathed the old system of coaching for examinations, the mere memorizing of facts. He often related with relish the answer he once found on an examination paper: "This question is unfair. It requires thought."

It was inevitable that this tightening-up process should result in many academic casualties, should react upon the parents, often the rich and powerful parents of students who considered the university a kind of "intellectual country club."

"Not long ago a gentleman approached me in great excitement just after the entrance examinations," he told an audience of Phi Beta Kappa men. "He said we had made a great mistake in not taking so and so from a certain school which he named. 'But,' I said, 'he did not pass the entrance examinations.' And he went over the boy's moral excellencies again. 'Pardon me,' I said, 'you do not understand. He did not pass the entrance examinations. Now,' I said, 'I want you to understand that if the Angel Gabriel applied for admission to Princeton University and could not pass the entrance examinations he would not be admitted. He would be wasting his time.' It seemed a new idea to him. This boy had come from a school which cultivated character, and he was a nice, lovable fellow with a presentable character. Therefore, he ought to be admitted to any university. I fail to see it from this point of view, for a university is an institution of purpose."

"Preps" Toe the Mark

Such a stern adherence to discipline also disturbed and alarmed the preparatory schools, whose formula for "getting students by the examiners" was threatened. One of the masters made a trip to Princeton to see Wilson, and was thoroughly convinced. He wrote afterward that he believed Wilson to be "the greatest force I have seen for good in our work," and that if the new plans could be carried out it would not only put Princeton at the head of American colleges, but it would lift the whole body of instruction in preparatory schools. Princeton was now the great hope.

"We all agree, we school teachers, that this is the man we can follow," one principal wrote to Cleveland Dodge.

Discipline was sharpened all along the line. The honor system was placed on a firmer foundation by the organization of a senior council, and there was less tolerance for the "amiable excesses" of an older time. Not long after the new administration began several students were suspended for participation in a beer party. When Stockton Axson inquired what had happened the president promptly retorted:

"It has happened that there is going to be some discipline in this college."

"President Wilson was never a prohibitionist, but he did object to intemperance," says Prof. Winthrop M. Daniels.

On occasion he could be adamant, and suffer from it afterward himself.

A student had cheated and was to be expelled. His mother came to beg "Cousin Woodrow" to keep the boy in college.

"I am to have an operation," she said, "and I think I shall die if my boy is expelled."

"Madame," he answered, "we cannot keep in college a boy reported by the student council as cheating: if we did, we should have no standard of honor. You force me to say a hard thing, but if I had to choose between your life or my life, or anybody's life, and the good of this college I should choose the good of the college."

"And," said Ellen to Mary Hoyt afterward, "he came from the interview so white and ill that he could eat no lunch."

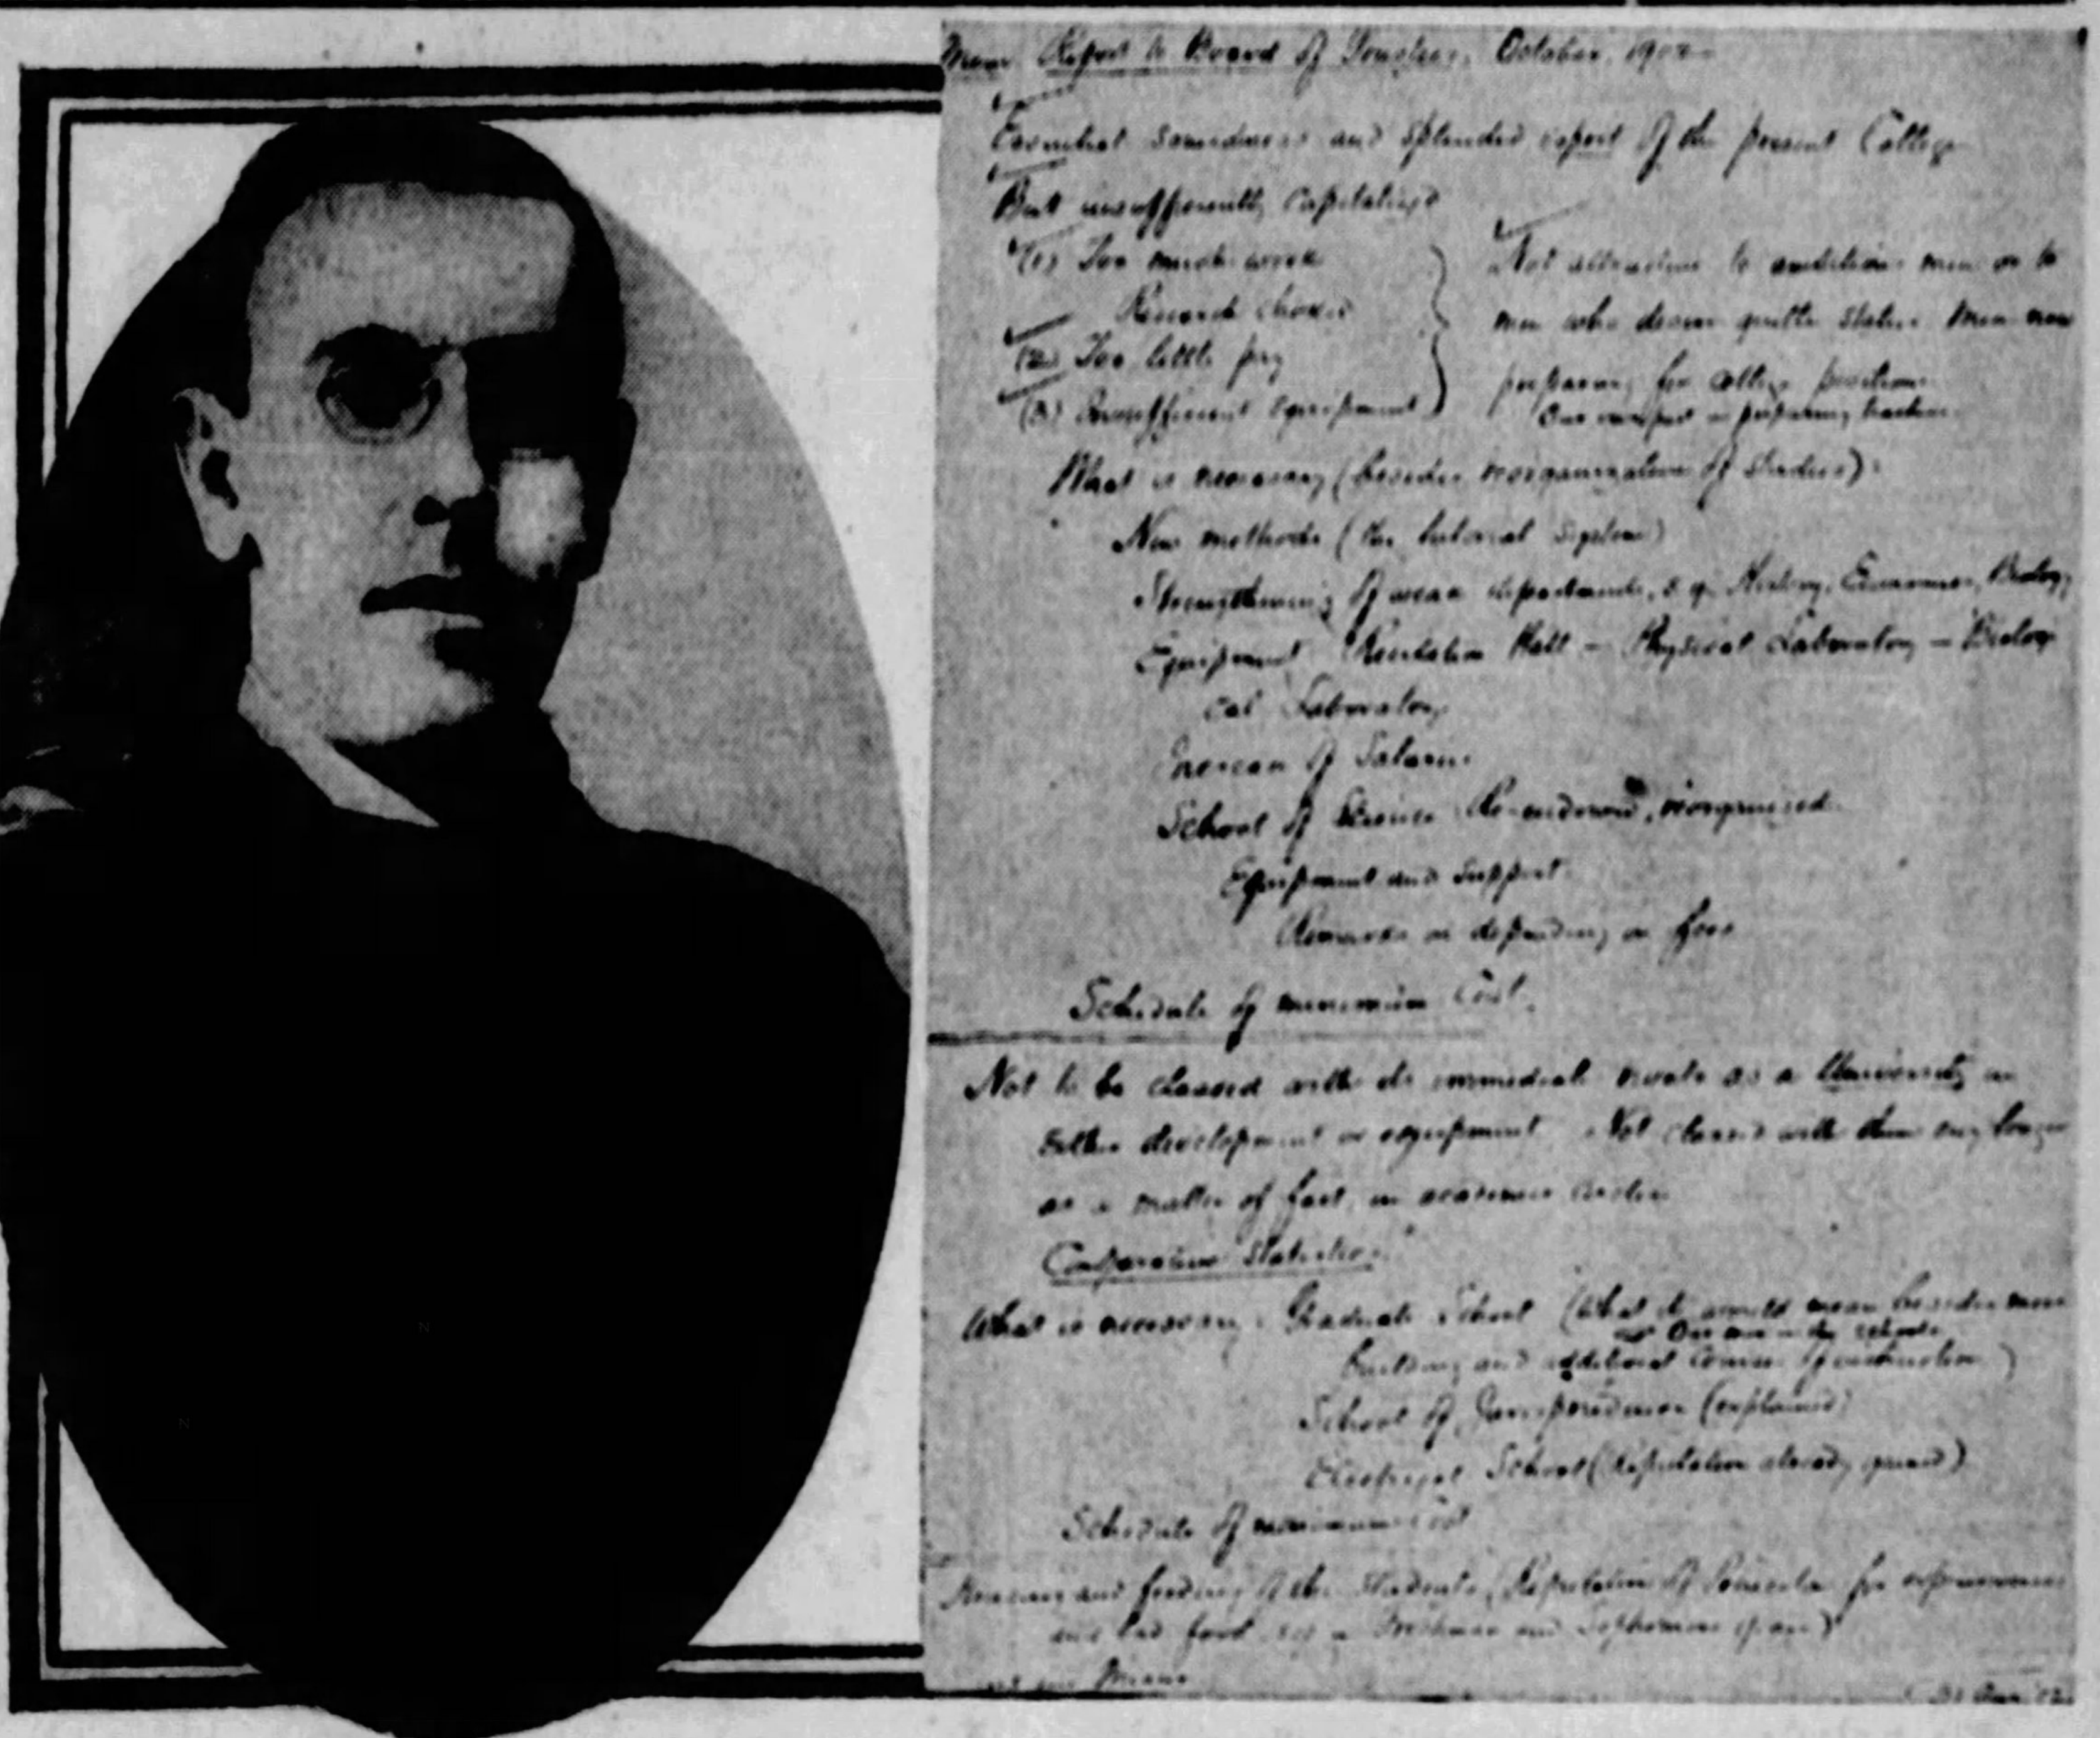
One result of the stricter enforcement of rules of scholarship and more vigorous discipline upon the student body was a decrease in enrollment. Fifty fewer men entered in the fall of 1904 than in the year before. Those who judged the progress of the university quantitatively, by numbers, were disturbed by this result. But Wilson himself was so "covetous of everything that would bring academic distinction to Princeton" that he was indifferent to the mere number of students. He knew well that the increased prestige that would follow his reforms would soon correct the difficulty, as indeed it did, and he had the absolute support of both faculty and trustees.

"Great reforms have to be paid for," wrote a trustee, John De Witt. "And I think that the intelligent friends of Princeton, who study its movements with care, will be disposed to congratulate you, as I do heartily, that the loss in numbers has been so slight."

The great majority of students themselves, from the very first, were ardent in their admiration of the new president. Youth well knows when it finds a leader who asks of them hard but great things to do.

In tomorrow's chapter will be told the story of how Wilson reorganized Princeton, introducing new methods of instruction, establishing the plan of preceptors and inspiring both faculty and students with fresh enthusiasm.

WILSON, GOWNED, HIS PLANS FOR PRINCETON'S PROGRESS



Memo. Report to Board of Trustees, October 1902.

Excellent soundness and splendid repute of the present College

But insufficiently capitalized

(1) Too much work
Research checked
(2) Too little pay
(3) Insufficient equipment

Not attractive to ambitious men or to men who desire quiet study. Men now preparing for college positions. [illegible]

What is necessary (besides reorganization of studies):

New methods (the tutorial system)

Strengthening of weak departments, e.g. History, Economics, Biology

Equipment: Recitation Hall — Physical Laboratory — Biological Laboratory

Increase of Salaries

School of Science Re-endowed, reorganized

Equipment and support

[illegible]

Schedule of minimum cost.

Not to be classed with its immediate rivals as a University in either development or equipment. Not classed with them any longer as a matter of fact in academic circles

Comparative Statistics

What is necessary: Graduate School (what it would mean besides mere building and additional courses of instruction)

School of Jurisprudence (explained)

Electrical School ([illegible])

Schedule of minimum cost

Housing and feeding of the students ([illegible] Freshmen and Sophomores [illegible])

As president of Princeton University, Woodrow Wilson plunged into work to raise the college standards. Part of a memorandum for his first report to the trustees in his own handwriting indicates his ambitious plans.

This Raid Didn't Take, Even With Evidence

An apparent lapse of memory by Police Lieut. James J. Callaghan made things smoother and easier for Dan Stack, 39, saloonkeeper of 1301 Federal street, in Allegheny Police Court today.

Stack's place was raided by Callaghan last night on complaint of Matt Bach, 46, Castle Shannon miner, that after he had consumed a hefty quantity of liquor he had been robbed of $475. Callaghan arrested Stack and four visitors and, according to the police records, seized three slot machines and a half-gallon of wine.

When he testified in court Callaghan made no mention of the seizure of slot machines and wine. So Magistrate E. M. Hough discharged Stack and the visitors.

Bach, minus $475, set out for Castle [illegible] few nickels in his

ANSWERS SLUR ON M'GOVERN

Assistant Superintendent of Police Leo S. Coleman and Inspector J. J. McArdle have "exposed themselves as unfit examples of officers" by their attack upon Charles C. McGovern, according to a statement issued today by T. C. Price at the McGovern-Shields headquarters.

"The slur as to what was told as having happened on the Mexican border is given the lie by the number of his men who served under him in the Mexican border and in the World War who are now boosting and working for him as a candidate for County Commissioner," said Price. "As to McGovern's action in the Biddle brothers' case, no sane peace-loving person will find fault with him for his decisive way of dealing with desperate escaped murderers, one of whom had killed his buddy, Detective Fitzgerald. All except some jealous police officers will honor him for his unwavering courage and persistency in bringing them to final justice."

The payment of witness fees to police, which was stopped by McGovern, is illegal, Price said.

SERENADING NON-UNION MINERS BRING FINES

WASHINGTON, Pa., Oct. 25.—A serenade played on dish pans and wash boilers, given in honor of a family of a non-union miner who was moving away, cost the wives of five union Daisytown miners $1 and costs each, when they were arraigned before Alderman J. F. Carmichael.

DEVER STAYS ON BALLOT

Judge Ambrose B. Reid, Common Pleas Court, in an opinion handed down today dismissed a petition which sought to have the name of H. C. Dever, candidate of the Clean Ballot party for re-election as alderman of the Fourteenth Ward, stricken off the ballot at the general election. Dever's opponents charged fraud in the petition.

LIQUOR SEIZED IN RAID ON HOTEL AT SUTERSVILLE

GREENSBURG, Pa., Oct. 25.—A supply of liquor, concealed in a garbage can, was reported discovered by county detectives in a raid on the Osborne Hotel, Sutersville.

$20,000,000 IN HEARST BONDS SOLD

By Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Oct. 25.—Announcement was made today of the largest newspaper issue of the year, when it was stated that Hearst Publications, Incorporated, has sold an issue of $20,000,000 first mortgage and collateral trust 6½ per cent serial bonds to Halsey, Stuart & Co. and Anglo London-Paris Company. Public offering of the bonds, which mature serially from November 1, 1928, to November 1, 1947, will be made shortly.

Retirement of more than $7,000,000 in bonds and purchase of the entire capital stock of the Post-Intelligencer Company, publishers of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, will be effected with a part of the proceeds of the issue. In addition, new plants, costing approximately $2,225,000, will be constructed for use by the San Francisco Examiner and Oakland Post-Inquirer. The rapid growth of the latter two papers has made the acquisition of new plants and new machinery essential.

Acquisition of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer brings into one group six of the largest papers on the Pacific coast, and combines under a central management all of the Hearst papers on the west coast. In addition to the Post-Intelligencer, which is the largest paper in Seattle, the papers in the Hearst Publications group are: The San Francisco Examiner, largest morning paper in that city; San Francisco Call and Post, the largest evening paper; the Los Angeles Examiner and the Los Angeles Herald, largest morning and largest evening papers respectively in Los Angeles, and the Oakland Post-Inquirer, the second paper in size in Oakland. The latter, though second in size, has had a much more rapid growth in the past three-year period than its competitor.

The bonds being retired are $7,400,000 Hearst Publications, Inc., first mortgage and collateral trust 6½ per cent bonds. This move marks the final step in the redemption of the $12,000,000 issue originally offered in April of 1924. In March of this year, provision was made for the retirement of $2,400,000 of the bonds, when Hearst Magazines, Inc., was formed to take over the International Magazine Company, Inc. The latter organization is the publisher of five outstanding magazines which were included in the Hearst publications group at the time of its organization in 1924. The magazines are Cosmopolitan, Good Housekeeping, Harper's Bazar, Motor, and Motor Boating.

The remaining $2,200,000 of the original issue was retired by series maturities, $1,100,000, on May 1, 1926, and $1,100,000 on May 1 of the present year.

In connection with this retirement it is interesting to note that the investors who purchased the original Hearst issue will receive an excellent return on their investment. The bonds were originally offered at 100 and interest, and the bonds still outstanding are now being called at 104 and interest, so that the holder of a $1,000 bond will receive a premium of $40 in addition to the 6½ per cent interest.

2 HELD AS DOPE PEDDLERS

Two alleged dope peddlers, said by police to have been supplying narcotics to addicts more than a year, were to be given a hearing in police court today as a result of a raid on a house at 2022 Atmore street yesterday. Police reported confiscating a quantity of morphine and heroin concealed in a secret panel in the wall. Those arrested are Milton Bankert and John P. Trent, of 2022 Atmore street. Trent, police say, was a roomer in the house.

CORN-CRIB PREFERRED TO HOSPITAL COT

CUMBERLAND, Md., Oct. 25.—Nancy Malone, nearing 100, and her sister, Eliza, 85, ill in their corn-crib cabin in the Allegheny Mountains beyond Oldtown, refused to leave their abode when invited by representatives of the Allegany Hospital here to be taken to that institution for treatment. Rain poured through the roof onto the straw-sack beds of the aged sisters. They accepted first-aid remedies, but said they preferred their habitat where the family has lived for two centuries to modern surroundings.

Whereas A Girl Risks Her All To Get A Rich Society Husband

by Gilbert Rogers

impossible to pay for what had been selected already—so now it didn't matter. She moved in a dream, trying on things, seeing a great leather wardrobe trunk with heavy stripes of canvas, tapped with pencil, picked out with a glance, hearing Mrs. Brooke pause to finger some stockings with "Oh, six dozen of these—all shades. We'll give away the ones we don't like. So much easier than picking them out here. We've so many things to do still."

And the evening gown—that one special evening gown like nothing else she had gotten—coral chiffon, pale, elusive—could anything be so beautiful. Margie, her dark head held on one side, advanced slowly, gravely, yet trembling the least little bit. Never, never could anything touch this moment.

"You're ravishing—ravishing!" Carlotta Brooke shook her head. "You're going to be a sensation—you are one."

They were there at the apartment awaiting her, each evening, the things she had purchased, the things in jersey and silk, the sport clothes for golf, tennis, yachting, the innumerable things which Margie wondered how she could ever pack.

Then she seemed to come to her senses. "Oh, what have I done!" she almost wailed. "Carlotta—what have you made me do? I have enough to last me for the rest of my life—and you say we're going away for only two or three months."

Carlotta Brooke lay back at the foot of Margie's bed. She so clearly liked to be with her, so clearly liked her—something that could be felt. Margie remembered that first meeting, with hostility in the air so thick you could cut it with a knife. But Dan Shevlin had not appeared since, and Carlotta knew she had told the truth. And she was lonely perhaps. She was having more fun than Margie.

Little hints, lectures that were ever so carefully disguised, the shrewd gleanings of a woman who had seen the world, they came out in evening talks. And Margie listened with thoughtful eyes.

After Carlotta had gone, she thought of something she wanted to say. She tiptoed into the other room. Carlotta was there huddled on the floor, her arms against the day bed, her head buried in them. She was sobbing softly in a hard way that hurt.

For a moment Margie stood without moving. Then all at once [illegible] this must be a grief she [illegible] hope to comfort. She [illegible] wondering. Why had [illegible]—this woman who had everything—been crying like that?

But in the morning Carlotta's eyes were clear and frank. She was full of the preparations for departure, wires, trains, orders, last minute confusions. They were leaving for Newport today.

Margie's campaign had begun!

CHAPTER VIII.

MARGIE was not exactly disappointed in the house. No, surprised rather. After those 10 days of wild extravagance she had half suspected she was going to inhabit a palace.

A palace of domes and towers with shining crystal halls and a flight of steps that stretched away in the distance—such as a genii out of the Arabian Nights might provide with a wave of the hand.

But Mrs. Brooke's "cottage" was a white, rambling, unimpressive house she felt—with so many old things mixed up with other things that were new. Funny, odd little prints on the wall, slit-back chairs with rush-bottom seats, strange old highboys, and a pine dresser in the dining room crowded with pewter plates that were never used.

Antiques—early American antiques—that was the clue. This was good taste, the correct taste for a Colonial cottage, and not at all dingy when you got used to them. Besides there was the butler and the unbelievably good food, and the three maids who moved noiselessly, bringing peace and order to whatever room they passed through.

Cold, bleak skies pretending that spring was not yet here, not yet come to New England, and pretending with some assurance. Carlotta was busy with a thousand details, opening up this room, having that thing cleaned, telephoning markets, calling up friends, rushing about in her car, and leaving Margie to herself.

"Next week—tea. You might as well hide until then. I must find out who's here. Oh, isn't the mail beastly! Not a word from—from anyone . . ."

Margie sat alone in the soft grey drawing-room. A man came down the Colonial staircase, and stood looking at her. Uncomfortable, inscrutable eyes—unhappy eyes.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

SAY IT WITH SILENCE!

SILENCE is radium!

ONCE it may have been merely 'golden;" but in these days, when everybody is bursting with pep, frankness, loose chatter and "ready wit,' it is far more rare and precious than eighteen-carat gold.

* * *

Particularly in a WOMAN! It is the most effective charm and the most effective weapon that any woman can possess in the love-game.

HELEN ROWLAND

If you can keep SILENT long enough, you can win any man on earth, win any quarrel, win back any lost love.

Silence protects a woman like a lace curtain. She can peep through it and watch the parade go by; but nobody can penetrate it and see what's going on inside her mind or her heart.

You can always tell a real "charmer" by the velvety silence that surrounds her—a silence that makes the chatter of other women sound like a cheap jazz orchestra.

Most men fall in love through their eyes—and out of it through their EARS.

A woman's illusions may be starved to death or shocked to death; but a man's illusions are nearly always TALKED to death.

A woman always wants to begin a love-affair with confessions and avowals, and to end it with argument, explanations and recriminations. A man prefers to begin it with a kiss—and end it with a sudden departure.

A woman is always exploding with a desire to TELL things, SAY things, clear things up, have an "understanding," and get it "out of her system!"

* * *

Whether you want to get a man's love, or merely his "goat"—whether you want to make a man look at you, think of you, love you—or merely make him suffer, don't say it with words. Say it with SILENCE!

AN OBLIGING BEAUTY DOCTOR

A Beauty Specialist Gives Home-Made Recipe to Darken Gray Hair.

Mrs. M. D. Gillespie, a well-known beauty specialist of Kansas City, recently gave out the following statement regarding gray hair:

"Anyone can prepare a mixture at home that will darken gray hair, and make it glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ ounce of glycerine.

These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and will not rub off."

Easier Ways To Lose Fat

Some can reduce by starvation or abnormal exercise, but the way is long and hard. Not one in ten of the over-fat has the patience to continue. And even then the best efforts may fail unless the inner cause is corrected.

Over twenty years ago scientific men discovered a great cause of excess fat. They found a substance which Nature employs to turn food into fuel and energy rather than into fat. They proved that an extra supply of that substance could check the formation of fat.

That substance was embodied in Marmola prescription tablets. People have used them for two decades—millions of boxes of them. Now you can see in almost every circle how much they have done for beauty, health and vitality. Doubtless some of your friends can tell you. Slenderness prevails today, fat is the exception.

The use of Marmola requires no abnormal exercise or diet, though moderation helps. Users simply take four tablets daily until the weight comes down to normal. They combat the cause.

Try the help which has done so much for so many. You owe that to yourself. You cannot afford to stay over-fat when reduction is so easy and so pleasant. Watch the results, then tell your friends, as people have for 20 years been doing. All your life you will be glad that you know Marmola. Go order now.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 per box. If your druggist is out, he will get them at once from his jobber.

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

By ADELE GARRISON

Mary Harrison and Eleanor Lincoln Clearly Appear as Rivals in Love

THAT Eleanor Lincoln was deeply chagrined by the failure of her ingenious plan to have Noel Veritzen as a daily luncheon guest, I saw, although she did not let the smile fade from her face. But trust one woman to read the face of another. I knew a sure method of bringing her back to good humor, however, and I used it promptly, though I knew that it meant distinct displeasure on Dicky's part. But the balances on my husband's side of our account of mutual irritation were still way down, and I had no compunctions for the little farewell speech I made to our young hostess.

"There is one luncheon you surely mustn't forget," I told her when we had climbed into the car and I, leaning from the seat, was again saying goodby. "That is the one at which I have planned you shall meet Mr. Philip Veritzen. When I return from the city after seeing him, I shall come to see you and tell you about it."

The smile which mechanically had been wreathing her lips became genuine—was mirrored in her eyes.

"That is awfully sweet of you," she said. "Indeed I shan't forget. I'm simply crazy to meet that man."

Dicky put his hand upon the gear shift, and I released Miss Lincoln's fingers abruptly. The car shot forward and the next minute we were out in the road, headed for home.

"Perhaps she won't be quite so crazy when she meets Mr. Veritzen," Mary commented tartly. "He sure can hand out the icy mitt if he thinks anybody's trying to work him for anything."

I smiled to myself but was careful to let Dicky's young niece see no hint of my amusement. There was a vindictiveness in her tone of whose source I knew that she herself was unconscious. But I mentally commented that the young and imperious chatelaine of The Larches would have her work cut out for her if she attempted to annex Noel Veritzen's affections. Mary might have no intention of acquiring him as a permanent possession, but she surely did not intend to let any other young woman have him.

Dicky did not speak once on the way home, and I knew that he was sulking over my avowed intention of inviting Philip Veritzen down to the east end of the island. When he reached the farmhouse and signaled me to remain after Mary and Noel had gone into the house, I was much surprised, for in view of the odd conditions under which we were living, I did not think that he would expostulate with me concerning my proposed invitation to the famous theatrical producer. Yet I could think of nothing else that he could wish to say to me. We very rarely consulted each other about anything any more.

But this communication after all had nothing to do with my employer.

"This is as good a time as any for me to check up on those lads over in Grimsey's shack," he said. "I'll just walk over now and see what they have to say for themselves. See that Junior doesn't leave the yard. I don't think he's spied me yet."

"He's probably having his nap," I returned, glad that I was spared the sarcastic remarks I had expected upon the subject of Philip Veritzen. "But I'll make sure that he stays safely here. Do you think you'll find both men? Has that red-bearded man had time to get back there?"

Dicky glanced at me oddly.

"I'll have to take that risk," he said. "At any rate I'll stick around until he does come to the shack."

I looked nervously at him.

"They're not very prepossessing men," I said a bit timidly. "Are you sure it's safe—?"

He laughed a bit unpleasantly.

"There's no danger of your becoming a fascinating widow through anything they may do," he said. "They're ruffians, of course, but they have common sense enough to keep out of the trouble they'd surely get into if they tackled me."

He swung the stick he always carries, the end of which I know is especially loaded. It is one which he carried ever since an attack made upon him in the street one night several years ago. But I shivered at the implication of possible danger which his gesture implied.

Finest cough medicine you ever used. Family supply easily made. Saves about $2.

You might be surprised to know that the best thing you can use for a severe cough, is a remedy which is easily prepared at home in just a few moments. It's cheap, but for prompt results it beats anything else you ever tried. Usually stops the ordinary cough or chest cold in 24 hours. Tastes pleasant—children like it, and it is pure and good.

And as a cough medicine, there is really nothing better to be had at any price. It goes right to the spot and gives quick, lasting relief. It promptly heals the inflamed membranes that line the throat and air passages, stops the annoying throat tickle, loosens the phlegm, and soon your cough stops entirely. Splendid, too, for bronchitis, hoarseness and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract and palatable guaiacol, famous for healing the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Every Woman Should Know About This.

It is as much your duty to be attractive as to keep a well-ordered house.

Let us suggest here, a recently discovered Toilet Accessory known as Mibalm Liquid Vanishing Cream.

Dry Your Feet Quickly After Rains

A FEW days ago I witnessed a terrific rainstorm. It came up suddenly, surprising hundreds of persons and wetting them to the skin.

DR. COPELAND

Does it do harm to get wet?

It all depends on what you do afterward. If you do the right thing it does no more harm than your morning bath.

If you stay in your wet garments it will do you harm. This is particularly true of wet shoes.

Of course, we do not believe all the things about "taking cold" that used to be accepted as gospel. We know now that adenoids, diseased nasal sinuses and tonsils, bad teeth and gums, indigestion and all the other infections have much to do with attacks which used to be blamed on "drafts," wet feet and exposure to the weather.

Some of us are laughed at for talking about "lowered resistance," but no experienced physician can doubt that anything which weakens the strength prepares the way for many diseases. The chilling after a drenching and the unfavorable effects of wearing wet shoes for a long time will certainly prepare the way for the entrance into your body of the ever watchful germs of disease.

You must not think you can go on indefinitely in the abuse and neglect of your precious body. Blessed with a strong constitution and powerful frame, you may act for years, defying the elements, apparently unaffected by things which will send a weaker relative to bed or the hospital. But not forever. In the language of Ecclesiastes, the Preacher:

"Rejoice, O young man, in thy youth, and let thy heart cheer thee in the days of thy youth; and walk in the ways of thy heart, and in the sight of thine eyes; but know thou, that of all these things God will bring three into judgment."

Just as sure as can be, you will reach a day when outraged Nature will demand payment. You cannot use your body as you will and not be called into judgment.

Don't stay in wet garments. Get out of them into dry clothing. Have an extra pair of shoes where you work. Change into them and let your street shoes dry out before making the return journey.

We are always growling about "trouble." We don't like to do "unnecessary things." But I assure you, getting rid of wet garments is not doing an unnecessary thing. Nothing is unnecessary which is a precaution against getting sick.

Be sensible about the care of your body. A few precautions now and then will help to ward off illness. Every illness escaped is just so much added to the expectation of life.

Answers to Health Queries

P. N.—Q. I have just had my tonsils removed and wish to build up in general. Would you advise cod liver oil?

A. Yes, combined with lots of rest, careful diet, plenty of outdoor life; and be sure to keep the system clear. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

N. T.—Q. What can I do to rid myself of warts?

A.—This requires special treatment. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

R. K. S. Q.—What is the cause of goitre? What treatment would you advise.

A.—This condition is due to oversecretion or improper functioning of the thyroid glands. For particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

M. Y. Q.—What should a girl 16 years of age weigh who is 5 feet 4 inches tall?

2—When one has had hay fever for several years will one continue to have it always?

3—How can large hips be reduced?

A.—For her age and height she should weigh about 117 pounds.

2—In all probability. Your doctor can have you tested to find out which pollen from grasses or flowers affects you and you can then be immunized against hay fever. Make sure that there is no nasal obstruction which might cause your trouble.

3—Perhaps if you reduced in general it might help. Exercise is necessary. One of the best exercises for this trouble is brisk walking. For information on weight reduction send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

4—If due to fat, exercises or massage will reduce them. If due to large bones and muscle, the trouble cannot be remedied.

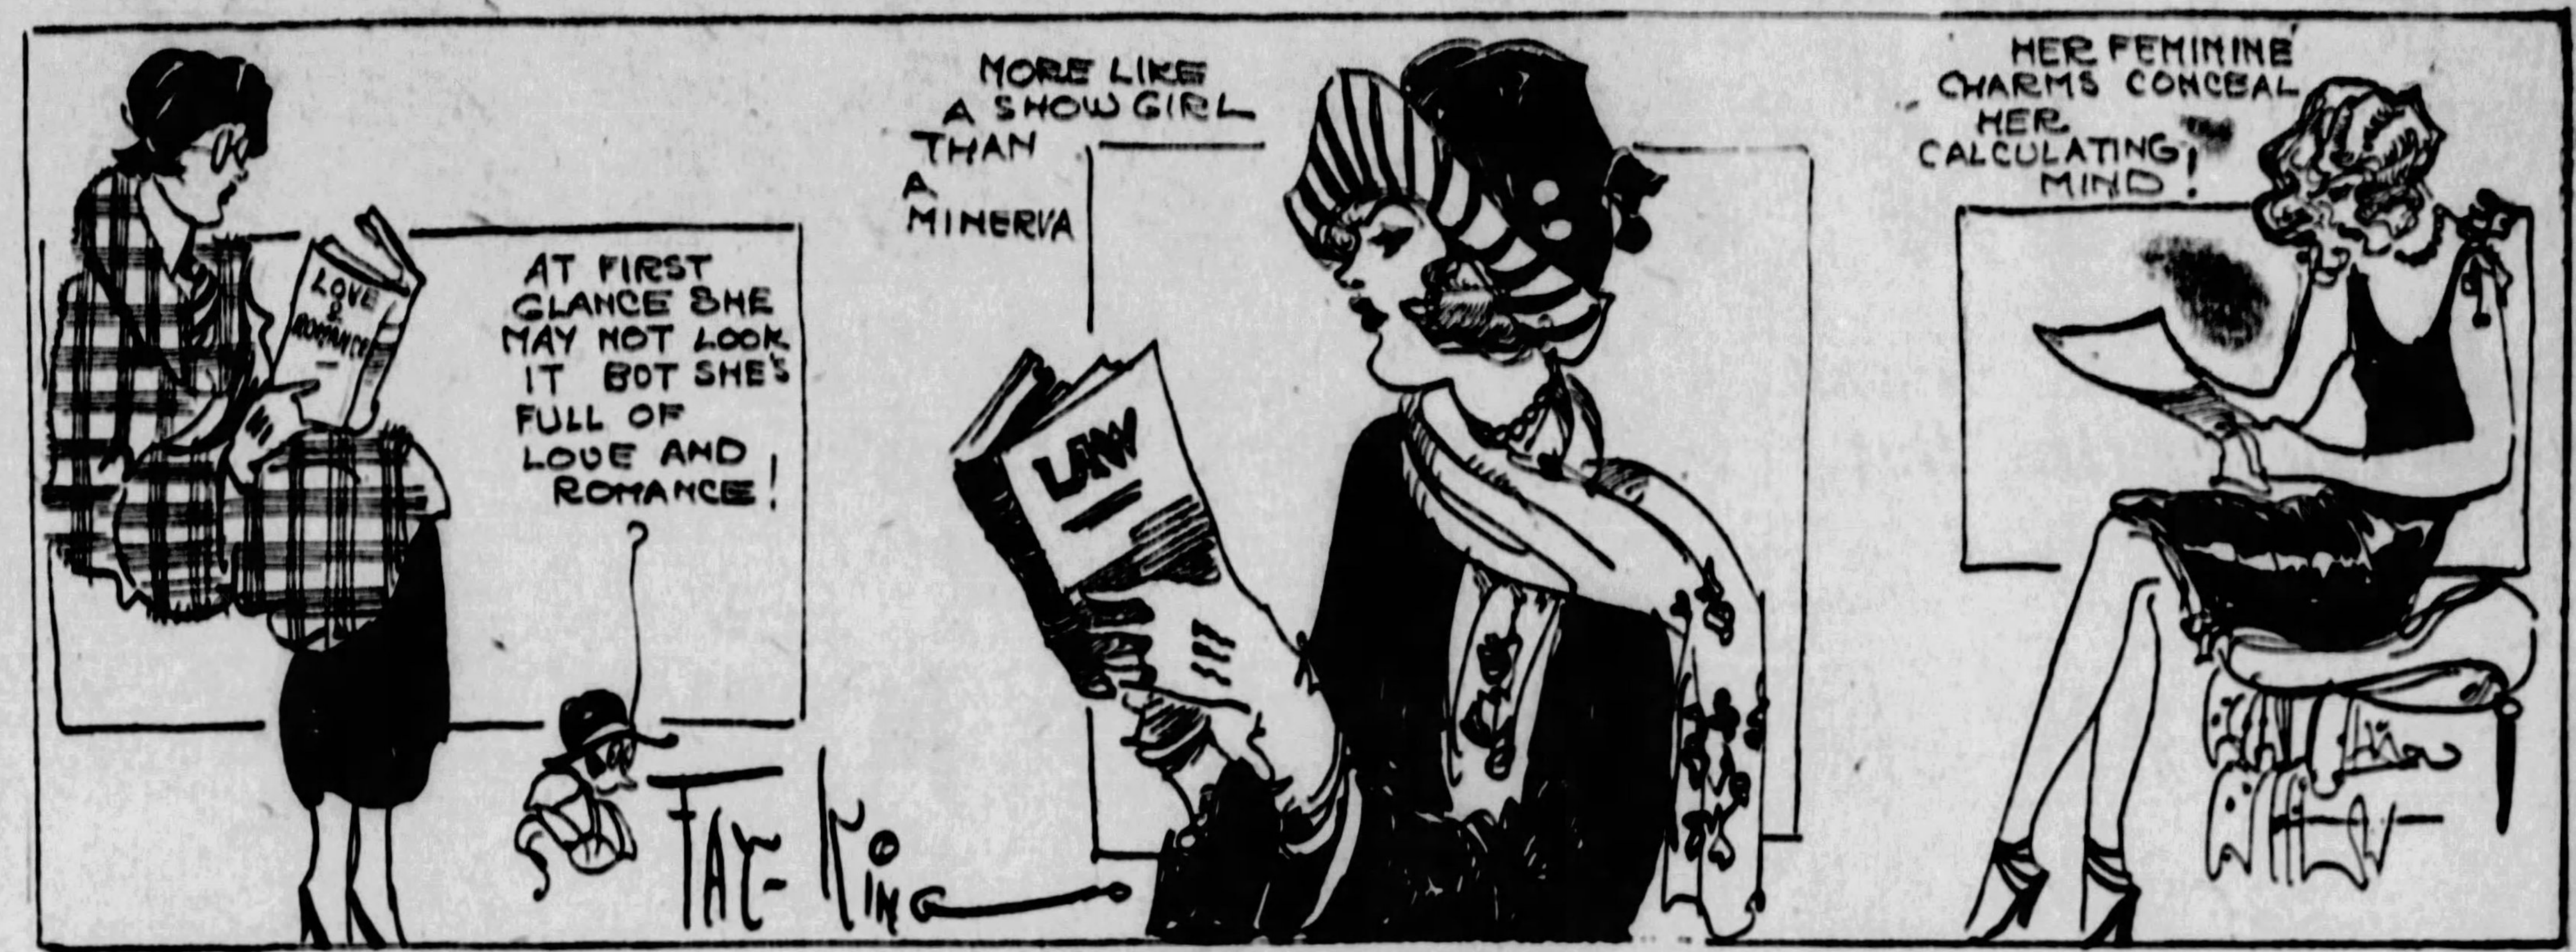
Brainy Girls Truly Romantic, Says Fay King



LOVE & ROMANCE
AT FIRST GLANCE SHE MAY NOT LOOK IT BUT SHE'S FULL OF LOVE AND ROMANCE!
MORE LIKE A SHOW GIRL THAN A MINERVA
LAW
HER FEMININE CHARMS CONCEAL HER CALCULATING MIND!
FAY-KING

By FAY KING.

WHEN the average romantic male glimpses a girl with a high forehead and shiny nose and studentish glasses, he runs a mile!

He does not think she is filled with romance. He dreads to meet a smart brainy woman!

But let him get a whiff of elusive perfume and see a pinky cheek and sparkling eye surrounded by bits of lace and a shoulder bouquet, and he hovers around just yearning for a chance to play slave while the little female Simon Legree in satin cracks the whip and makes him jump through!

Yet beneath the forbidding and brainy looking exterior is often concealed the most romantic of hearts. She is welled up with poetry. Given a chance to idealize the man of her choice, the sombre looking little moth person often becomes the most enchanting of butterflies.

She adores to pet and pamper the man she loves, and builds a little home of love and beauty that accounts for the happiness one so often sees in the faces of couples who look anything but like the illustration of popular love stories in the magazines.

On the other hand, the really smart girl knows that the best weapon and bait she can use is all the ultra feminine fixtures.

She stalks her prey and victim in all the confidence inspiring regalia of winsome helplessness, but all the time under that marcelled head and kittenish glance, her scheming, ambitious, domineering mentality, is directing the whole proceeding. Before a man knows it he is the helpless victim.

I observed the daintiest creatures delving into law and economics while some of the drabbest little persons are all aglow devouring romance and love stories.

And some of the most hen-pecked husbands have the prettiest wives!

Milady Beautiful

By LOIS LEEDS

SOMETIMES readers ask me to publish a recipe for a bleach that will make a naturally dark complexion blond. This is, of course, impossible. If such a recipe had been discovered, the inventor would be one of the world's richest men and the present ration between fair-skinned and dark-skinned people would be reversed.

A legitimate use for skin bleaches, is the removal of tan and sun freckles. The latter come on naturally fair complexions and are accumulations of pigment deposited over the tiny nerve ends to protect them from irritations caused by the sun's rays. These blemishes may be bleached to a lighter hue, but they will return if the skin is exposed again to strong direct sunlight. The skin must be protected with a suitable powder base and powder, and should be shaded by a wide hat or parasol whenever one goes outdoors. In addition to this preventive treatment, a mild bleaching lotion may be applied two or three times a day and a bleaching pack used twice a week.

On coming indoors after having been exposed to the sun, one should rub the skin with olive oil. After leaving the oil on for several minutes, squeeze out a pad of absorbent cotton in witch hazel and wipe the oil off with it. Dust with stearate of zinc. If the skin is severely burned, however, pat on a lotion made of linseed oil and lime water. Leave on for several hours or overnight. Repeat the application next morning. If the skin is broken, pat on a healing salve.

A simple bleaching pack to use for freckles or tan may be made by beating the white of an egg to a stiff froth and adding two tablespoonfuls of almond or olive oil. Paint the mixture on the skin at bedtime, leaving it on over night. Next morning wash off the egg with tepid water. Dry and pat on the following soothing lotion: Two ounces witch hazel, one-half ounce of glycerin, one ounce of cologne water, two ounces rose water.

Fair skins that are subject to freckles all the year round are benefited by buttermilk washes and facial packs, which may be taken as often as desired without harmful results. The milk is stirred to a paste with cornmeal or almond meal, and the mixture is left on the skin for about an hour, being kept moist with buttermilk throughout this time.

There are some stubborn freckles that refuse to fade out entirely, no matter what bleach is applied. In such cases one should try to be content with partial success. It is useless to continue using strong bleaches on these stubborn spots, since to do so irritates the skin without accomplishing the desired result. The bleaches given in this article are mild and harmless.

IS LOVE ENOUGH? By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

LONGING for happiness is a natural and blameless human motive. It is the motive that inspires love and marriage.

But do we always realize where our true happiness lies? Is happiness to be found in selfish pleasure at the cost of obligations to others?

This problem of happiness is causing my correspondent a battle with himself.

At his own request, I shall not print his letter. Fifteen years ago, it seems, he married a young woman whom he believed he loved. For two years they were very happy. Then they began to drift apart.

The wife was domestic. Their two children kept her busy at home. The husband's professional duties led him, he explains, into the society of "the elite of the city," and he was welcomed at exclusive homes.

His wife's relatives began insinuating that there must be some other attraction—another woman—since he remained away from home so often. She reproached him. He lost interest in her, his work, his home, and became very unhappy.

Finally he moved with his family to a smaller town, resolved to start over again and try to love the mother of his children. But he complains that here, as in the city, his wife proved "a back number." He says she found fault, nagged, went through his pockets while he slept. She neglected her appearance. She neglected him. One day he packed his belongings and calmly deserted her and his home. He does not state whether he made any provision for his wife and children.

Later my correspondent met a charming young woman. Her friendship for him was unselfish and devoted. She was an inspiration to him. He began to take interest in his work.

He fell in love with her and finally confessed that he was married. She asked whether he would do as she asked. He promised. She then sent him back to his deserted wife and children. Very reluctantly he went.

Shall he remain with his wife, whom he does not love, and his children, whom he loves dearly? Or shall he go to the woman he adores? That is the dilemma confronting my correspondent.

"Please advise me what to do—and try to make me happy," he begs, in concluding his letter.

It is not easy to urge my correspondent to deliberately turn his back on what he considers his one chance for happiness.

Yet the fine young woman he loves did just that. She sent him back to his duty.

I believe she was right! We cannot run away so lightly from our responsibilities.

When you married you assumed full responsibility, my friend, for the welfare of those two children of yours. It is primarily for the sake of children and their welfare, rather than for selfish pleasure, that marriage exists. Your children need their father as well as their mother. Give them their chance!

Surely you and your wife can manage at least mutual courteous friendliness, which, together with your devotion to the children, will provide them with a happy, wholesome home atmosphere and the start in life to which they are entitled.

I wonder whether your trouble has not been due to the fact that too often you have sought personal pleasure as the main object of your love, marriage and life.

The bliss of a honeymoon never has lasted, never can last throughout marriage. If content and a fine mutual affection are to succeed this brief period, there must be mutual adjustments, concessions and unselfish efforts to please on the part of husband and wife.

A person who expects the glamour of romantic love to continue throughout mararriage, however critical and harsh his own attitude, is doomed to disappointment.

In deserting your wife and children, you put your pleasure first, did you not? In encouraging a young woman to love you before telling her you were a married man, you certainly placed your pleasure of the moment before her welfare. In neglecting your work whenever you were not happy, you indulge yourself still further. With it all you are utterly wretched.

I cannot directly advise you regarding your next step, my friend. Your own conscience must do that. But I suggest that in your pursuit of happiness hereafter, you try a new method—unselfish service to those dependent on you, devotion to work and duty. Forget yourself—and your search for happiness—and see whether you will not find happiness.

Love in the sense of personal attraction between a man and woman, combined with self-indulgence, is not enough to bring lasting happiness. Only love in its best sense, including unselfish devotion to honor and duty and self-sacrifice, ever has or will crown a life with peace and joy through marriage.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

Wednesday, October 26

Fate is a name for facts not yet passed under the fire of thought—for causes which are unpenetrated.—Emerson.

JUDGING by the conflicting influence streaming from important planets on this day, there may be situations to tax good judgment and ingenuity. The tendency will be toward industry and application, with a sense of responsibility which would make it advantageous to seek confidential connections with large corporations, trusts or secret societies.

It is a good time for new contracts, even those of speculative character. But safeguard against rashness and small losses.

Those whose birthday it is may look for an interesting year, but one calling for good judgment. Push steadily forward and deal with trusts, close corporations or secret societies, make new contracts and handle speculation wisely.

A child born on this day should be versatile, ambitious, steady and industrious, and may be of value in stratagem, diplomacy or with secret orders.

For the Lovelorn

By ELEANOR GALE

"Eleanora May"

DEAR MISS GALE:

In less than two months I will reach the age of 21 and I can frankly say I'm pretty much disgusted with things in general. I think the "15-year-olds," who try to appear sophisticated, are ridiculous and need a good old-fashioned spanking. No, I'm no prude—far from it, but I certainly am not promiscuous. I'd far rather go out just once a week with a fellow whose company I enjoy than every night in the week with a crowd of rough-necks, whose one ambition is to drink and neck. I'll admit I have indulged in petting and smoking, but to a very small extent, but that has been even too much.

No doubt your readers will think I'm a reformer of some sort, but no, I'm not, but I want to tell you that I know just what fellows think of girls who hold themselves lightly, for my brothers speak amongst themselves of such girls and their opinions are not of the best. It's up to the girls to set the standards and stick to them. Girls, don't you ever get tired of continual cheap pastimes, which only mar your youth and stamp your reputation "black?" You may merely laugh and think that these little things don't count and won't hurt, but you know the small evils lead to serious wrongdoings before you know it. By saying all I have I don't mean I'm going to be tied to my sweet mother's apron strings, but that I will honestly and firmly indulge in pastimes of moderation and clean motives. I haven't met "Mr. Right" just yet, but I would like to soon settle down to marriage (not a drab existence) with a real pal and thus feel I am accomplishing a real feat and not one of those trial marriages—just for a day or so.

Wishing you continued success in your great work, I am

ELEANORA MAY.

Your advice to girls is excellent, my dear. I hope you will always maintain your high standards.

Waiting and Wondering

DEAR MISS GALE:

I am a boy 17 years old. Do you think I am too young to go out steady with a girl? I have been going with a girl for five months now. She is also 17. I love her and I am always thinking of her. We have been going steady and never had an argument or got mad at each other, until a few weeks ago when she began to go with a girl whom I do not think is very nice. This girl has a steady fellow and is running around with other fellows. I am afraid my girl will do the same. Do you think my girl ought to stay away from her? I asked my girl why she was going with her and she said, "Don't you like it?" If she really loves me surely she would stay away from her, if I told her to. Don't you think so? I am mad at her, but I do not know whether to stay mad as I love her. Miss Gale will you please tell me a way to find out if my girl loves me? Is it proper for her to wear my ring? She has been wearing it ever since I began to go with her.

WAITING AND WONDERING.

You are both too young to confine your interests to each other, and since she is not engaged to you, she has every right to go out with other boys. If this other girl really doesn't have a good reputation, it is all right to advise the girl you care for, but you can't expect to exact obedience to your every word, you know.

Wondering

DEAR MISS GALE:

I am coming to you for advice. I am a girl in the early teens and am very much in love with a boy five years my senior. When I first met him he cared a lot for me but this last month or so he does not pay any attention to me and does not care if he gets to see me or not. Now, Miss Gale, I love him and how do you think I can win his real friendship and get him to pay attention to me? Please tell me very briefly how I can regain his friendship. Should I ask him to call? When walking should your boy friend escort you? Should you let your boy friend kiss you "goodnight" every time he asks you; should I go with him?

WONDERING.

If this boy has lost interest in you, there is nothing you can do about it, my dear. It is almost impossible to revive a dead affection, so you had better turn your interest elsewhere. Don't ask him to call. He knows he is welcome and if he wants to come, he will ask you. It is all right to go walking with a boy, but don't let him kiss you. You need not go out with him every time he asks you unless you really want to do so.

CLOUDY TEETH?

This New Way Does Wonders Quickly. Noted Dentists Urge It. Accept 10-Day Tube Free!

TEETH seldom are naturally "off color." Most often they're merely coated with a film that forms on teeth and which absorbs discolorations from food, smoking, etc. By clearing it off, one's whole appearance may be changed.

Old-type dentifrices failed to remove that film successfully. That's why brushing has failed you. Now leading dentists urge the special film-removing dentifrice, Pepsodent, for this purpose.

Results are quick and surprising. Film coats go. Teeth whiten; sparkle like jewels. Bacteria that thrive in film are combated; tooth decay, gum troubles and pyorrhea thus scientifically fought.

All druggists sell Pepsodent in large tubes. Or send coupon for test free. Do this now.

Bankers Asked to Name Next President of U. S.

By B. C. FORBES

HOUSTON, Texas, Oct. 24.

WHO will be the next President of the United States? That is one question I am asking many of the five thousand bankers from all parts of the country who are now assembled here for the fifty-third annual convention of the American Bankers' Association. The subject excites intensely keen interest now that it is more generally taken for granted that President Coolidge will not consent to accept the nomination. Thus far all I have gathered is that Gov. Smith is not so extremely unpopular in the South as we have often been told and that Hoover appears to have more backers than Hughes. The results of my quizzing will be given later.

NO bitter fight is scheduled for this year's convention. Banking has been settled, apparently, for some time to come, by the McFadden Law. Senator Glass of Virginia, who was Secretary of the Treasury when the Federal Reserve Law was passed is due to speak tonight on "Some Federal Reserve Thoughts." This may open up discussion of the Reserve Board's right to order the Chicago Reserve Bank to cut its rediscount rate, but no fireworks are expected. Bankers prefer that the knotty question be not made a burning political issue. They are, as a rule, satisfied with the law as it is and do not want Congress to start tinkering with it or to have it thrown into the presidential campaign.

WHY have so many banks failed? A heavyweight committee consisting of economists and bankers have been conducting a searching investigation. Its findings will be presented, but they probably will be accepted unanimously by the convention. "Bad management" is likely to be the answer. The truth is that thousands of little banks are launched and run by men totally untrained as bankers. It is too easy to start a tiny bank. If all states insisted upon an adequate initial capital and surplus, the number of banking tragedies would be reduced.

THE general sessions don't begin until this morning when President Melvin A. Traylor, who is head of the First National Bank of Chicago, will yield the gavel. But his main address comes on Wednesday morning. The talk is that the next man to be put into line for the presidency will be John G. Lonsdale of the National Bank of Commerce, St. Louis. This year Tom Preston of Chattanooga will be named and next year Craig B. Hazlewood of Chicago. The rule is a tradition that A. B. A. presidents almost invariably are country lads who started most obscurely.

Wealthy birth is not a passport to the highest honor America can bestow upon a banker.

TREMENDOUSLY earnest and widespread is the demand that Congress promptly buckle down to preventing a repetition of the Mississippi havoc. The banking world would much rather have Washington attend to this than attempt further monkeying with private business. This expression from R. S. Hecht, the New Orleans banker, will reflect the general attitude.

"Land values in our section are very depressed and are bound to remain so unless and until Congress acts in such a way as to assure people that another disaster will not be permitted to occur. Doubtless Gen. Jadwin and the War Department and those associated with them will bring forward able plans, but the government must make such appropriations as will carry out the plans, not over a long period of years but as fast as the money can be effectively and economically spent.

"There must be no tinkering with the problem. It is too vital."

Business in New Orleans was badly affected in May, June and July, Mr. Hecht said, but it has since recovered encouragingly.

HOUSTON is giving the visiting bankers plenty of sunshine.

STOCKS DRIVEN UPWARD BY BUYING

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—(AP.)—Disregarding recent unfavorable corporation reports and disappointing railroad earnings statements, the stock market today was driven upward in the brisk competition to buy stocks as cheaply as possible. The purging of the market recently appeared to have placed it in a position affording ample justification for a natural rebound, and when prices began to mount, conservative interests awaiting definite signs of a check to the recent liquidation commenced to buy.

Shorts who had overstepped the market rushed to cover, adding to the upward impetus, which seemed to sweep away all opposition.

With no essential change in the business or monetary situation to explain the buying, some observers inclined to the belief that the quarterly statements of U. S. Steel and General Motors, to be announced later today, would make a better exhibit than was expected. U. S. Steel preferred reached a new 1927 maximum. Although banks called about $15,000,000 in loans, extra dividends declared by the Norfolk and Western and Republic Motor Truck contributed to a more optimistic feeling.

Several specialties rose to new peaks for the year, particularly in the drug group. United Drug, Lambert, Sterling Products, American Linseed, Columbia Carbon, U. S. Leather, Warren Brothers, and United States Leather "A" and prior preferred were in the list of shares selling at new high prices for 1927.

A sudden drop in Wabash, which had recently been "bulled" extensively on alleged competitive buying by Lackawanna, was without effect on the general list, aside from temporary sympathetic heaviness in Texas and Pacific and Kansas City Southern.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—The census report showing 8,118,978 bales of cotton ginned prior to October 18, compared with 8,727,709 last year and 9,518,946 two years ago, made a bullish impression on sentiment in the cotton market at the opening today.

First prices were firm at an advance of 28 to 55 points, and by the end of the first hour active months showed net advances of 60 to 65 points, December selling at 20.07c and March 20.36c.

The advance later extended to 20.28c for December and 20.55c for March, or about 80 to 83 points above yesterday's closing quotations. In the case of December contracts, this represented a recovery of 86 points from the low price touched yesterday afternoon. Realizing became a little more active at that level. At midday December was selling around 20.13c, active months generally showing reactions of about 10 to 14 points from the best. October advanced with the rest of the list, selling up to 20.18c or 83 points net higher, with the last sale reported at 10.06c just before trading in that delivery ended at midday.

The advance encountered a good deal of southern selling and realizing, but offerings were absorbed by active covering and fresh buying, which was accompanied by comment on the ginning figures as tending to confirm the smaller estimates of the crop.

MUSSOLINI OPENS 4TH AERONAUTICAL CONGRESS

ROME, Oct. 25.—In the presence of delegates from 50 nations Premier Mussolini opened the fourth International Aeronautical Congress. The Duce deprecated the attitude of persons who dismiss conquests from the air as an illusion.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Oct. 25.—Wheat values scored an early advance today, influenced by an upturn at Liverpool and by confirmation that European import requirements this year will be liberal. Besides, North American export business overnight was said to be of good volume. Opening at ⅛c to ⅝c higher, wheat subsequently showed additional gains. Corn, oats and provisions were likewise firmer. Corn started at ⅛c off to ⅛c up, sagged a little and then rose all around to above yesterday's finish.

At noon wheat was 1⅝c to 1¾c net higher and corn ⅝c to ⅞c.

Despite considerable selling, on Northwestern account, wheat displayed a relatively strong tone much of the time today. In this connection, special notice was taken of acknowledgment from a leading British authority that breadstuff needs abroad, Germany and Italy in particular, promised to be on a large scale. Estimates were also at hand that Australia would furnish a surplus of only 50,000,000 bushels, compared with 110,000,000 from the previous crop.

It was pointed out today that the European rye crop was nearly 135,000,000 bushels under the five-year pre-war average and that the United States crop is almost negligible in contrast with the European shortage. According to current trade gossip, Germany alone may import an amount equal to the entire United States surplus of rye.

LONE STAR GAS ADVANCES TO NEW HIGH RECORD

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—(AP.)—The underlying strength that has been a feature of the curb market during the period of unsettlement on other exchanges and trading groups became more pronounced today from the beginning of business. Nearly all issues in which there is a public interest joined in the upward movements, making advances ranging from 1 to 5 points in the early trading and holding strong during the greater part of the day.

Oils, in which there has been steady appreciation in values in spite of the lack of improvement in the industry, were again the most prominent features and some of those issues made new high records. National Transit was in this class, advancing ¾ to 20¼. Gulf rose over 2 points to above 96 and Vacuum, which was in supply yesterday, also advanced over 2 points. Humble was heavily traded and made a further advance of a point.

There was a special movement in Marconi Wireless of London, which rose to a new peak at 9¾. Canadian Marconi Wireless, which had been heavily traded until a short time ago at 1⅝, rose to 2.

United Biscuit followed an advance of 5 points yesterday with a further gain of a point, making a high record at 61. Glen Alden and Johns-Manville each moved up over 3 points. Celanese reacted from the opening while the preferred stock moved up 2 points. Deere & Co. advanced 6 points to 195, but lost most of this gain on a quick reaction. Stutz was one of the weak features, having a further loss of a point to 15½.

There was increased activity in the utilities as a group. American Gas & Electric moved up 2 points. Northern States Power A rose over a point. United Gas & Improvement advanced over 2 points.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—(AP.)—Following is the official list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (000 omitted in sales column in bond list):

LINDBERG SAVED!

Out of his modest salary as air mail pilot, Lindberg was able to accumulate the sum of two thousand dollars, which became the foundation of the fund to purchase the "Spirit of St. Louis." Without this it is doubtful if he could have interested others, or been, as he was, entirely independent in his actions.

If you too would be prepared for your opportunity, start that bank balance on its upward climb without delay, and

"Keep Your Savings Growing!"

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—(AP.)—Irregularity again marked trading in the bond market today, with many traders disposed to adopt a waiting attitude pending definite statements regarding the new government financing next month. The continued brisk flow of new offerings also was a prominent factor in the slowing up of the mortgage trade, while the ease of money conditions prevented any weakness in prices.

Several high yield railroad liens slipped back from their recent high prices, New Haven 6s getting down to 104⅝, and Seaboard 6s drifting to around 97⅝. Minneapolis and St. Louis 4s fell back 1½ points, selling just above their low price for the year.

Public utilities and industrials were quiet. Standard Oil of New Jersey 5s went up fractionally to 103 on a fair amount of buying, while Andes Copper 7s inclined to heaviness.

Foreign bonds displayed a mixed tendency. While some of the German obligations continued to ease off, Budapest 6s gained more than a point. French and Italian securities were steady.

Very little business was done in the United States government group.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, 000 omitted in sales column (United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

Lone Star Advances In Local Market

Strong demand for Lone Star Gas was again in evidence on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today, with the price pointing definitely upward. Movement was slow, however, and, while several hundred shares were wanted shortly after the start, the price showed no sign of advancing with any more speed than has been seen on its deliberate upward progress over the past several days.

Aside from the activity in Lone Star, the early session was rather devoid of interest. Traders were expecting an early demonstration in Arkansas Gas, but it failed to develop in the first half. Latest rumor in connection with the reported deal for sale of the company's gas properties involves the Insull interests (Chicago), who are said to have received documents for signature yesterday. Previous rumors had Cities Service interests on the buying side, the story being to the effect that a holding company would be formed to take over the Arkansas and other properties, Arkansas stockholders to receive debentures to the amount of $10 and one-quarter of a share of common stock in the new concern for each share of Arkansas. In addition it was said Arkansas would retain its oil properties which were estimated to have a probable value of about $4 a share. Failure of Arkansas to get above $9 a share, however, is puzzling to the street, which is apparently inclined to await actual information before committing itself in the stock.

Standard Sanitary displayed consistent strength and reached the best price for a week or more. Resumption of the upward trend in Sanitary was taken to mean that the reaction which carried the price back from around 106 to around 100 had run its course. In other directions the manufacturing list was dull. National Fireproofing was unchanged at 20 and Westinghouse Airbrake was quiet and steady. American Window Glass Machine common duplicated its previous low of 20, but not much stock changed hands.

As the session progressed the advance in Lone Star became more pronounced and the stock went into new high ground. Nobody seemed to have a definite idea as to the real cause of the move, but there was less disposition to attribute the rise to rumored merger negotiations than has been the case heretofore. It was pointed out that the company's financial position is excellent and that a large amount will probably be available for surplus account from this year's operations.

BANS RED CROSS SOLICITATION IN NAVY YARD

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—(AP.)—The refusal of Rear Admiral Charles P. Plunkett, commandant of the Brooklyn Navy Yard, to allow solicitation of contributions by the Red Cross from civilian workers in the yard on the ground that they are underpaid and are approached for such funds in civilian life, is regarded both by the Navy Department and Red Cross headquarters here as a local matter in which neither will take part.

Admiral Plunkett, while in Washington today to confer with Secretary Wilbur regarding the construction of the cruiser Pensacola at the Brooklyn yard, discussed informally his attitude in the controversy. Following the conference Secretary Wilbur declared his department was very friendly to the Red Cross and was disposed to assist it in every way, but that it was "opposed to coercion."

"Unless some reason is shown why the department should act," he said, "I will not interfere nor look into Admiral Plunkett's action. No specific complaint has been lodged and I see no reason for interference."

Admiral Plunkett reiterated today that the 3,000 workers in the Brooklyn yard were underpaid.

"So far as I am concerned," he said, "the matter is a closed incident. I will not allow solicitations from the civilian employes. The Navy Department does not allow solicitations in the headquarters building here, although the Red Cross does place a desk in the lobby, and we will not allow it in the Brooklyn yard. The civilian employes have the opportunity to join the Red Cross and are approached by workers in their civilian life.

"I am friendly to the Red Cross. Its annual roll call among the enlisted and commissioned personnel will not be interfered with. However, it seems to me that the Red Cross is at times getting away from sentiment and allowing some of its affairs to be placed in the hands of paid professionals."

3 ARRESTED IN AUTO THEFTS

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Oct. 25.—A band of automobile thieves operating in Western Pennsylvania and Northern West Virginia, has been broken up, Police Chief S. E. Barnett declared today, with the arrest of three boys, the recovery of three cars and the signing of statements by the prisoners. The prisoners registered as John Goodwin, 18, Glen Elk; James Clark, 21, Indiana, and Raymond Swiger, 18, Point Comfort.

A fourth member of the band, Thomas Murphy, its alleged fence, is in jail at Washington, Pa., where he owns a garage. Copies of the prisoners' statement will be sent to Washington for use at Murphy's trial.

"3 PER CENT" HARRY BACK

Harry McKelvey, so dubbed "Three Per Cent" by police, was returned to Pittsburgh from Wheeling, W. Va., yesterday with a check-writing machine and checkbooks from a half dozen states.

McKelvey, 28, Detroit, was equipped to make certified checks "while you wait," police charged—in fact, he did that very thing on two Pittsburgh firms, according to the law. Police said one of his aliases was S. S. Haddad.

McKelvey is known to have passed two worthless checks for about $50, police said.

BURKE PRAISES COMBINATION OF CAPITAL

HOUSTON, Tex., Oct. 25.—James Francis Burke, Pittsburgh attorney, paid marked tribute to combinations of capital in the development of American industry and prosperity in an address here yesterday before the American Bankers' Association.

To great capitalistic enterprises Mr. Burke gave credit for the unity of the nation by the construction of the great railroad and communication systems. The Pennsylvania Railroad alone, he declared, is composed of what once were 600 corporations, with as many duplications of management and overhead expense. In the fruits of combined capital in America, he declared, lies the solution of the baffling problem to small European nations of how this country's workers are so well paid, prosperous and happy as against conditions in the network of small European nationalities.

Mr. Burke is general counsel of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, the Pittsburgh Clearing House Association and formerly was a member of the banking and currency committee of Congress.

FIND EX-CONVICT RING HEAD

Lewis Robinson, 27, alleged leader of a gang of counterfeiters said to have flooded the Pittsburgh district and other parts of the country with spurious $20 notes, who is now under arrest here with three other men and two women, was paroled recently from the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., after serving three and one-half years of a seven-year sentence imposed for counterfeiting by the Federal District Court in Alabama, according to government secret service operatives.

The arrest of Robinson, his wife, Pauline Robinson, 19; John Roxby, 21, and his wife, Louisa Roxby, 19, in Wheeling, W. Va., on information sent there by W. A. Landvoigt, secret service operative in charge of this district, followed the arrest in Pittsburgh of Willard Roxby, 20, and Clarence Bates, 24. The latter two men have been in the county jail since early last week. The Wheeling suspects have been brought back.

Operative Landvoigt, following the arrest of the two men here, traced the other two couples to Wheeling, and forwarded there a description of a stolen machine they were said to have been using. A large part of the bogus money was passed in saloons and cabarets, it was said.

One year has passed since that sad day,
The one we loved was called away;
God took her home, it was His will,
But in our hearts she liveth still.

Sadly missed by her husband, daughter and son.

In memory of our darling sonny, Harry J. Pleina, Jr., who died one year ago today. Sadly missed by mother, daddy and all.

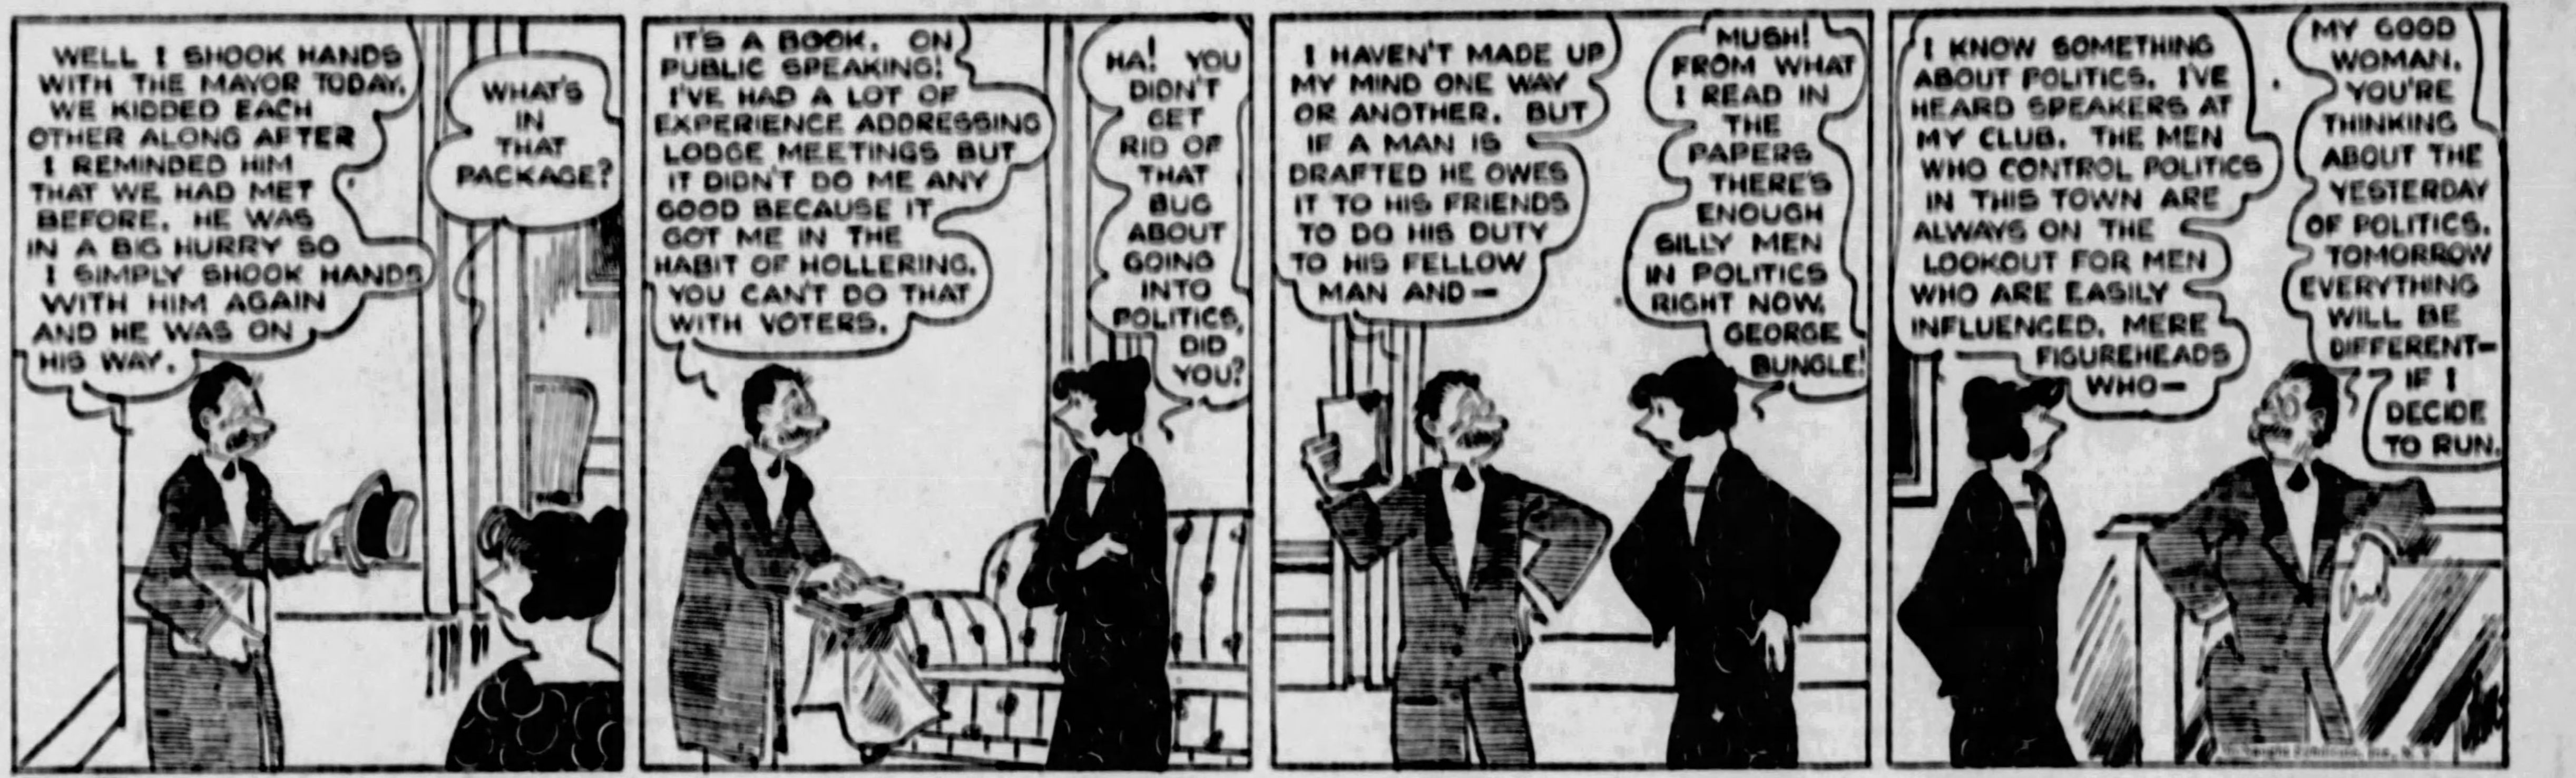
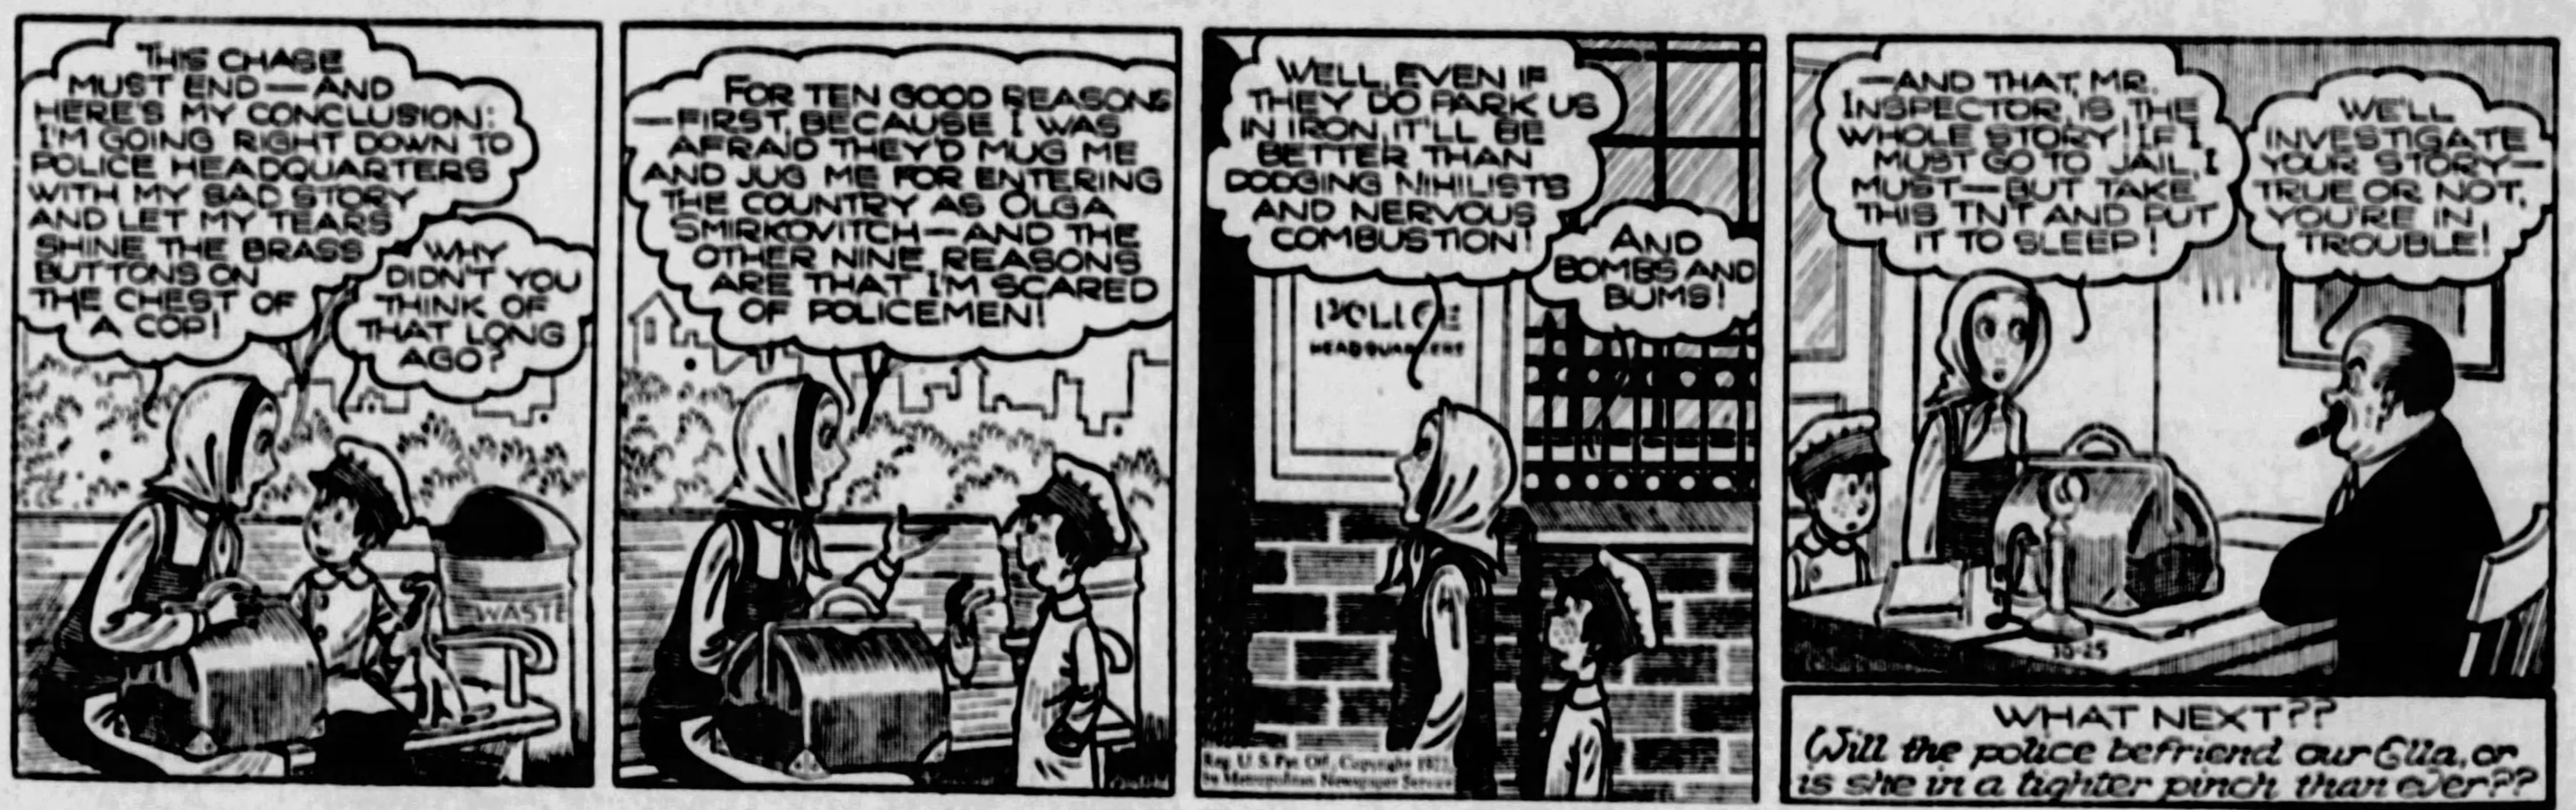
Another Uplift for Politics



WELL I SHOOK HANDS WITH THE MAYOR TODAY. WE KIDDED EACH OTHER ALONG AFTER I REMINDED HIM THAT WE HAD MET BEFORE. HE WAS IN A BIG HURRY SO I SIMPLY SHOOK HANDS WITH HIM AGAIN AND HE WAS ON HIS WAY.
WHAT'S IN THAT PACKAGE?
IT'S A BOOK. ON PUBLIC SPEAKING! I'VE HAD A LOT OF EXPERIENCE ADDRESSING LODGE MEETINGS BUT IT DIDN'T DO ME ANY GOOD BECAUSE IT GOT ME IN THE HABIT OF HOLLERING. YOU CAN'T DO THAT WITH VOTERS.
HA! YOU DIDN'T GET RID OF THAT BUG ABOUT GOING INTO POLITICS, DID YOU?
I HAVEN'T MADE UP MY MIND ONE WAY OR ANOTHER. BUT IF A MAN IS DRAFTED HE OWES IT TO HIS FRIENDS TO DO HIS DUTY TO HIS FELLOW MAN AND—
MUSH! FROM WHAT I READ IN THE PAPERS THERE'S ENOUGH SILLY MEN IN POLITICS RIGHT NOW, GEORGE BUNGLE!
I KNOW SOMETHING ABOUT POLITICS. I'VE HEARD SPEAKERS AT MY CLUB. THE MEN WHO CONTROL POLITICS IN THIS TOWN ARE ALWAYS ON THE LOOKOUT FOR MEN WHO ARE EASILY INFLUENCED, MERE FIGUREHEADS WHO—
MY GOOD WOMAN, YOU'RE THINKING ABOUT THE YESTERDAY OF POLITICS. TOMORROW EVERYTHING WILL BE DIFFERENT—IF I DECIDE TO RUN.

ELLA CINDERS

Back to the Law



THIS CHASE MUST END—AND HERE'S MY CONCLUSION: I'M GOING RIGHT DOWN TO POLICE HEADQUARTERS WITH MY STORY AND LET MY TEARS SHINE THE BRASS BUTTONS ON THE CHEST OF A COP!
WHY DIDN'T YOU THINK OF THAT LONG AGO?
WASTE
FOR TEN GOOD REASONS—FIRST, BECAUSE I WAS AFRAID THEY'D MUG ME AND JUG ME FOR ENTERING THE COUNTRY AS OLGA SMIRKOVITCH—AND THE OTHER NINE REASONS ARE THAT I'M SCARED OF POLICEMEN!
WELL, EVEN IF THEY DO PARK US IN IRON, IT'LL BE BETTER THAN DODGING NIHILISTS AND NERVOUS COMBUSTION!
AND BOMBS AND BUMS!
POLICE HEADQUARTERS
—AND THAT, MR. INSPECTOR, IS THE WHOLE STORY! IF I MUST GO TO JAIL, I MUST—BUT TAKE THIS TNT AND PUT IT TO SLEEP!
WE'LL INVESTIGATE YOUR STORY, BUT TRUE OR NOT, YOU'RE IN TROUBLE!

BUGS BAER Says

WHEN Eliza leaped across the cracked ice it was fortunate for her that she didn't have a bottle of ginger ale in her arms.

A slightly middle western judge rules that these two commodities are paler than the law.

He quotes Bottles versus Stoppers in the famous case of Commonwealth against Skyline, Page 729, Gypsy Dream Book.

This precedent clearly rules that cracked ice and ginger ale are accessories before the fact if the consumer of the first instance has larceny in his heart and the price of a quart in his pocketbook.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER.

Therefore, no hotel, inn or hostelry, situated within the domains of the eighteen original amendments and their eight hundred corrections, augmented by interpolations and marginal notations, shall serve ginger ale and cracked ice jams to a guest who registers as:

John Smith and thirst.

Where there is smoke there is fire and where there is ginger ale there must be bubbles. The manager of a hotel who serves ginger beer and frozen lumps to a hopeful malcontent becomes participus crimminus, or words to that effect.

The manager becomes an accessory to the fact, even if he ain't invited to the party.

The floor clerk can also be nipped for being in the vicinity and the house detective can be stripped of his rubber heels and otherwise reduced to the ranks.

The bellboy who carries the fractured ice and the ginger ale to room 1620 is also a snapper of the law and its by-products. The worst that can happen to him is that he may lose his retail license.

You can evade this liberal discount of the Eighteenth codicil to the Constitution by claiming that you want the ginger ale for the chills and the ice for a fever.

The ice can be placed in the servidor and the ginger ale can be snuggled up the dumbwaiter. You can have them served in two different rooms and run between them.

No law is broken until the ginger ale and the cracked ice meet face to face. If one of those faces belong to you then you are compounding a felony.

It's always fair weather when good felonies get together, and we suspect that hotels will continue to serve cracked ice, plus ginger ale, though the elements roar, the heavens fall and the chandeliers rattle to pieces.

ON "VITALS AND VACUUMS"

When a WOMAN reaches
FORTY-FIVE she has MUCH to think of,
That is, IF she is
NOT married, and WANTS
To be. . . .
If she IS married
She probably has PLENTY
To think of also,
That is, if SHE is STILL on the job,
For MARRIAGE brings its Responsibilities,
If she is MARRIED
And TIRED of it, she STILL has quite a little THINKING to do, for
At forty-five she CANNOT
Step out as FAR and WIDE as she used to.
Yes, forty-five is an INTERESTING age,
For, if a WOMAN of
That age has created
A HOME or something
Permanent and beautiful,
She is VITAL, but if
She is busy learning the BLACK BOTTOM she is—A VACUUM.

Hard on the Pig

But Rites, Religious and Hospitable, Must be Observed

MR. PIG, DEAD IN A GOOD CAUSE.

Ancient writers frequently refer to "pygmies," living in dense forests, fleeing from the face of a full-sized man.

It was long supposed that the pygmy stories were fables, like stories about the giant with one eye in the center of his forehead, and other monstrosities. But pygmies actually do exist, white men have visited them. If you treat them kindly they are friendly enough. Above you see preparations for receiving the first white men to visit the dark forests of Papua to study their strange ways.

The first expedition was headed by Professor Matthew W. Stirling of Berkeley, California. He was accompanied by a number of scientific gentlemen, one aviator who died of typhoid on the trip, two hundred Dutch troops, forty Malay convicts, and Dyaks, native burden bearers. The troops were to protect the scientists from hostile full grown Papuans, who not only kill you but eat you if they get a chance.

The expedition, organized by the Smithsonian Institution, found that the pygmies, averaging from forty to forty-two inches in height, live on a plateau in the Nassau Mountains in the center of Dutch New Guinea.

Like other savages, these pygmies are intelligent gentlemen and let women do the hard work, while they enjoy themselves hunting.

A SUPERSTITIOUS PYGMY.

The gentleman just above is a type of the little pygmies. He has a good opinion of himself, as little people have usually. He carries a pouch made of orchid bark, in it are betel nuts, which he chews; a knife made of stone (they are still in the Stone Age), rattan of which he makes armor to protect himself from the arrows of his enemies, some red earth to paint his face and make himself beautiful, and various magical emblems to keep off evil spirits.

As small as they are these pygmies, like other men, have their full, complete set of superstitions, strange, barbarous religious beliefs, complete collections of gods, devils, etc., all profitable to the medicine man and priest of the tribe, who use the gods and the devils to threaten the pygmies and get well paid for it.

The picture at the top shows preparations for receiving the first white men. Looking closely you see an arrow is sticking into the pig that hangs by its four feet. The man that shot the arrow is not visible in the picture. That is the proper way to kill a pig, when you are going to entertain strangers and make them "blood brothers." The pig supplies the blood, you will notice.

Professor Stirling ate part of the pig, announced it excellent, and later you will see in the Smithsonian Institution reproductions of these savages and their methods of living.

Needless to say, the pygmies are fundamentalists, believing that the ancient traditions they inherit are the only true traditions. They would have great contempt for Darwin, if they could know what he teaches or anything about him. They think the white men will go to hell, of course, because they don't know the ritual fashion of shooting a pig with an arrow before you eat it.

In short, the pygmies on the high plateau, surrounded by savage, full grown Papuan neighbors, are not different from a good many intellectual pygmies that live in the good old U. S. A.

Prevention Beats Cure

Illness, according to Dr. Louis I. Dublin, statistician of the Metropolitan Life, costs American families an average of $80 each per year, yet the average doctor's yearly income is only $3,000—not enough to insure good service.

It would be cheaper for the families and better for the doctor if the latter were on a continuous retainer to keep sickness away, instead of being called only after the sickness had got a running start.

Garrett P Serviss Says:

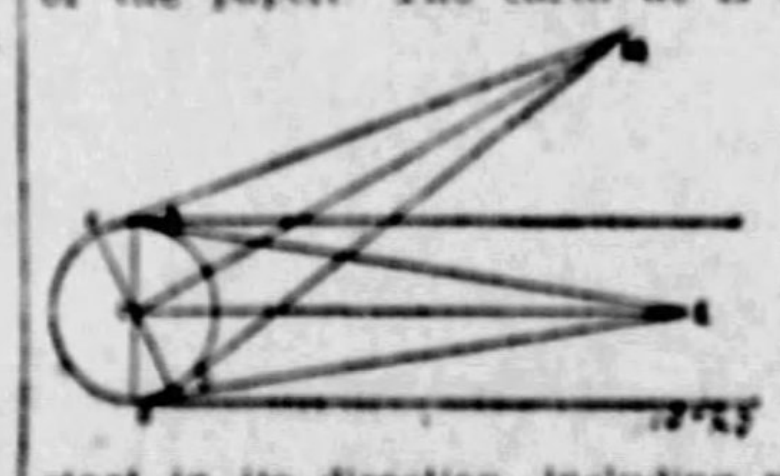
Sunlight Seen and Unseen

"Some time ago you said in one of your articles that the rays of sunlight come in vertical direction, and you showed by drawing vertical rays how the sun's diameter exceeds the earth's, though it appears only half a degree in diameter. But is it not a fact that the sun's rays travel in a direct line from the sun's center, and so spread wider apart as they go?—W. D. V."

THE sun radiates light radially from every point on its surface, but the radiation spreads in all directions from such points, and is not transmitted solely along a radius from the sun's center to the point of emittance. If the light followed only the radius we should see the sun only as a point of light instead of a broad disk.

The light by which we see the sun comes from all parts of the sun's hemisphere that is exposed to us, but there are rays of light from that hemisphere that pass by the earth. Look at the picture.

The circle represents the sun cut through in the plane of the paper. The earth at E is illuminated by light radiated from every point on the sun included within the diameter a-b. But since every point on the sun is a center of light rays, all such rays do not reach the earth, but only those that start in its direction, including rays that come radially from the center of the sun's disk.



The planet at M is illuminated by light radiated from every point on the sun included within the diameter c—d. It will be seen that part of this hemisphere is identical with part of the hemisphere seen from the earth. But the rays reaching the two planets from the overlapping parts are not the same, since they start from their radiant points in different directions.

A ray of light is not visible viewed sidewise. It must come direct from radiant point to the eye. Thus at night the sun's light is continually flooding all of the space surrounding the earth and the other planets, but as we look out from the shadow of night around us, which is nothing but the earth's own shadow, the heavens appear dark, and only the faint rays coming direct to our eyes from the distant stars save them from being absolutely black. The sunlight streaming through between us and the planets and stars does not affect our eyes at all, because it is not directed into them.

The angular diameter, a—b, of the sun, which spans a little more than half a degree, seen from the earth, would become smaller if we receded from the sun, and when we were some hundreds of thousands of millions of miles away it would shrink to a mere point, like a star.

Stars and Stripes

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

Conquer Your Fault

YOU know your own weaknesses. But isn't it true that you make more effort to keep others from knowing your failings than you do to rid yourself of them?

You desire to appear strong, firm and fearless to the world.

To yourself you are weak, irresolute and timid.

You think there is some satisfaction in blinding others to your faults.

It should be more gratifying to you to master your deficiencies.

Ever ask yourself the secret of your lack of control of your desires?

You are sound; you have no serious physical ailments.

Your mind is as good as the average person's.

Why is it then that you have failed to be what you should be?

Lack of will-power is one reason.

Insufficient effort is another reason.

Put the clamps on yourself and forge ahead.

It is worth the effort because of the satisfaction you will gain from being what you know you should be.

Tales That Are Told

Had Been Bean

"OH, WAITER—what is this you've brought me?"

"Why, that's bean soup, sir."

"Of course, it's been soup, but what is it now?"—Louisville Satyr.

Good Not to Know

TWELVE pleasant-sounding chimes came from the ornamental clock in the London hotel lounge, and the manager, a Swiss, yawned and murmured:

"Noon. Noon all over the world."

"No, sir, that is incorrect," protested a testy old gentleman from his armchair. It's 2 o'clock just now in Constantinople, half-past 1 in the morning in Honolulu, 5 o'clock in the afternoon in India, half-past 10 in——"

But the manager interrupted his guest with another friendly yawn.

"Well," he said complacently, "thank Heaven I live in a town where noon is noon and nothing else!"

The Exposure

HE HAD poured forth passionate declarations of love to the pretty girl at his side. He had not thought himself capable of such eloquence.

Yet in the midst of his loving words the girl yawned. Even though she raised her hand to conceal it, it did not escape his eager eye. His torrent of burning words ceased.

"Why speak to you of love?" he cried bitterly. "You, who are so utterly heartless. Your yawn showed it."

"Oh, Clarence," she whispered, horror-stricken, "did I open my mouth as wide as that?"

Something to Think About

By BRUNO LESSING

A Little Here, A Little There

WHY do so many people write anonymous letters? Every man, woman, child or goat who gets into public print, receives anonymous letters.

Do the writers of such letters realize that the absence of their signature from the letter is a confession of cowardice or meanness? Or can it be possible that there are many people in the world who are cowardly and mean and do not mind it?

An orator, the other day, dug up an old proverb and, with great solemnity, handed it to his audience.

"Be sure you are right," he said, "and then go ahead."

Some people have a weakness for proverbs. They look upon them as condensed wisdom. It does not require much intelligence to grasp a proverb.

"Be sure you are right!" Outside of mathematics there is very little that we can be sure of in this vale of tears. Nungesser and Coli were just as sure as Lindbergh and Chamberlin. We must do the best we can and take a chance. Otherwise there would be no progress.

"Life today lacks dignity," said a preacher.

Why not? What good does dignity do life? There is a natural dignity of soul which grows and flourishes, like a beautiful flower. Nothing hinders or hides it.

There is an artificial dignity which many people attempt to set up as a screen to prevent the world from beholding their weaknesses. That is pure nonsense. The employer who feels dignified just because he is an employer is a joke. The office-holder who feels dignified because he holds the office is a public pest.

There is no real dignity of wealth or position or influence. The only dignity which is real and worth while is that of the soul and the mind. Such dignity needs no props or solemn trappings.

What is humor? There you have something to think about.

A man tells you a funny story. You wonder why the story amuses him. Out of the kindness of your heart you tell him a funnier story. He thinks you're crazy. Which of you is right?

Chauncey Depew used to tell a story about a waiter in a Bowery restaurant who asked a customer: "What kind of pie d'ye want, apple or mince?"

"Apple," said the customer.

"What's the matter with the mince?" demanded the waiter, angrily.

Some people laughed at the story. An Englishman inquired, "What WAS the matter with the mince?" Then more people laughed. The next day a friend said to Depew.

"That was a funny story you told last night, but I'm afraid I didn't quite get it. Was there anything wrong with the mince?"

You can keep on adding to this. Is the story funny at all? And, if so, when does it cease to be funny? Because, after all, this writer has not the faintest idea why the customer selected apple instead of mince.

Buy for Christmas Now

A CALM atmosphere, unhurried salespeople, great range of choice and prices certainly no higher greet the October Christmas shopper. The interest lost on the money between now and December is a trifle.

Get it done now, put them away and walk the streets in December with an air of conscious superiority over the milling crowds of late buyers.

New York Day by Day
O.O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—New York is loveliest as fall, like a blue hour, merges into white winter. There is a winey tang in the air and the entire metropolis seems poised for the gaiety ahead. There is the happy thrill of rehearsing songbirds at the Metropolitan. It is "the season."

Fine mansions are unboarded and blaze with lights. And social calendars are filled until the after holiday hegira to Palm Beach and Miami. The Rialto heavens are studded with new and old stars. The musical extravaganzas have not yet begun to show tarnish.

Shopping becomes a delight and the window displays drooping so through the summer bloom with new life. Cabarets and supper clubs reopen and make their bow for after-theater patronage. Everybody "who is anybody" is back in town tanned and surcharged with vitality from their summer loaf.

Fifth avenue glitters with gaudy limousines. The doormen under the hotel canopies are caparisoned with impressive new uniforms. Old Lavender Joe is back on the curbs with his satchel of sachet. The nattily dressed clubmen and the smartly dressed ladies join the 5 o'clock parade. Romance seems just around the corner.

School children as brown as berries from the seashore and mountains rush frosty breathed through the streets. In Central Park are the tiny closed cabs drawn by magnificent cobbed horses with plum liveried coachmen and groom. The bridle path is filled with caraceling chargers.

Over on Broadway the matinee idols strut and fancifully dressed chorus girls gaze longingly into the jeweler's window. In cafes and other places is the reunion of a homecoming—folks are greeting friends they have not seen for months.

It is the time of year when the entire town babbles: "There is no place like New York." And at that especial period there isn't. Best manners are in evidence. Nerves have not yet been rubbed raw by the push and hurrah. New York is at its best and that best is unbeatable.

An actor who not many years ago was a river showboat juvenile is one of the slickest Broadway dressers. He has among other sartorial conceits cuff links and tie pins to blend with each of his 18 suits. He wears a white silk sash in lieu of an evening vest and two tiny platinum silver bracelets. But he has not entirely outgrown early environment. He appeared at rehearsal the other day and when he removed his coat he was wearing suspenders.

Everything seems to have been done to save suspenders for posterity. First they were called galluses, then suspenders and today in smart haberdasheries they are braces. But even with John Barrymore reported wearing them there are few buyers.

* * *

Sinclair Lewis is said to have dealt a death blow to white sox when he featured them as a part of his character Babbit.

* * *

Little Broadway cafes flatter real celebrities and near by listing dishes and sandwiches on their menus named for them. It gives the idea those honored are regular patrons. Most of the articles are merely dishes of another name and not an invention. About the only celebrity named dish that has endured is cantaloupe Lillian Russell—which is mere ice cream in cantaloupe. It was served to the beloved and beautiful actress one day at the Waldorf and pleased her so the inventor, Oscar, graciously honored it with her name.

In the same fashion several years ago Times Square soda fountains began naming drinks for local favorites. Only those so flattered called for the drinks and the idea was abandoned as a complete flop.

Looking Forward

By DR. FRANK CRANE

The Nineteenth Century was the most wonderful century regarded from the point of view of invention.

We had safety matches, locomotives, the cable, the telephone, the typewriter and all sorts of other things.

But the Twentieth Century is expected to be greater. Its scientists are peering forward into the future with eager eyes. Much of the work that goes on quietly and without advertisement is done by the bespectacled and towsled-haired scientists who get very little money for their work.

At the Radio Show a short time ago I inquired of a radio expert about the future of radio. As nearly as I can find out, important things are just on the verge of happening.

A driverless car can be run by radio from a car that follows it.

But the radio beam which sends power by radio in a direct line, has not yet been perfected. At present it spreads in all directions. When the beam shall have been perfected it will accomplish wonderful things.

They are telephoning by radio and sending photographs by radio, but the television still lingers. It is not yet a practical success.

Dr. Robert A. Millikan, of the Pasadena Institute of Technology, who discovered the cosmic ray, asserts that this ray will penetrate 120 feet of water or 11 feet of earth, but that there is no means of utilizing its force for health and happiness. They are continually making experiments with the ray to learn more about it and its possible adaptability.

The X-ray and other rays emitted by certain radioactive substances have been utilized for the benefit of humanity.

The ultra-violet ray is pronounced by scientists throughout the world as perhaps the greatest of modern curative agencies.

Then there is the rainbow ray, discovered by Raymond R. Machlett. It is said this ray will penetrate haze and fog, but it has not yet been proved practicable.

Out of present activities of obscure scientists will doubtless come important inventions in the future.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

The Little Road

THERE is a road that winds away toward sunset's gold at end of day, a little road that beckons me before it hides beyond a tree. It seems a road that turns and winds: I wonder what the traveler finds along its leafy, song-sweet ways? Quaint charms, perhaps, from other days! Low houses wreathed about with vines beside great oaks where ivy twines wait on its borders, well I know, past stile-blocks from the long ago. Another road lies by my door where travelers journey, score on score, and yet it has no lure for me, its course is mapped for all to see. But I would fare along that way, so dim with leaves, with birds so gay, to find the charms that tempt me so, the lost delights of long ago!

THE LIFE OF THOMAS A. EDISON

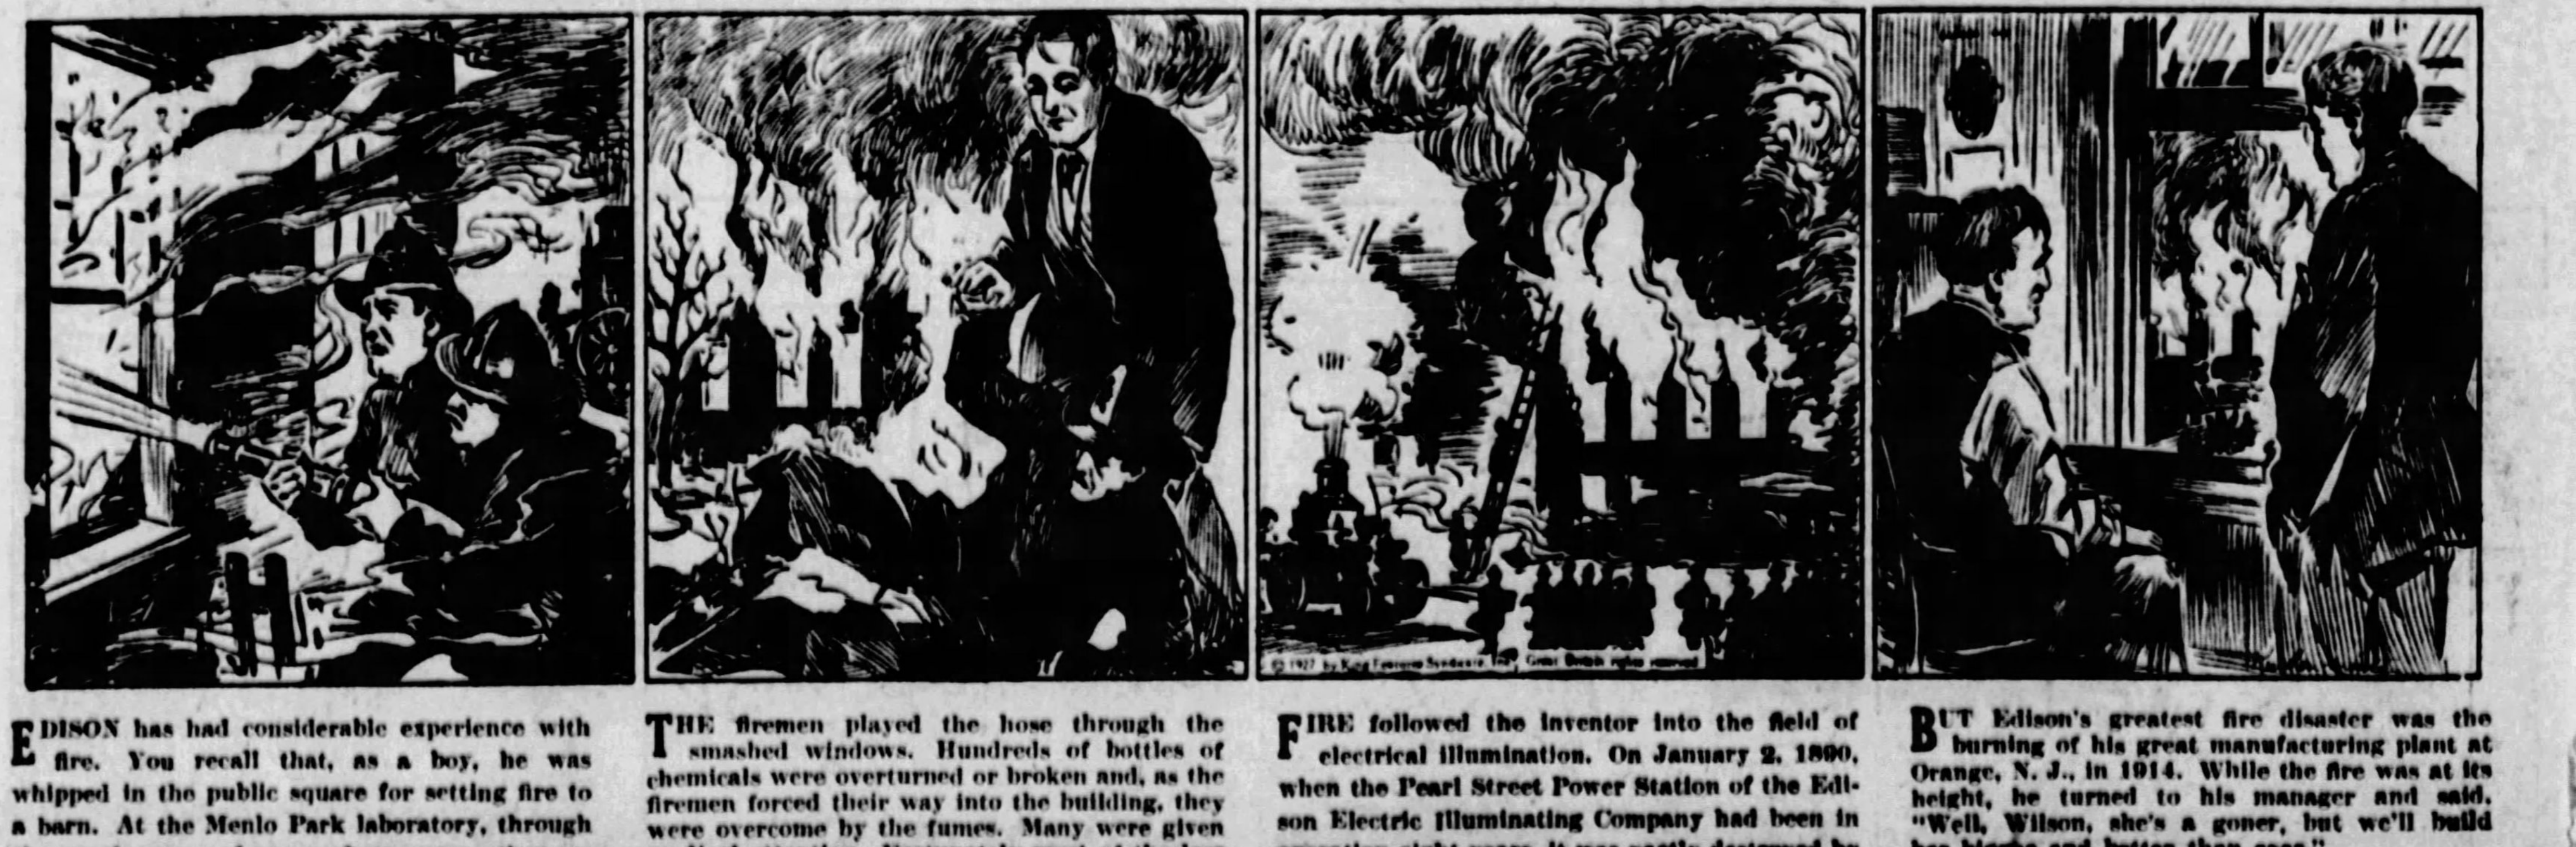
Text by Arthur J. Palmer
Drawings by Frank Kuchenmeister



EDISON has had considerable experience with fire. You recall that, as a boy, he was whipped in the public square for setting fire to a barn. At the Menlo Park laboratory, through the carelessness of an employe, some ether exploded and the firemen had to be called.

THE firemen played the hose through the smashed windows. Hundreds of bottles of chemicals were overturned or broken and, as the firemen forced their way into the building, they were overcome by the fumes. Many were given medical attention. Fortunately most of the loss was in chemicals.

FIRE followed the inventor into the field of electrical illumination. On January 2, 1890, when the Pearl Street Power Station of the Edison Electric Illuminating Company had been in operation eight years, it was partly destroyed by flames. Being out of date it was not rebuilt.

BUT Edison's greatest fire disaster was the burning of his great manufacturing plant at Orange, N. J., in 1914. While the fire was at its height, he turned to his manager and said, "Well, Wilson, she's a goner, but we'll build her bigger and better than ever."
